Schneider Cup Is Aimed At by U.S. Speed Aviators

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The United States hopes for the Schneider Cup, at present held by Great Britain, are pinned to a tiny monoplane recently produced by the Philadelphia Naval Aircraft factory, and which is now in the course of testing by Lieut. A. L. Williams, of the navy. The machine is a monoplane fitted with a Packard twenty-four-cylinder engine, able to develop 1,000 horsepower. Formerly the American racing craft has been of biplane design. Although it is exceptionally small, it is expected to attain a speed of 300 miles per hour. In 1927 Lieut. N. Webster, of Great Britain, won the Schneider trophy at Venice, when he flew over a 350-kilometre course at a speed of 31.685 miles an hour.

GREAT BLAZE PLAYS HAVOC WITH SHEDS

Spectacular Fire Destroys Buildings of Union Steamship Company on Vancouver Waterfront

MUCH SHIPPING IS ENDANGERED

VANCOUVER, July 27. — The north end of the Union Steamship Company freight shed was destroyed late Saturday afternoon by one of the most spectacular fires of recent years on the city's waterfront. The damage is estimated at $120,000.

There was little ship cargo in sight. Flames shot fifty feet in the air and great clouds of smoke belched over the harbor. Thousands of people deserted streets, stores and athletic parks to watch the fire.

Beginning at 3.15, with explosions, heard blocks away, long flames licked almost the entire length of the shed, scorched the south end, and enveloped everything in their path at the north end. Within an hour, when the blaze was brought under control, the flames had reached beneath the flooring and damaged the north piling considerably.

FIREMEN IN DANGER

Two firemen, venturing along the floor to the north end of the shed, were thrown into the water when the boards beneath them, eaten through by fire, gave away. They saved themselves, however, by swimming between the piling and scrambling to safety.

The Ss. Grainer, moored at Pier H, immediately to the east of the shed, was burned somewhat about the mast and rigging by flying sparks. Ss. Helac I, of the Pacific Salvage Company, put these flames out with its hose lines. Ss. Bervin, moored at Pier H, was untouched by the fire. Ss. Chilco, which was docked at the Union wharf, moved into the stream. U.S.S. Alexander had left the wharf at 2 p.m., taking with her most of the freight within the shed.

The origin of the fire is laid to the effect of heat on gasoline drums inside the shed. These exploded.

A Canadian Pacific constable and a Chinaman are credited with saving Pier H from the fire. A westerly wind blew sparks on the pier, but the constable and the Chinaman drew out hoses and wet down all the nearby piling and wharf.

The Helac II, of the Pacific Salvage Company, threw hundreds of gallons of water on the flames.

Senator Makes Fiery Protest On Naval Bill

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Commending President Hoover for suspension of construction of three cruisers, Senator Brookhart of Iowa, who opposed the cruiser construction bill, today voiced a vigorous protest against views expressed by National Commander McNutt of the American Legion on the question.

Brookhart said that McNutt "is only representing a little, bloodthirsty colony at the head of the American Legion, which has become principal propagandist for the war profiteers."

The Iowan is a legion member.

"I am in complete accord with the President, Mr. Brookhart continued, "and I hope these cruisers never will be built. They are useless when they are built, and the construction of them is an unnecessary threat of war."

Consent Needed For Changes in Defence Policy

WELLINGTON, N.Z., July 27.—The hope that no alteration in the Policy of Imperial defence would be made by the British Government without consultation with the Dominions, was expressed today by Sir Joseph Ward, Prime Minister of New Zealand.

In response to inquiries, Sir Joseph said he had communicated a tentative expression of the New Zealand Government's views on naval defence to London, and said it had been suggested to the MacDonald Government that if possible the matter should be reserved for discussion at the next Imperial Conference. He said the proposals of the British Government with reference to naval defence have received the attention of the New Zealand Government.

Clothing on Fire, Vancouver Man Is Seriously Burned

VANCOUVER, July 27.—Badly burned when his clothing caught fire, George E. Capelle, employee of the Jones Tent and Awning Co., is in hospital here with a "fighting chance for life," as doctors described his condition. Covered with oil when an explosion occurred in a vat of the factory where he was working, Capelle suddenly found himself wrapped in a mass of flames. Fellow workers succeeded in beating out the fire. The plant, which caught fire subsequently, was damaged to the extent of about $25,000.

HALF-MILLION WORKERS MAY BE WORKLESS

Wages Dispute in Lancashire Likely to End in Strike in Cotton Trade Districts

NEGOTIATIONS ARE FAILURE

MANCHESTER, England, July 27.—Half a million cotton operatives will be idle Monday unless the unforeseen happens before. Negotiations for settlement of the wage dispute in the Lancashire cotton trade ended in failure today.

The weavers' amalgamation definitely refused to continue the negotiations with the employers which had lasted through the week-end and the latter's notice of reduction of wages by 12½ per cent became effective today.

The differences over wages are of long standing. Mill engineers and firemen who are also effected by the wage cuts agreed to remain at their posts over the week-end on the slim hope that a settlement might permit the wheels to turn as usual on Monday. It was understood that in some cases the owners might open the mills to test the unity of the employees.

Motorists Urged To Exercise Care On Island Roads

TOURISTS and residents of the Province will confer a favor by exercising caution while motoring over the Malahat; also when passing Cameron Lake and over the Alberni Mountain.

The notices posted by the Department of Public Works are deemed necessary to guard life and property. Co-operation in observing this request will be appreciated by all who use the Island Highway, and especially by the Department of Public Works, and the Superintendent of Provincial Police.

Boy Drowned in Horseshoe Bay Whilst Bathing

WEST VANCOUVER, July 27.—Kenneth McKenzie, aged seven, said to be the son of Mr. and Mrs. K. McKenzie, Venables Street, Vancouver, was drowned at Horseshoe Bay this afternoon, according to reports to West Vancouver police. The boy's body was discovered by a number of youths who were diving off a raft. They noticed it in about ten feet of water.

FIERY SPEECH OF COMMUNIST N.Y. LEADER

Anita Whitney Taken by Police During Riotous Demonstration Against Chinese

WAS ARRESTED AS CAUSE OF TROUBLE

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. (United Press) July 27.—Anita Whitney, fiery white-haired champion of Communism, was arrested here today as ringleader of a riotous demonstration before the Chinese Consulate.

The demonstration, participated in by more than one hundred persons, was staged against "Imperialism."

Ten more persons were arrested and taken to the city prison. Miss Whitney, who once was sentenced to serve a prison term on an I.W.W. conviction, admitted her belief in Communism.

The mob had assembled quietly before the Consulate and the outburst of speechmaking materialized as if by magic.

Police soon appeared and dispelled the mob, arresting the alleged ring leaders and parading them several blocks to the city jail.

At the front of the parade, escorted by police, was Miss Whitney. In her hands she carried a banner which read "Down with Chang Kai Shek, the lackey of the Imperialists."

Miss Whitney denied she had ever made any promise to have nothing further to do with Communists when she was granted a governor's pardon and released from prison.

She said that she valued her membership in the Communist Party "above personal liberty."

She declared she joined the demonstration because she was convinced that the United States, Great Britain, Japan and "other imperialistic countries," are forcing Russia into a war to break up the Soviet Union.

Premier Tolmie And Party Are Given Banquet

PORTLAND, July 27.—Sam Hill, Mary Hill, Premier S. F. Tolmie, N. S. Lougheed, Minister of Public Works, and Patrick Philip, Deputy Minister of Public Works, of British Columbia, were entertained at a dinner tonight by prominent Portland business men. The party spent the afternoon on the scenic Columbia Highway and at Seaside, Ore., resort city. Tomorrow they will motor north to Seattle.

Quebec Province District Provides Records of Heat and Snow

QUEBEC, July 27.—Five different places reported snow in the Province of Quebec during the month of June. The Gouin Dam, in the Lake St. Peter region, headed the list with a two-inch fall during the thirty days of the month. Thetford Mines ranged to the other extreme, for, in addition to recording traces of snow also registered the hottest day of the entire month, the mercury soaring to 96 degrees on June 20.

VICTORIA BOY ON EVE OF HIS GREAT FLIGHT

Paid Visit to Tacoma Airport to See That All Was in Readiness — Then Went to Rest

IS WORRIED BY MANY MANAGERS

Jealousies of Backers Are Cause of Interference With Arrangements of Victoria Flyer

TACOMA, July 27 (United Press).—Lieutenant Harold Bromley, apparently intent on taking off on his proposed flight to Tokio at 5 a.m. Sunday, paid a brief visit to the Tacoma Airport late today, then went home for a final rest.

Approximately 500 of the 885 gallons the plane will carry were put in the "City of Tacoma" late today.

Bromley decided to go without an earth conductor compass, parts for which were ordered in Los Angeles today.

"TACOMA TO TOKIO"

There's euphony in the phrase, "Tacoma to Tokio," but there the agreeableness stops, as far as the proposed nonstop flight by Lieutenant Harold Bromley to the Orient is concerned.

The project tonight had entered its second week of watchful waiting and acrimony.

Intra-Chamber of Commerce jealousies, social rivalries and disagreements of managers of the great undertaking of this prosperous city on the shores of Puget Sound—that was to make known the name Tacoma to all the world—have marked the project from the hour Bromley landed his ship from Los Angeles and was hurried away without shaking hands with all his backers.

One man, who donated approximately $2,500 today, declared "I bought this plane and I am going to tell them what to do."

The outburst was typical. There are many who are going to tell Bromley what to do, and in the meantime that little man smiles a now wan smile, and hopes the weather will soon be favorable on that 4,700 mile route to Tokio.

TOO MANY MANAGERS?

It may be that too many managers have had an effect on him and his plans. Today he told newspapermen that he intended to take off at 5 a.m. Sunday. It was the most definite statement he had made. A few minutes later word went out that the flight would not be started until Monday or Tuesday, as a new part for a compass had to be brought from Los Angeles.

Fog, rain and unfavorable winds in the vicinity of the Aleutian Islands have served during the week to delay the departure of the flier. He had been banqueted and his plane officially christened, and he asked, "Why all this fuss, when I've done nothing yet?"

At first it was announced that the flight would be started at dawn, between 3 a.m. and 4 a.m., as soon as weather conditions would permit, and that the takeoff would be made without public announcement. Later statements were that Bromley would leave the field at 5 a.m., well after daylight had appeared. This evening Lieutenant Bromley announced that he would take off as soon as the weather permits and it is now breaking.

Deep Waterways Not Considered To Be Feasible

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The Institute of Economics of the Brookings Institute has reached the conclusion that the St. Lawrence deep waterway and power scheme is not at the present time desirable or feasible.

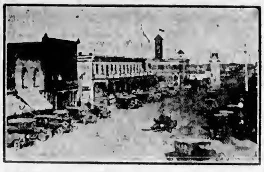
These analysts find the development would cost, roughly, $1,000,000,000, of which $414,000,000 are assignable to navigation and $385,000,000 to power development. Annual overhead charges to navigation are estimated at $36,000,000.

Discussing probable traffic over the route, the writers find that it will be used only by tramp and coastwise vessels, and estimate that 10,500,000 short tons of traffic might use the waterway if it were completed by 1940. Of this total, it is assumed that 60 per cent represents grain, of which two-thirds would be of Canadian origin.

SINGAPORE NAVAL BASE

LONDON, July 27.—It was learned in responsible quarters today that the British Government is now in communication with the Australian Government on the subject of the construction of the Singapore naval base.

Fire-Swept Alberta Town



THE photograph here shows part of the business section of Wainwright, Alta., which was swept by a fire that left only four business houses standing and reaped a toll of $750,000 damage. Wainwright is 127 miles east of Edmonton. The residential section escaped damage.

New Owl May Have Habitat At Gordon Head

It is possible that a new species of owl has been located at Gordon Head. Dr. L. B. Bishop, a noted ornithologist of the United States, who lives now at Pasadena, but who spends considerable time on Vancouver Island each Summer, announced this fact to the joint meeting of the Ornithological Society of British Columbia and the Northwest Bird and Mammal Society, which has its largest membership in the State of Washington.

Dr. Bishop has been making a special study of late of the plumage of gulls and owls, and in the course of his address before the meeting of the societies yesterday afternoon he ventured the opinion that it was possible that there was an owl among the varieties located at Gordon Head which might be a distinct species. Some further research will have to be made before a decision is reached.

QUEER RESULTS FROM HEAT ARE EXPERIENCED

Everything Blamed on It in Midwest, From Apathy of Cupid to Frost-Bitten Fingers

ALL RECORDS ARE DECLARED BROKEN

CHICAGO, July 27 (United Press).—Everything from Cupid's sympathy to frost-bitten fingers was blamed on the heat in the Midwest today.

From the Corn Belt and the Great Plains States came reports of strange happenings attributed to temperatures which ranged from 90 to 106 degrees in the shade.

Business sections of cities like Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis and Kansas City were deserted by noon as the mercury crawled upward and residents swarmed into congested terminals seeking transportation to lakes, rivers and mountain resorts for the week-end.

From Des Moines came the report that the heat was depressing the marriage market and booming divorces. During the last week the clerk of the District Court in the Iowa capital issued only nine marriage licences, while the court granted twenty-two divorces.

At Reinbeck, in the same State, J. J. Mulder cranked away at an ice cream freezer with one hand while letting the cold brine drain out over his other hand.

"I thought it would help keep me cool, as it was 90 degrees in my backyard," Mulder said at the hospital, where he was treated for four frozen fingers.

In Chicago the mercury reached 90 before noon today and standing room only was available along the beach sections of the city's 50-mile lake front.

Records of long standing were broken in the Northwest as the climax of a six-day heat wave, in which the thermometers registered as high as 106 degrees.

Bleriot Made First Flight 20 Years Ago

DOVER, Eng., July 27.—Louis Bleriot, French aeronautical pioneer, flew the English Channel today. Twenty years ago that same news sped around the world and recorded the first flight ever made between France and England.

Today Bleriot landed close to the monument which commemorates his historic crossing, and then hurried on to London, where he was feted tonight on the twentieth anniversary of his first air trip across the Channel.

PEACE RIVER AREA MAY BE OIL SOURCE

DEPARTMENT IS RETICENT AS YET

Northeastern British Columbia may be the next area in which an active onslaught will be made in the search for oil. The Peace River country, which has for a long time promised well along this line, is attracting attention again, and it is said that the Government will be approached shortly with a proposition looking to the boring of prospective wells on the ground.

Some years ago there was a move made in this direction, looking to the obtaining of rights in the Peace River section of British Columbia. The D'Arcy Company, which was organized at that time, and which sought rights there, claimed that not only were some of the strongest corporations in the United Kingdom represented in the plan, but that the Government of Great Britain was really behind the proposition as an interested party.

When the proposal was placed before the Minister of Lands of that day, Mr. T. D. Pattullo, the privileges sought to be obtained were refused, and, instead, Mr. Pattullo said that the Provincial Government, through his department would do some exploring.

An experimental plant was ordered to be sent into the country to carry on boring, but it is now stated that it was inadequate, and little or nothing was really accomplished. The plant lies now, it is stated, at Pouce Coupe, in a dismantled state.

In the move that was made at that time for the taking of rights there, the name of Mr. Charles F. Law, of Vancouver, well known in mining enterprises, and formerly representing the Lord Rhondda interests in this province and in Alberta, was prominently mentioned.

His name has again been associated with the new move, but no confirmation, so far, of his connection with it could be obtained.

The details of the concessions to be asked of the Government relative to experimental boring, could not be obtained.

FOUND "NOT GUILTY"

BERLIN, Hugo Stinnes, Jr., son of the German post-war industrial magnate, was declared not guilty today of attempting to defraud the German Government in operations with German war loan bonds.

City Land Sales To Date in 1929 Total $4,150,000

THE declared values of titles issued to new owners by the sale and transfer of property in the city from January 1 to July 17 amounted to $4,150,000. During the first half of July property to the value of $351,760 changed hands. This showed favorable comparison with the June sales, which totaled $622,910.

During the present month business premises on Yates Street changed hands for a sum of $65,000, and other sales between the $25,000 and $26,000 mark are also listed in both residential and business type property. Local purchasers and newcomers on visits here divided the amount in about equal proportions.

WE WILL BE IN GRIP OF A MONOPOLY

Conservative Leader Declares Dumping May Quickly Be Stopped by Order-in-Council

GOVT. TREATIES SHOW INCAPACITY

Protests That New Zealand Butter Is Replacing Products of Canadian Dairy Farms

SALMON ARM, B.C., July 27.—In the northern belt of the Okanagan Valley, Mr. R. B. Bennett, here this afternoon, returned to the question of conditions among the fruit and vegetable growers of this country. Today the Conservative leader addressed a mass meeting in the municipal park, which was gaily decorated for the occasion. It was the third and concluding speech of the week on the Pacific Coast tour of the Opposition chieftain. Immediately following his address, Mr. Bennett left for Vancouver, where he will arrive tomorrow. On Monday he will resume his itinerary with a speech at Britannia.

DUMPED PRODUCTS

"When our fruits and vegetables are getting ripe, the United States is dumping its products into this country and destroying the markets for our Canadian fruit and vegetable growers," Mr. Bennett declared. He then put the question: "What is going to happen when you allow the American growers to destroy the orchards of the Okanagan Valley, the Niagara and the Land of Evangeline. I don't mean by cutting them down, but I mean by taking our home markets from our own growers and by not making it worth while for them to grow these products. We will be in the grip of a monopoly, and by a monopoly I mean a foreign monopoly, and that monopoly will fix the prices. It will not consider our consumers in the fixing of the prices we will have to pay."

"YOU ARE RIGHT"

"That is quite correct and you are right," shouted a voice from the audience. "Tell them that everywhere."

"I have and I will," the Conservative leader retorted. "I have not one story here and another story there."

Mr. Bennett then made reference

M. POINCARE DECIDES UPON RESIGNATION

For Tenth Time M. Aristide Briand Will Be His Successor and Head New Administration

TAKES OFFICE AT CRITICAL TIME

PARIS, July 27.—Premier Raymond Poincare definitely refused to reconsider his resignation as head of the French Government today, so telling Louis Barthou and Aristide Briand, members of his Cabinet who called upon him to urge his remaining as nominal premier. An official announcement said the entire Cabinet has resigned.

VETERAN STATESMAN

Aristide Briand, for years French Foreign Minister, and internationally known for his efforts in the cause of peace, for the tenth time in his long career will be French Premier.

The veteran statesman, who has been in Cabinets since 1906, this evening accepted a mandate from President Doumergue to form a ministry in succession to the Cabinet which resigned this morning after Premier Poincare had definitely decided he must retire because of the condition of his health.

M. Briand was Foreign Minister in this Cabinet.

The foreign affairs expert thus will again head the French ministry at the time when France is facing, at the coming Hague Conference, the question of final liquidation of the war. M. Briand took up an admittedly delicate task in consolidating various opposing groups in Parliament into a ministry "as a patriotic duty," after the leaders of most of the parties had told President Doumergue that he was the man of the moment.

SYRIA AROUSED BY KILLING OF NATIVE LEADER

Assassination of Maronite Christian, in Damascus, Involves Eminent Moslem —Slayer Detected

NO ARREST MADE OF INSTIGATOR

DAMASCUS, July 27.—Throughout Syria and the Grand Lebanon the principal subject of conversation is the murder of Daoud Shemali, a Maronite Christian of Lebanese origin, who was a prominent Damascus lawyer. The circumstances of the crime and the official failure to punish the guilty have aroused public indignation throughout the whole Near East.

The principal perpetrator of the crime has not been arrested. One of the most prominent local Christian residents stated that this murder might lead to cruel bloodshed between Christians and Moslems in Syria if the instigator is not brought to justice soon

While Mr. Shemali was at work in his law offices in the heart of Damascus he was informed that Mahmud Sidou Shikhani wished to see him. The lawyer welcomed the visitor, who asked him to accompany the caller to the house of a rich old lady, who wanted to discuss with him an important case, but who, because weak, could not come to Shemali's office.

The lawyer went with Shikhani, who led him through a maze of narrow, half-deserted streets. Coming to a corner, the messenger suddenly fell upon the attorney, striking him from behind with a thick rod and dealing him several glows on the head which left him motionless on the ground, after which the assailant took flight.

The victim recovered consciousness after a few minutes, and staggering to his feet, managed to make his way to the nearest police station, where he reported what had happened, giving the name and a description of the culprit. Shemali, taken to a hospital, died after two hours of a fractured skull.

SLAYER DETECTED

Two days later the murderer, disguised as a veiled Moslem woman, was arrested. He did not deny the crime, but declared he had acted on behalf of another, by whom he was paid for the deed. He disclosed the name of the principal, which was that of no less a personage than Omar Bey El Youssef — a name, which, to every resident of Damascus, signifies the aristocracy and and wealth of this ancient city.

With this name revealed, the motive of the crime became clear. The victim had been engaged in an important lawsuit against the El Youssef family. He had managed to bring the litigation to a stage where everything favored his client and refused to be corrupted by bribes or intimidations. This aroused the anger of the losers, and the murder was the result of their wrath.

Everyone is wondering why the alleged principal party has not been arrested. The Juge d'Instruction, a Christian of Lebanese origin, has requested that he be relieved of the task of investigating this case. Rumor bases his decision on the fact that the government has refused to arrest Omar Bay El Youssef and that pressure had been exercised from many sources on the Juge d'Instruction in an effort to quiet, as far as possible, the entire matter for the El Youssef family.

The attitude of the government in respect to this murder has aroused bitter feeling among all Christians as well as among enlightened Mohammedans. Politics, the main concern of every Syrian, was supplanted for once. Practically the entire press of the country is devoting its front pages to the sensation.

LAWYERS UP IN ARMS

The Lawyers' Syndicate, which counts among its members a large number of the country's most influential Mohammedans, has sent to the government an indignant protest against the aloofness maintained by the latter. The case has taken on the aspect of a Moslem vs. Christian controversy

The ever-existing bone of contention between the Syrians and the French, the mandatory power, on the question of Syria's independence and the extreme jealousy prevailing among the Mohammedans throughout Syria and the Lebanon because of the favoritism shown and the support granted to the Maronites, who constitute the majority of the Christian population in Syria and the Lebanon, lead political circles to believe that the murder of Mr. Shemali will be the kindling of long-existing smoldering flames.

At the funeral services the Maronite priest of Damascus delivered a eulogy in which he said.

"The criminal hand that struck this innocent victim hit the Syrian nation in the heart and will surely tarnish its reputation and honor if the nation does not condemn this horrible deed and require and help the Government to administer merciless punishment to the criminals."

PRESIDENT PLEASED WITH SETTLEMENT

WASHINGTON, July 27.—President Hoover, in expressing gratification today that France had ratified the Mellon-Berenger debt agreement, told the American people that this settlement in effect wipes out the entire war indebtedness of France and simply provides for the payment of advances to France made after the Armistice.

"Liza, you remind me fo' all the the world af brown sugar."

"How come, Sammy?"

"You am so sweet and so unrefined."

ELECTION CAMPAIGN IN MEXICO PEACEFUL

MEXICO CITY, July 27.—Not only has peace between Church and State been achieved in Mexico, but the political arena shows no signs of producing one of those unfortunate upheavals that have so often resulted in bloodshed as presidential elections approach.

Pascual Ortiz Rubio, the candidate of the Grand Revolutionary party, and Jose Vasconcelos, candidate of the Anti-Re-electionists, have been chosen to contest the succession as constitutional executive to the mantle of Provisional President Emilio Portes Gil. Senor Ortiz Rubio is engaged in an extensive campaign tour, but Senor Vasconcelos, who was nominated only a few days ago, has not had time to start on his

Without minimising the possibilities of any Mexican political situation, there does seem today to be a chance that Mexico's best executive will be elected at the polls and not by any political or military caucus, as has happened so often.

to the extension of the provisions of the Australian trade treaty to New Zealand and the increasing quantities of New Zealand butter which were replacing the Canadian products as a consequence.

"The treaties the present Government have negotiated are a monument to the incapacity of the men who negotiated them," he exclaimed.

"One would think," Mr Bennett proceeded, "that a Government in office would do everything in its power to remedy conditions.

"But," he remarked, "it may be that some may think they are doing a favor by staying in power."

ISSUED CHALLENGE

He had, Mr. Bennett continued, only recently challenged the statement of one of the ministers of the Government that the administration would look after the interests of the people of the country by asking the Government to invoke the dumping provisions against the glut products of the United States being thrown into the Dominion. The Conservative party, during its brief tenure of office in 1926, had passed the necessary order-in-council in this regard, but the Government had rescinded it.

"The Government can do this by order-in-council," the Opposition leader declared. "They do not have to wait for Parliament. They have not yet passed that order-in-council.

"They never will," interjected one of the listeners.

"They may before a general election," Mr Bennett returned, "and then they will tell you not to vote for a Conservative and to look at what they had just done."

WILL PREVENT GROWTH

American farmers and manufacturers were endeavoring to sell their goods in Canada, the Conservative leader said, "and to the extent that they succeed they will prevent Canadian development." At the same time, the United States was raising the tariff for the protection of its domestic markets for the same farmers and consumers, against Canadian goods. Yet the Dominion Government had adopted a "wait and see" policy, a policy of inactivity, and our men and women had to leave the country to find jobs.

"That is not right," a woman in the audience interrupted.

"I see there is at least one good lady with me," the Opposition leader replied.

"You are a bachelor," humorously interjected a man in the outskirts of the crowd.

SIR GEORGE PERLEY COMING

It is announced that Hon. Sir George Perley, K.C.M.G., member for Argenteuil, will be present at the picnic, together with General A. D. McRae, organiser for the party throughout the Dominion, as well as many of the Conservative Senators and members of the House of Commons, as well as members of the Provincial Legislature.

The picnic, which is to take place in the Willows Beach Park, is one of a series of most successful ones which have been held there under the auspices of the Victoria Conservatives. The forthcoming event should surpass its predecessors in point of attendance and in enthusiasm.

Special provision has been made for elderly people at the park. Chairs will be provided, so that they may not be fatigued by standing for any long time. Amplifiers have been arranged so that all may hear the addresses.

SPORTS ATTRACTIONS

But while attention is to be given to the speeches the sports side of the picnic has by no means been forgotten. A very full programme has been provided in all lines. The tug-of-war contest, which is always an outstanding event of the gathering, will start at 4 o'clock

The refreshments will be in the hands of a well-known caterer, so the iner man can be well looked after, and hot water will be supplied to those that bring their own picnic baskets, a number of picnic side shows having been arranged

The band of the Fifth Artillery Brigade will be in attendance from 2 o'clock until 9 o'clock. In this connection an innovation is to be introduced in the provision for dancing on the green to the accompaniment of the band, following the speech making.

Peasants Fight Portuguese Law Banning Witches

LISBON, July 27.—A campaign is being waged against the practice of witchcraft. Throughout the country there are hundreds of witches, or what the Portuguese call "bruxas," pronounced "bruches." For hundreds of years the witches have preyed upon the ignorance of the peasants and servants.

In an effort to abolish the practice, many stories of different methods of extorting money from victims of superstition have been uncovered. One of the most common practices is to approach a servant in the home of a well-to-do family and convince her of the powers of witchcraft. Then it is an easy matter for the witch to exact a token of gold, linen, silver and silk, in return for which the witch would deliver to the ignorant victim a powder to be sprinkled in the shoes of the one she desires to marry, or put into his food. The results promised are that the object of the poor girl's affection will immediately fall in love with her and ask her hand in marriage. In the meantime the servant generally lands in jail where the story of the theft is revealed.

Instances have recently been revealed in the north of Portugal, where illiteracy is more general, where whole families have been under the influence of a witch for years. Various ills are treated with herbs, and weird and strange practices such as dieting to the point of starvation are employed. In Lisbon recently a raid was made on the home of a witch where several beds were occupied by patients. In answer to a question as to what percentage of "cures" she made, the witch replied. "All those that don't die, I cure."

The effort to jail the witches is proceeding under difficulties because of the tendency on the part of the victims to protect the practitioner. The stories of marvelous things done by various witches come down from one generation to another and remain fixed in the minds of the illiterate Portugese, and it will take time and a great deal of education to eradicate witchcraft from the country.

One Man Killed, Others Injured In Auto Crash

SASKATOON, July 27.—One man was killed, another seriously injured and a third man and a young married couple sustained minor hurts in an accident which occurred on the Dundurn Highway at about 1.30 o'clock this morning and which involved two automobiles.

The dead man is Donald Cavenor, about twenty-five years old, a farmer living two miles south of Young and driver of one of the cars.

Lester Reid, his partner, passenger with him, suffered slight facial injuries. Leo Karat, of the Kenaston district, driver of the other car, sustained lacerations and injury to his shoulder. Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Grindheim, passengers with Karat, sustained minor injuries.

LATIN AMERICA INSURES WITH BRITISH FIRMS

San Salvador Coffee Merchant Says This Is Due to Prompt Payment of Losses After Frisco Fire

SMALL REPUBLIC IS PROSPEROUS

Commercial honesty pays, according to Mr. A. Guirola, coffee merchant, of San Salvador, who is registered at the Dominion Hotel on a tour of the Pacific Coast.

He says that the reason why the British and Canadian fire companies have the bulk of the business in fire protection in Central America is owing to the fact that they paid their losses after the great San Francisco fire in full, while the American companies paid percentages, and some of the Continental European companies disowned responsibility.

This circumstance in 1906 was widely reported through the Latin Americas, and has established the reputation of the British for commercial thoroughness.

It is rarely that Victoria is visited by a resident of the small country facing the Pacific which has the second densest population in the world. That density is attributed by Mr. Guirola to the fact that agricultural production has reached such a high standard in his country. Coffee, sugar and other staple products are raised in large amounts and so high does the quality of its coffee rank in the great markets of the world that it commands a premium there.

The varying altitudes of the republic provide opportunity for all kinds of crops, and Mr Guirola says there are a number of fruits raised which never reach the United States or Canada, as well as those familiar to tropical agriculture.

Business with Canada is increasing, with promise of expansion in a number of lines. While soft woods are in demand, some of the finest hard woods for furniture, capable of taking a high polish, are found in El Salvador.

He hopes, after seeing the Canadian Rockies, that tourist bureau work will be done in San Salvador which is a city of 200,000 and the second largest in Central America as he believes there are many prosperous people who would like to make the northern tour. While his people know something of Eastern Canada, few have any knowledge of the attractions of British Columbia.

More than 5,000 diggers took part in the diamond rush when the South African Government recently opened farms in the Elizabeth district of Lichtenburg, reputed to be rich in diamond deposits.

FRANCE'S HEIR IS PREPARED FOR DUTIES

"Dauphin" Now an Exile—Made Count of Paris Recently—Title Antedates Crown

ROYALIST PARTY SENTIMENT LIVES

PARIS, July 27. (New York Herald-Tribune Radio).—Since July 5 the French Royalists have had an official heir to the phantom throne of France. On that date Prince Henri, the only son of Jean, Duc de Guise, whom the Monarchists here consider as their king, became of age, and the title of Count of Paris was conferred upon him by his father.

This title is one of the oldest in France. It existed long before the French kingdom was created. Many sons of kings have held it, and, by giving it to his heir, the Duc de Guise has officially named him "Dauphin" of France, the next pretender to his shadow kingdom.

MAY BECOME HENRY V

If some day a miracle happens and the French people choose to restore monarchy in their country, Prince Henri may become King Henry V. But meanwhile he has not even the right to live in France. Both he and his father are exiled from their land, as the republic fears they might foster a plot to regain their throne.

When the former pretender, the Duc d'Orleans, died in his English home at Twickenham, the Duc de Guise and his son were obliged to leave France. They have since lived in their castle of Anjou, in Belgium, spending also several months of the year in their palace at Palermo and at their farm in Spanish Morocco. Since his early childhood Prince Henri has liked farming. He knows all about sheep-breeding and has developed it on a large scale on his land near Larache.

DUC LIVED MODEST LIFE

Before inheriting from the Duc d'Orleans the title of pretender to the throne, the Duc de Guise lived a modest life and his four children have been prepared to work for their existence. His three daughters, one of whom has become the niece of the King of Italy, have spent their childhood riding wild horses in the Moroccan desert.

But though his father had but modest means Prince Henri's education has been most careful. From his earliest years he was made to understand that he was a direct descendant of forty kings, who, in a thousand years, created one of the most powerful states in the world. He was taught many languages and took an intense interest in the history of his country. He is now considered a scholar in history, political economy and law.

Unable to enter college in France, he followed courses in Louvain University and studied much at home. He spends his days at the Manoir d'Anjou reading books, newspapers and scientific magazines. Military science and modern warfare also have been thoroughly explained to him by his tutor, General de Gondrecourt, for a prince who might eventually become king should know all about making war.

HOPE OF ROYALISTS

In fact, the Royalists have pin much greater hope upon the young Count of Paris than upon his father. The Duc de Guise is fifty-five years old. It is unlikely the miracle of restoration will happen soon, and he may die before the French people tire of the republic.

Besides, he is not prepared for the throne, his education being poorer than that of his son. The eyes of the followers of the Action Francaise are centred around Prince Henri, whose popularity would increase immensely if he should make the gesture expected from him.

Being of military age, he should, like his grandfather, the Duke of Orleans, secretly enter France and arrive at a recruiting office to announce that he, a son of France, Count of Paris, has come to serve in his country's army. The Republican authorities kept his grandfather in prison for three months for such a move, but in the eyes of the French Monarchists the danger should only stimulate the young prince.

MOTHER ACTIVE

His mother, the Duchess de Guise, has been active during the last years paving the way for her son. Not being barred from France, she often is in Paris, and has visited the various French provinces, receiving freely all Monarchists, talking to them about Prince Henri.

On one occasion she was openly cheered in a Paris street as the Queen. She has succeeded to a certain extent in rallying some of the Action Francaise troops, scattered a few years ago by the break between Royalist chiefs and the Vatican. But, despite all her efforts, their numbers are not high. The Royalist quarters calculate on 300,000. Even if this figure is not exaggerated, the Monarchists are far too few to start a coup d'etat against the Third Republic.

DOCTORS NEED LONG TRAINING

Physician Tells Why Governments Require Certain Qualifications From Those Practising Medicine

YEARS OF STUDY PRECEDE DEGREE

By DR. GORDON BATES

General Secretary, Canadian Social Hygiene Council

Who is a doctor?

How is it that the governments and peoples of every civilized nation in the world single out one group of men—and nowadays, of women too—and say to them, "You are doctors, and in your hands we place our social and individual health. You and you alone may use the hallowed title 'Doctor of Medicine,' and, by virtue of that title, heal the sick and preserve the well"?

Perhaps the best answer to that question is this. Imagine, if you can, the condition that would exist if the medical profession were not so recognized. Suppose that any man who had the laudable ambition to heal his fellow men of their ills could, without any supervision, call himself "Doctor" and begin cutting people up and dosing them with potations of his own concoction. What an epidemic of horrible deaths there would be! How quickly the public's present profound respect for the title "Doctor" would be changed to the deepest distrust!

What, then, is the medical profession, and how does it maintain the high standard that this great public confidence demands? Let us consider what the Province of Ontario expects of a man who would practise medicine. Its requirements are typical of those of the rest of Canada.

To become a medical student, one must first pass his honor matriculation. That takes five years. After that, he must spend another six years at a recognized medical school.

It is hard to adequately suggest, in a sketchy article of this nature, the vast scope of a modern medical curriculum. The neophyte must learn physics, chemistry, biology, physiology, pharmacology, anatomy, histology (involving an understanding of the microscopic structure of the body).

From these basic studies, all of which, where they touch the human being, deal merely with the normal, the student then proceeds to pathology, the study of sickness, in its different aspects, pathological chemistry, bacteriology and immunology, medicine and surgery in all their branches, preventive medicine hygiene.

It is still harder for the reader to appreciate the vast historical background, the great wealth and richness of meaning of all of those terms—of the tremendous accumulation of knowledge that a would-be doctor must painstakingly acquire. And when he has spent six long years acquiring it, it is then customary for him to spend one or more, often two, years as an interne in a hospital. So that a youth of nineteen who finishes his honor matric and starts to "go through for a doctor" knows that he will be about twenty-eight before he starts earning anything. And even then it will take him another five years before he begins to earn more than enough for the ordinary necessities of life.

TIME SPENT LEARNING

In the meantime he has spent from six to eight years learning his profession, he has had to master all the old, as well as all the new branches of medicine, he has passed a number of stiff examinations—made extra stiff in order to keep an already crowded profession from becoming overcrowded. (And from this extraordinary severity of examination the general public is obviously the greatest gainer, since only the more intelligent, reliable students succeed in passing.)

He has spent an absolute minimum of $1,000 a year for six years, including $150 for tuition, $100 for books and equipment, which leaves very little for room, board, clothing and incidentals, to say nothing of amusements.

But in passing through those years of test and trial and hard work he has become legitimate heir to all the tested medical knowledge that mankind has ever acquired and saved. The wisdom of long-dead leeches has been poured into him, and he has become greater than any of them—greater by virtue of his greater knowledge, a scientist, able to work by degrees from the known to the unknown.

And for the privileges that society accords the physician it expects, and is almost invariably accorded, a tenfold return. There is no other division of mankind, with the possible exception of clergymen, that gives away, gratis, more of its time, energy and knowledge than do the doctors.

A doctor does an enormous amount of work for which he is not paid. Common humanity demands that he answer any serious call made upon him, at any hour of the day or night, even if he knows that the patient cannot pay. In a way this is unjust. No one expects the keeper of a grocery store to give away his goods, even though there may be people starving for lack of them. Yet a doctor is expected to do just that—and in most cases he does.

Prairie Farmers Get One Dollar First Payment

WINNIPEG, July 27.—The initial payment for the 1929 crop has been set at $1 per bushel, N. B. Ramsay, general manager of the Canadian wheat pool, announced today.

"One dollar per bushel has been the initial price paid by the pools since the inception of the Canadian wheat pool in 1924, with the exception of last year when it was lowered to eighty-five cents per bushel," Mr Ramsay said.

"We are satisfied that the step then taken by our central board developments in recent months has been amply justified by market," he added.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops and that colic or constipation is relieved, or diarrhoea checked. A vegetable product, a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use, in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

OTTAWA'S REFUSAL

The Federal Department of Marine and Fisheries has refused to listen to protests from Vancouver Island against the new regulation which limits the catching of salmon and grilse in certain tidal waters in British Columbia. The Chamber of Commerce of this city urged that the regulation, as it applies to limiting the number of grilse allowed to be caught, should be amended. Ottawa will not acquiesce. Its fishery officials claim that they know best what is in the interests of sportsmen, although sportsmen as a whole in this vicinity are strongly averse to the new order and claim that it will seriously militate against sporting activities in nearby waters, without being, to any appreciable degree, a conservation measure.

The Department of Marine and Fisheries says it is "confident that the new provision is a highly desirable one and will be in the best permanent interest of all concerned," and even hints that the Department has been considering a general prohibition of the catching of grilse by sportsmen. The attitude of Ottawa is not encouraging to those who have given a great deal of time and thought to sporting facilities in tidal waters in this province. It does not help the cause of lowering the cost of living by allowing private individuals to replenish their larders without paying exorbitant prices for a prolific food supply on this coast. The interests which govern the regulations relating to the fishery resources of this province are apparent in the character of the prohibitions issued from time to time. There is another illustration of this in the one-sided character of the Sockeye Salmon Fisheries Treaty which has been ratified between Washington and Ottawa, but which has not received the approval of the respective legislative bodies.

ROAD-BUILDING

There are some factors which should govern the laying out and construction of roods in an age when more highways than ever before are being constructed, when huge sums are involved in the task, and when, as a consequence, the taxpayers have to bear a heavy burden. In brief, such a system should be devised as will obviate the waste of public funds in construction and maintenance. In the first place the present system in so many places of allowing road widths far wider than the pavement planned means that land which might otherwise be used for cultivation is wasted. On either side of many of our roadways there are strips, and sometimes wide strips, which act as a nursing ground for noxious weeds, which in turn spread themselves over the adjoining land. They are an eyesore to those who use the roads. There is little or no attempt at beautification. In other words, we have paved strips for transportation flanked on either side by rank vegetation which offends the aesthetic sense.

Yet another cause of wastage on the roadways is the effort of engineers to adhere to uniform gradients. This method, where pursued too closely, lends itself to ugliness, but the most serious part of it is the matter of expense. It means many cuttings and embankments, bridges and culverts, which are the most substantial forms of expense in road construction. The primary purpose of roads should be for serviceable uses, for ordinary transportation facilities, they should have durable pavements to withstand the heavy traffic of the time; they should be wide to minimize the danger of accidents, and economic considerations should govern their construction. It is for the many, not the few, that roads are built, and yet the fact that so many cuttings and embankments, bridges and culverts go to the mounting cost of highway construction would seem to imply that there is no limit to the amount of money available for improving this means of traffic. What the engineers and governments responsible seem to forget is that the beauty of the countryside can be as much wrecked as opened up by the construction of roads. There is a lesson to be learned in this respect from the Romans, the greatest road-builders of all. Their roads in their construction preserved the amenities of the countryside and saved money in the process.

SEVERN BARRAGE SCHEME

The people of the Old Country are on the qui vive for the report on the Severn barrage scheme, which is about due after nine years of profound consideration. Since this great hydro-electric development scheme was first officially promulgated by the Ministry of Transport in 1920 the public have been waiting with anxious expectancy for the verdict of the committee to which the matter has been entrusted for investigation and report. The committee had instructions to make an exhaustive review of all the physical, technical, financial and economic data affecting the problem. Before however, such a scheme could be undertaken, or even entertained, it was wisely considered a fundamental preliminary to make a searching examination of the matter in all its bearings on the existing order of things, and its possible effects on the future, not, of course, excepting its bearing on the unemployment problem.

Under these circumstances the greatest care has been exercised in examining the basic principles on which the scheme rests, and in ascertaining over the widest possible area the probable effects, event to a remote degree, of the proposed works. This has necessitated an extensive and detailed survey over the whole terrain, with observations of tides, currents, rainfalls, floods and other natural phenomena, which have had to be collected patiently over a lengthy period. Physical and meteorological data have had to be assembled with great care.

Among the fears which are entertained and have been expressed in opposition to the scheme, especially against a barrage across the Severn, is that such an obstruction, by reason of its interference with the normal tidal regimen, would tend to create an accumulation of silt in the channel and so cause shoaling in the lower reaches of the river, particularly at King's Roads, at the mouth of the Avon, in which case the commercial and shipping interests of the port of Bristol would be seriously and even vitally affected. The above consideration is but one of the knotty problems involved before a definite decision to proceed with the vast undertaking.

If a reasonable case can be made out for the prosecution of this great enterprise it will be a consideration of the highest national importance. The scheme will have the effect of developing some half million horse power for industrial purposes from the tidal energy of the Severn, which at the present time is fruitlessly dissipated. The project is comparable with some of the most notable hydro-electric development schemes in any country, even where water power is plentiful. In Great Britain, with its limited resources and negligible hydro-electric production, it is relatively a gigantic proposal.

MOTORING SPEED LIMITS

An inquiry made in Britain into motoring accidents last year shows that excessive speed is by far the chief contributory cause of deaths and injuries. The deaths in Britain in 1928 were 6,138 and the injuries 164,838, figures which led the late Home Secretary to remark "that the most dangerous occupation in life is that of a pedestrian." In London alone there were 19,000 prosecutions for exceeding speed limits. In view of the established fact that speeding is the main cause of accidents it is an extraordinary commentary on the traffic to find motorists advocating that all speed limits should be abolished. It is where such abolition has taken place that accidents have multiplied. Speed limits are an essential to safety on the road and must continue to be an essential so long as anyone, even the unfit and incompetent, is permitted to drive a motor car.

Under the new naval shipbuilding programme in the United States, which provides for fifteen cruisers, two contracts have already been awarded, one for a vessel to be constructed at the Puget Sound Navy Yard and the other to be built by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company. The former will cost $8,838,000, and the latter $10,753,000. The cruisers are to be of 10,000 tons, and 600 feet long. They will carry main batteries of eight-inch guns, and will be equipped with engines of 100,000 horse power. The naval programme provides as well for three more cruisers to be begun this year, or five in all projected during 1929.

The future of Prohibition in the United States is dependent on the ability of the people of that country to submit indefinitely to repressive legislation. If the rule of Prohibition is indefinite then the English-speaking people in America will have created a precedent. Those who think that the present Prohibition law will not last think in similar terms to Dr. William S. Thayer, the president of the American Medical Association, who says: "In the long run we English-speaking people will not endure tyranny."

Even in these days when the cost of living is like the sparks, which ever fly upwards, there are compensations—when man curbs his grasping spirit. An hotel has been opened on the Liverpool docks where rooms are only a shilling a night, where a bath costs a penny and a week's board is only a pound. This would not have been projected unless it was foreseen that it would pay—without undue profits. The odds are that the hotel will be fully patronized all the time and that scores of similar hotels will be established.

THE RED, UNRIVALED ROSE

Lovely in form, each perfect petal taking
  Its proper place within thy rubied cup,
With dew upon thy golden stamens making
  Nectar on which Olympian gods might sup.

Drenched in rich carmine! To my nostrils stealing
  Perfume intoxicating—Nature's dower—
O'ercoming every sense and every feeling!
  Beauteous adornment of the Loved One's bower!

Red of the heart, whose passion love discloses;
  Gold of intrinsic worth, by all acclaimed;
Green leaves of wisdom—O thou Queen of Roses,
  Rightly to thee belongs undying fame!

Well may thy praise be twined with ancient glory
  In painting, sculpture, poetry, and prose
For all our past and all our future story
  Glows with thy richness; peerless, royal rose!

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Although a place of great tribulation to many people, life is worth living in this worst or best of all possible worlds—for while there may occasionally be reasons why angels should weep when they see what is going on in this world, there are many reasons why men should be moved to hilarious laughter at the absurd actions of their fellow-men in this jolly old world. And the most absurd of the actions of our fellow-men are usually the absurd actions of men who appear to be endowed with no sense of humor.

* * *

The man who sits in the highest place in Canada today as a consequence of the absurdity of the political views of an apparent majority of the people has never been charged with possessing the slightest sense of humor. In fact, Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King would probably be indignant if he were charged with possessing either a sense of humor or a capacity for appreciating a humorous situation, even if that humorous situation were of his own unconscious creation. The Premier is a very ponderous and extremely dignified person. He is too ponderous and dignified to be caught in the act of relaxing and enjoying a joke, frivolous action or turn of speech. There is but one known thing that he appreciates. That is his own personal importance.

* * *

And yet Mr. King has, of course unwittingly, perpetrated a huge joke upon the people of Canada, and the people of Canada, instead of hugely enjoying that huge joke, are contemplating it as seriously as Mr. King contemplates his own ponderous and dignified person and exalted position. The joke was originally perpetrated upon the Parliament of Canada. The Parliament of Canada could not see it, and sent it on to the Imperial Privy Council in the hope that that learned judicial body might see it. Counsel learned in the law, and therefore very highly paid by the people of Canada, have been sent across the water to point out the joke to the erudite gentlemen of the Imperial Privy Council. Mr King keeps a number of political retainers in his train waiting for remunerative jobs of that kind. That is one of the humorous features of Mr. King's prize joke.

* * *

The point Mr King's learned retainer has been trying for several days (at a cost of hundreds of dollars a day plus generous traveling and living expenses) to make clear or obscure to the erudite gentlemen of the Privy Council is that the women of Canada either are or are not "persons" within the technical or political meaning of the term, and therefore technically or politically qualified to sit in the Senate of Canada. Of Course the Parliament of Canada, which happens for the time being to be subject to the leadership of Rt. Hon William Lyon Mackenzie King, could have decided that delicately humorous point "off its own bat" if it had been led by anybody who could see the point of the joke. And, whatever the decision of the Privy Council, the Parliament of Canada will ultimately decide that the women of Canada are "persons" within the technical and political meaning of the law and therefore eligible to sit in the Senate of Canada cheek by jowl with the men, just as Lady Astor (the woman with a serpent's whispering tongue) sits cheek by jowl with Mr. Jack Jones (the man who declares that he is a better man than the woman, drunk or sober").

* * *

The point of the joke which is likely to prove so unnecessarily expensive to the people of Canada is that if the women of Canada are eligible to sit in the House of Commons, the women of Canada logically are eligible to sit in the Senate of Canada, and they will sit there sooner or later whatever the decision of the erudite gentlemen of the Imperial Privy Council. The women of Canada will insist upon their political rights, and they will have them. Mr. King, although he is a bachelor, knows enough about the ways of women to know that in the end he will have to surrender and bow to the ambitious women as they enter the Red Chamber and take their seats by the sides of "the honorable gentlemen of the Senate." Mr. King also knows that several Liberal ladies have been knocking at the door of the desirable Upper Chamber for a long time and have selected the seats they will sit in when the door is opened unto them.

* * *

Of course there is a reason, a deep political reason, for the costly joke the Premier of Canada has perpetrated upon the people. The reason is Quebec. From a Liberal point of view Quebec dominates the political situation of Canada. The women of Quebec are assumed to be interested in more important matters than politics. They are not permitted to vote, and it is said they do not want to vote. A woman candidate for any political office in the Dominion or the Province would be considered a sign of a social and religious revolution. Therefore in deference to the views or the prejudices of Quebec the leader of Parliament has temporized with the issue of women's rights and asked the Imperial Privy Council to consider the absurd question whether women are "persons" within the terms of the Constitution of Canada.

JOY'S AFTERGLOW

Because the Summer's song-filled days
  Are all too fleet,
And just beyond the golden haze
  And glowing heat
We glimpse the red Autumnal leaf,
  The yellowed grass,
We need not vision joy as brief
  Or soon to pass.

No calendar can compass bliss
  Or measure woe;
Eternities are in a kiss;
  As dreams, years go.
The hour of greatest heart's delight
  May leave at last
Long afterglow of radiant light
  When day is past.

Eyes meet, lips touch, the wise soul knows
  That no farewell
Can raise its barriers for those Who once loved well.

TAXATION IN SAANICH

Sir,—"Tax Issue Appears as Insoluble" is the heading in large letters you start your report of His Honor Judge Lampman's findings in his inquiry into the question of taxation in Saanich, as given by you in The Colonist of June 2 last, and in reports of the discussions and actions taken at ward meetings, and also correspondence in your columns the question does not seem to be getting any nearer a solution but rather the reverse, and meantime our School Board and Council, if they are going anywhere, are surely going blindfolded.

It seems to me rather unfortunate that Judge Lampman's report should be so generally interpreted that the only solution of the condition into which Saanich has got was the disruption of the municipality. I hardly think we are justified in such assumption. Although His Honor suggested what to him seemed a feasible plan of settlement, there is no suggestion that it is the only plan. It may be he has said too much or that he has not said enough. Evidently he was not commissioned to find a remedy for the existing conditions, but rather to find the cause of grievances (if any) in the rural wards of unfair taxation as compared to the urban wards, and from the evidence given and cases cited by His Honor in his report I cannot see how any fair-minded person, interested or disinterested, could come to any other conclusion than that the taxation of farm lands is much too high.

In the case of the Royand Farm, cited by the commissioner for the years 1927 and 1928, the average rent received for the two years is a little over $1,200, whilst the average taxes paid for the two years is nearly $2,100, almost $900 more paid in taxes than the income received from the land. We presume Mr. Roland tries to get as much rent for his land as possible and being close to the city is in a locality where we would expect there would be keen competition for it and if this is a sample of how farmers are taxed in Saanich, there is little wonder they are petitioning for relief.

But is this Saanich tax issue insoluble, except by the breaking up of the municipality, or have the outer wards any assurance of bettering their conditions by secession from the urban wards? We have reasonable grounds to believe that by horse sense and good will and playing the game it is possible to solve this vexed question. I venture to say there is not a province in the Dominion that has not the same problem of rural and urban taxation to equalize in municipalities, and we hear of very little trouble experienced in doing so, so if other provinces are doing so successfully why not British Columbia also? We do not close our eyes to the fact that owing to certain boom conditions and Western optimism that existed in coast cities of British Columbia twenty years ago, the problem may be harder to solve than in the more conservative cities further East, yet there is no problem which cannot be solved.

The foundation of all property taxation is assessment, and if we are to have equality in taxation I do not know of any other way to get it than by, as nearly as possible, assessment on actual value, to arrive at which there is perhaps no simpler way than by rental values, which in older countries is the system generally followed, where renting is the practice and rents fixed largely by public competition. Here we have not the rent system as a guide to determine values as in the older lands, yet I believe it quite possible to get a fair assessment of what any property is worth for renting purposes, or if unoccupied land, at its actual sale value according to location and quality. It is no business of an assessor what anyone values his property at, or how much or how little he would sell it for, but how much it is actually worth in the locality and purposes for which it may be used. I feel it is a big job for an individual assessor to undertake. Perhaps an independent commission appointed by the Provincial Government to make the assessment would be the most satisfactory way to settle the matter.

Were the parties in conflict to get together and talk the matter over sensibly, and quit calling each other names, the possibilities are an amicable settlement of the matter can be arrived at. Personally I have no interest outside of Ward Seven, one of the urban wards, nor would it make much difference to me if the ward was to become part of the city of Victoria but as I have been a resident of Saanich for over nine years and taken a quiet interest in the welfare of the municipality, any preference would be to continue the boundaries of the corporation as presently existing, with control of our roads, water, police, education, and all organizations of a well-conducted municipality, for with the little differences causing the present trouble once settled (for it is only the switching of a few thousand dollars taxation to where it rightly belongs), we believe it is possible to make Saanich, from its beautiful and convenient location, the ideal municipality of the Province of British Columbia, a municipality where people coming to the Coast to live will be desirous to get a little corner to make their home.

A PSYCHOPATHIC CLINIC

Sir,—The great need for a clinic of the above description in our city is every now and again brought very forcefully before us. It is a place where the mentally afflicted can, if they at all realise their state, open their grief and seek advice from a trained person. There should also be a psychopathic ward for those who need kind help to guide them over the first stages of slight breakdown.

One cannot help feeling how much suffering could be avoided if these cases could as freely seek help as do the bodily sick cases from their medical man or surgeon. When these can do this freely without the fear of any stealthy handling, or quick incarcerations, first to jail and secondly to Essondale, then shall we begin to save many of those who today overload Government institutions.

Jots From Music

AMELITA Galli-Curci, one of the greatest sopranos of modern music, was born at Milan, Italy, in 1890, of Italian-Spanish parentage. Her early training was not in the realm of music, however. She studied to be a linguist, and graduated with first honors at an Italian school of languages. She studied piano and voice at the Milan Conservatory, and made her operatic debut as Gilda in "Rigoletto," in 1910, at Rome. Thereafter she shot upward like a comet in the world of the opera, and soon was singing opposite Caruso and Ruffo and other singers of note. Her voice, largely self trained, is of surpassing quality and remarkable register.

Chief Resents Use of Term "Siwash"

(Contributed)

The Ss. Prince James (we will call her) approached the Indian village at the rate of nine knots with a strong breeze astern, but whatever she lacked in the way of speed she atoned for by her seaworthy qualities, a most valuable asset in the Hecate Straits during the Winter months.

Eventually she tied up alongside the wharf. The usual crowd of "Braves" was parked along the boards and the mate went ashore to engage a few extra hands to unload the cargo.

All was ready for a start when, from the bridge, the skipper hailed the mate.

"How many men have you now, Mr. Smith?"

"Four white men in the hold, sir, and five Siwash on deck."

Along the coast, Siwash is a much-used word to denote anything Indian, but probably 99 per cent of the people who use it are unaware of its meaning.

The Hydah Indians are a proud tribe, renowned warriors in days gone by, skilled in the art of hewing canoes out of the solid cedar log. They range up and down the coast for hundreds of miles in their big war canoes.

The last sound of the word Siwash had hardly left the mate's lips before the Indian chief woke up out of his seemingly semi-comatose condition. Trembling with passion he strode up to the mate.

"Why for you call me Siwash? You know what Siwash mean, eh? Siwash mean savage."

Then, striking his breast heavily with his hands he shouted, "I am no savage—"

His fierce passion choked any further words.

The situation grew tense: the donkeyman stopped the winches, the crew stood by, even the skipper was subdued. The few passengers stood there wondering what would be the end of it all.

At last the skipper broke the silence, reprimanding the mate for having used the word. The mate called on all his gods to bear witness that he had never used the expression. Undoubtedly he never meant it in a derogatory sense, but every one on deck had heard him.

Gradually the Indian gained control over himself and looking up, like a hurt child, appealed in a low tone to the passengers standing by almost with a break in his voice.

"How you like—" (he had to stop for a few seconds) "How you like if I call you Whitewash?"

Three Persons Lose Lives in Auto Accident

VANCOUVER, July 27.—Three persons lost their lives shortly after eight o'clock this morning when an automobile crashed through a bridge on the Cariboo Highway, near Hope, 100 miles east of Vancouver and dropped forty-five feet to the Kettle Valley railway tracks.

The dead are, Mr and Mrs A. Mott, Vancouver; Harry S Crowe, Vancouver automobile salesman, who was driving the car.

When a workman, attracted by the crash, reached the scene all three occupants of the car were dead, the body of Crowe being pinned behind the wheel. Mrs. Mott's body was jammed in the rear of the car while her husband's body was found on the tracks a few yards from the wrecked car, evidently having being tossed out while the machine was turning over during its fatal plunge.

Seventy-nine-year-old M Victor Laloux, a Frenchman, was awarded this year's Royal Gold Medal for the Promotion of Architecture o the recommendation of the Roy Institute of British Architects.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist, July 28, 1879)

Tenders are invited for the construction of about 100 miles of the Pacific Railway west of the Red River to Manitoba.

Mr. A. W. Pearse, resident engineer, leaves here this morning for Cowichan in connection with the clearance of the Cowichan River.

It is stated that the barque Washington Libby, wrecked off Port Angeles, will be offered for sale at public auction tomorrow.

WAGE ACT IS BENEFIT TO MANY GIRLS

Nearly 20,000 Female Workers Come Under Its Protection — Infractions Comparatively Few

EMPLOYERS FIND LAW ADVANTAGEOUS

Almost twenty thousand women and girl employees are receiving protection under minimum wage legislation in this province. This is revealed in the report just presented to Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Labor, by members of the Minimum Wage Board, Mr. J. D. McNiven (chairman), Mrs. Helen Gregory MacGill and Mr. Thomas Mathews.

The minimum wage law was passed in this province in 1918 and extends protection to all women and girl wage earners in the province that come within its provisions. It does not cover domestic servants, fruit pickers, farm laborers or their employers.

During 1928 actual payroll returns were received by the board for 19,377 workers. This should convey a graphic picture of the large number of women and girl employees deriving protection under this important statute.

ASSISTANCE TO EMPLOYEES

Considering the number of workers affected by the rulings of the board, the percentage of employers who evade the regulations is comparatively small. Through friendly negotiations, conducted by correspondence or interviews between employers, employees and officials of the board, the sum of $3,202.11 was collected during 1928 and paid to employees throughout the province. This amount represents the difference between what they should have received under the various orders and what they were paid by employers who were not complying with the law. Collections for the girls were affected from proprietors of laundries, hotels, cafes, commercial and professional offices, bakeries; garment, candy and other factories; beauty parlors, retail stores, fruit canneries and packing houses. The beneficial protection of the act, therefore, was felt by women and girls of many and varied callings.

Each year a few infractions occur which necessitate court proceedings. The report summarizes eleven cases taken to court during 1928. Convictions were obtained in eight instances, two cases were dismissed and one withdrawn. In seven cases the employers were ordered by the magistrate to pay arrears due the employees.

In the statistical section of the report it is noted that the annual request for payroll data was answered by 3,425 individual employers or firms. While this is thirty less than the number who responded in 1927, their employees totaled 19,377, as against 17,507 during the previous year—a gain of 1,870 workers.

AVERAGE WAGES

For the 17,191 women employees over eighteen years of age, or those experienced in the work undertaken, the average weekly wage was $17.52, as against $17.06 for the previous year. For girls under eighteen years of age, or inexperienced, the average weekly wage was $10.74, compared with $10.40 for 1927. The average hours worked per week was 44.05.

In the nine different groups affected by the orders of the board the weekly averages for experienced employees were as follows: Mercantile, $14.95; laundries, $14.59; public housekeeping occupation, $18.52; office occupation, $20.21; personal service, $17.02; fishing industry, $19.50; telephone and telegraph occupation, $19.32; manufacturing industry, $16.62, and fruit and vegetable industry, $16.46 for time workers and $24.42 for piece workers. All the averages are still maintained at levels considerably higher than those prescribed as the legal minimum in the respective orders.

The highest actual individual weekly wages recorded for 1928 in the nine industries were as follows: Mercantile industry, $65; laundry industry, $32.25; public housekeeping occupation, $40; office occupation, $75; manufacturing industry, $43; personal service occupation, $50; telephone and telegraph occupation, $65; fishing industry, $26.54, and fruit and vegetable industry, $49.30. These peak wages were paid by firms in Victoria, Vancouver, Prince Rupert and Penticton.

The report contains a table showing the number of married, widowed and single women recorded in each of the nine occupations. These figures reveal that out of the 19,377 employees, 19.79 per cent were married, 3.73 per cent widowed, and 76.48 per cent single. These proportions, it is stated, have not altered very materially in the past few years.

TRIBUTES FROM EMPLOYERS

Attention is drawn to the fact that the British Columbia law has had ample time to prove its worth, not only to the women and girls, but also to their employers. Voluntary tributes have been given to the Board by heads of large firms, who contend that in paying higher wages than prevailed a decade ago, when individual firms regulated their own salary and wage lists, more care is exercised in choosing new help, with the result that the standard of efficiency has been raised, and the employees, as a whole, are more contented. The public thus shares in the benefits of this type of social legislation.

A table sets out the average wages in 1918 before any orders had been in effect, and those of 1928. Marked increases are noticeable in each of the industries, running up as high as $4.08 a week in the manufacturing industry, the average being $12.54 for 1918 and $16.62 for 1928. While the Board does not take all the credit for the substantial increase in wages during this period, it points out the wage level has been raised and maintained chiefly by this protective legislation.

In concluding the report, the Board recognizes the co-operation that has been afforded by employers and employees throughout the Province, and expresses its appreciation for the help afforded to enable it to practice a tolerant administration of the act and orders.

Relatives and many friends were present and members of the I.O.O.F. attended in a body to show their last respect to their brother. There were many beautiful flowers, which covered the casket and floral racks at the chapel. Rev. F. A. P. McCabe acted as pallbearers. The remains were laid to rest in the Royal Oak Burial Park, where P. McLean, noble grand, and Alex. Sedgley, chaplain, read the Odd Fellows' burial ritual.

THREE TENDER RESIGNATIONS

MR. T. W. ZIMMERMAN, SECRETARY OF REALTORS, TO LEAVE POST

Messrs. W. E. Herren and A. J. Berge, National Realty Executives, Enter Private Work

The resignations of three men prominent in organized realty circles of the country were announced at the thirteenth annual convention of the Pacific Northwest Real Estate Association, which was held last week at Salem, Oregon. They were Messrs. T. W. Zimmerman, Portland, executive secretary of the Northwest Association for seven years; William E. Herren, director of extension for the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and A. John Berge, sales counsellor for the National Association.

Mr. Zimmerman, widely known throughout the Pacific Northwest because of his organization work, and who recently addressed the Victoria Real Estate Board, told the delegates at the Salem gathering that his plans for the future were undetermined. His resignation, which has been accepted by the executive committee, becomes effective on September 1. His successor will be named next month.

The resignation of Mr. Zimmerman caused great surprise, and many delegates expressed regret that he had decided to leave the post of executive secretary of the association. A campaign has been started to pay him a special honor before he relinquishes his office in September.

Messrs. Herren and Berge stated that no previous announcements of their resignations had been made. The two officials, who conducted several educational conferences at the Salem convention, will enter private work in New York City.

Messrs. Alfred Carmichael and Frederick Landsberg were Victoria realtors who attended the Pacific Northwest Real Estate Association's annual meeting in Oregon.

WHOLE TROUPE GOT MARRIED

Edgar Schooley's Girl Dancers Made Wonderful Hit With Argentines—Others Put in Shade

NEW BEVY COMING TO VICTORIA FAIR

Edgar I. Schooley, producer of the Winter Garden Revue, an extravagant outdoor show of girls, music and dancing, to be a feature of the night entertainment at the Victoria Fair is perhaps, as well-known along New York's Broadway as any man in the show business.

The boy, whose neighbors said he was different and would get somewhere, advanced from the amateur to the professional stage before he was sixteen, landed in New York, stuck to the dramatic end of the business for some time, turned to musical shows; was with Weber & Fields for a period, and then went to South America, where he leased a string of five theatres in Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires.

Taking dancers to the Argentine may seem like carrying coals to Newcastle; but the kind of dances that Edgar's North American dancers danced was a kind that the Argentinians had never seen before. Schooley's dancers broke up business at the theatre bars on more than one occasion, the patrons crowding the aisles to convince themselves that the peculiar tapping and rolling noises they heard while in an adjacent refreshment parlor was really made by the dancers' feet. Duck dances and the schottische sent them wild; the Charleston and black bottom put them in a frenzy. One troupe of sixteen Charleston girls was completely broken up in three months. The girls were all married to Argentines.

The multiplex business of putting a cast of nearly half a hundred people through a revue in faultless quickstep requires certainty in every detail. Some obstacles to surmount are: Selection of effective costume material and colors; building scenery that will withstand the weather elements; devising ways and means to illuminate two stages so that the shows will look as good outdoors as they do in a modern theatre and employing singers whose voices can be heard at unusual distances.

This is the third successful tour of the Winter Garden Revue. Everything is new, people, costumes, lighting, music, effects and scenery.

Wants Highway System for Hemisphere

MAJOR F. A. REIMER

"The greatest need of today on the American Continent is a system of good roads that will reach all its people everywhere. No exceptions must be made for mountains or plains, freezing or tropical climates, great cities or farm communities, English or Latin peoples. All America must be served."

These sentiments were voiced by Major Frederic A. Reimer, East Orange, N.J., president of the American Road Builders' Association, as he sailed for Rio de Janeiro on the Ss. Western World, of the Munson Line.

They will be reiterated by him at the Second Pan-American Highway Congress in the Brazilian capital, August 16-31, and during his later conferences with highway officials and road builders of many South and Central American nations.

MOORE-WHITTINGTON CO. INSTALLS NEW SEASONING PLANT

In keeping with its policy of producing fine lumber products, the Moore-Whittington Lumber Co. has just completed installation of two dry kiln units of the latest forced circulation type as manufactured by the General Dry Kiln Co.

These units are equipped with effects which give complete "finger-tip" control of the air conditioning the lumber, so that the current temperature and air humidity can be regulated for drying all classes and species of lumber without occasioning the warp and defects from drying in old-style kilns incurred. These kiln units are similar to hundreds that have been installed in the large mills on the Pacific Coast, and will insure for the Moore-Whittington Lumber Co customers the finest kiln-dried lumber.

To prepare themselves for Government positions, 1,200 boys and girls from town and country recently applied for admission to Skerry's College at Edinburgh, Scotland.

COYNE COMPANY RECALL VICTORIA

Miss Paula Loraine, Leading Lady of English Troupe Here Last April, Writes From China

Happy memories of a two weeks sojourn in Victoria have moved Miss Paula Loraine, leading lady of the Coyne Musical Comedy Company, a touring troupe of English entertainers, to write to The Colonist a little description of their trip through the Orient. The company played at the Capitol Theatre and the Playhouse last April, and after a few weeks in some of the smaller Up-Island towns, left for Japan and China. Miss Loraine's letter was mailed from Nanking, China, on June 21. In it she states that the company has had short seasons, and successful ones, in Yokohama and Kobe, followed by brief engagements in Shanghai, Hankow, Nanking, Peking and Tientsin. At the time of writing they were due to sail for Hong Kong in a fortnight's time.

"Memories of dear Victoria will ever linger in my heart. Beautiful Victoria! I hope its people will reserve a little corner in their hearts for me till I return one day, for I am coming back. We met so many dear kind people," she writes.

The following is from The Central China Post of June 22:

"It is a mystery how the Fred Coyne Company can keep things up to the high standard they have maintained during their season here. One is accustomed to expect some slight falling off in the material presented after the first few nights by the average company, but Fred Coyne's combination is evidently above the average. Their entertainment is a succession of inspiriting and infectiously gay songs, dances, quick-fire jokes and cleverly worked ensembles, which finishes with a gloriously funny Glee Party finale which brought down the house. It is in the second act that the company show themselves to be something more than merely a bright band of musical entertainers, for in 'Thank You, Perkins,' a farcical comedy which played for nearly an hour, they act with the light touch and brisk action of a first-rate comedy company. As the much-perplexed father, Sidney Burl gave a splendid study; Paula Loraine is a most attractive wife," etc., throughout the personnel of the company, whose names are all well remembered by patrons of the two local theatres who saw them when they were here in April.

Two Children Play on Nova Scotia Farm

A FEW weeks ago Percy Greenough, fourteen, discovered a baby moose not many days old about two miles from his home, McLeod Greenough's farm at Upper Newport, Hants County, Nova Scotia, and near the main line of the Dominion Atlantic Railway. It had been abandoned by its mother and Percy's first thought was to shelter his new-found pet. Master Moose was quite contented to be rescued and took kindly to a spoon, and next a nursing bottle. It gained strength daily and now romps with the children around the farmyard. Photograph shows its affection towards its playmates. Few children can claim the unique distinction of having been kissed by a monarch of the wilds. The cut was obtained through the courtesy of H. S. Anslow, editor of the Hants Journal.

There is a highly hazardous condition throughout the southern part of the Province with respect to danger from forest fires. This is the tenor of the reports received by the Forest Branch for the end of the week just concluded.

Low humidity, accompanied by violent winds, has materially added to the danger.

The remainder of the Province shows different conditions with cool and showery weather reaching the stage of rainy conditions, with the hazard only moderate to light.

There have been 887 fires so far this season, as compared with 607 for the same time last year, and 414 for the season of 1927.

Among the other features in connection with the Summer school this week will be Mrs Ella Darlington's talks on the application of flowers in Japanese design and Japanese art generally. ANNUAL REUNION IS HAPPY EVENT

Old St. Ann's Pupils Foregather at Academy and Renew Old Associations

The annual reunion of old pupils of St. Ann's was held yesterday afternoon at St. Ann's Academy, when a reception committee of the Sisters, and the executive of the Association of St. Ann's Former Pupils, received a large number of past and present students, assembling according to their annual custom for the renewal of old friendships among teachers and school companions.

Rev. Mother Provincial, Sister Superior of St. Ann's Academy, and Sister Superior of St. Joseph's Hospital, as well as the teaching staff and many teachers from the various convents of St. Ann in British Columbia were the centres of small groups of friends about the large reception-rooms, and the programme arranged by Sister M. Theodore was as interesting as on any former occasion. Some of the older pupils spoke of the days of 1866, conspicuous among them being Mrs. Edgar Fawcett and Miss Meyers. Mrs. R. B. McMicking was greatly missed, being unable to attend this year. Among the out-of-town past pupils were Mrs. Donker, of Helena, Montana, formerly Miss Alice Fry, of Victoria, and Mrs. Lamont, of Portland, formerly Miss Edith Lombard.

At 4 o'clock the guests were bidden to the auditorium where a short musical programme was given. Following the community singing of "O Canada," "A Girl of St. Ann's" was recited by Miss Margaret Josephs, of the commercal class of 1929; and Miss Hilda Harding played delightfully "En Courant" (Godard), also accompanying Miss Edna Luney in a pretty vocal solo, "In a Monastery Garden, (A. Ketelby). Mrs. D. B. McConnan was enthusiastically heard in two charming solos, "A Little Dutch Garden" (Coburn) and "The Cuckoo Clock" (Grant-Schaefer), Mrs. Groves accompanying with much artistry. The stage was decorated with tall vases of Summer blooms. The president of the association of former pupils, Mrs. Kenneth Thorne Hughes, presided, with the secretary, Miss Flora Hamilton Burns, who read a very interesting account of the formation of the association and the activities in which it had been engaged during the past year and assisted by the association, and as the course had expanded to take in day pupils as well as boarders, new equipment had been added, the association helping materially with the necessary funds.

Felicitations were offered to Mrs. Richard A. Lavell, formerly Kathleen Victoria Redgrave, and to Mrs. J. Christian, formerly Florence Kissinger, upon their marriages; and regretful references were made to the recent death of Mrs. James Hunter, formerly Josephine O'Sullivan; Mrs. J. Gaudin, formerly Agnes Anderson, a pupil of 1860, and Mrs. Williams, formerly Mary E. Kelly, a pupil of 1863.

A pleasing feature of the afternoon was the presentation to Miss Doris Shramli, of the class of 1929 (Sister M. Matthew), by Mrs. Hughes, of the Alumnae Cup, presented by the commercial department of St. Ann's Academy to the pupil attaining the highest marks for proficiency in typing. The pledge of the Association of St. Ann's Former Pupils was recited in unison and a special "Auld Lang Syne," adapted to St. Ann's, was sung in chorus.

Afternoon tea was served in the gymnasium, the present pupils serving the guests, among whom was Mrs. Herbert Anscomb. After a happy half hour the Benediction bell summoned all to the chapel, where Rt. Rev. Monsignor Leterme, administrator of the diocese, officiated, and the special music prepared by the Nuns' choir for the festival of St. Ann, was repeated, "O Bone Jesu" (Palestrina), "Ave Virgo" (Leither), "Tantum Ergo" (Kunck), comprising the delightful programme, which closed with the hymn to St. Ann. The chapel, particularly pleasing in the details of the decorations arranged for the golden jubilee of Sister Saint Sauveur, observed on Friday in conjunction with the festival of St. Ann, was greatly admired as an artistic triumph of the Sacristan, Sister M. Berchmans.

One very stormy Wednesday evening the congregation who arrived for the midweek service at St Paul's Church were the minister and John, the caretaker

The disappointed minister said "Surely, John, if you and I could venture out in the storm, others should do so."

"Deed, sir," said John, "if you an' me wisna' paid for it we wouldna be here, either!"

When Miss Mary Pannell, septuagenarian, was recently removed from her home at Southsea, England, to the workhouse infirmary, $11,000 in gold was found in the house.

Father—Didn't I tell you not to let me catch you doing that again?
Little Willie—Yes, sir
Father—Then why did you do it?
Little Willie—Because I didn't think that you would catch me.

In a Letter to His Son

Lord Chesterfield wrote: "Advice is seldom welcome, and those who want it most like it least." This may be true, but really sound advice is practically invaluable, not merely to those starting out in life, but to everyone embarking on the adventure of living—and no advice could be more sound than to take particular pride in your appearance—your suit, for instance, will always look as fresh and smart as the day you bought it if well cared for and regularly dry-cleaned.

St. Ann's Commercial Classes

The Sisters of St. Ann conduct a fully modern training department for young ladies entering a business career

The classes deal with every branch of commercial operations in which a girl may be employed, including Bookkeeping, Stenography, Typewriting and the general work of the average office

In addition to tuition in business routine and the branches mentioned the Sisters test out and perfect the pupils in spelling, punctuation, and other necessary groundwork so that a graduate from these classes is not simply a product of a course of superficial instruction in any special subject. This course avoids what might be called mechanically produced graduates and supplies the business man with a dependable and finished office assistant

The results of this course of training are apparent in the large numbers of graduates of St. Ann's who occupy responsible positions throughout the Province in

PRODUCTION OF TIMBER IS CUT

SHIPMENTS ARE HIGHER THAN USUAL, THUS REDUCING UNFILLED ORDERS

Orders Received by Mills Reporting to Lumberman Association Show Reduction

SEATTLE, Wash., July 29.—Orders received by 209 identical mills reporting to the West Coast Lumbermen's Association for the week ending July 20 were 10,410,027 board feet less than the total of production for the same seven days. For three weeks previous orders were received in excess of current production and the balance for thirty days as between production and orders is, therefore, in favor of the industry. Shipments were higher than usual at these mills and as a result unfilled orders declined nearly 19,000,000 during the week. Inventories reported by 194 mills were 14.3 per cent below those of January 1.

Production reported by 278 mills for the week—the largest group reporting to the Association—was 212,819,325 feet or 23.83 per cent of their rated weekly operating capacities.

Production, orders and shipments at 209 mills for the week ending July 20, were reported in board feet, as follows:

Mills	Production	Orders	Shipments
209	187,293,149	176,888,122	192,164,228

Orders were 5.56 per cent below production and shipments 2.60 per cent over the output.

Details of orders and shipments as reported by these 209 mills follow:

FAIR PLANS ARE PROGRESSING WELL

Horse Show Will Be Staged in Front of Grandstand Each Evening

More entries of heavy horses and six horse teams to swell the entries in virtually every section of the horse department of the Victoria Fall Fair opening at the Willows August 19 promise to make the horse show, which will be a nightly attraction, a spectacular event.

Instead of a show inside, a horse show will be staged in front of the grandstand every night, added to the many extra attractions which will draw visitors in thousands to the exhibition this year.

Secretary W. H. Mearns again appeals to all Victoria firms who will have displays to have everything in readiness by the opening date, when Premier S. F. Tolmie will perform the opening ceremony. The grounds are being put into shape and the buildings now are in order for all who have concessions to start work as soon as they desire.

The heavy entry in the livestock section has made many changes necessary, but gangs of workmen are busy on the cattle barns making changes so that every entry can be accommodated.

The many amusements provided this year will make the fair especially interesting for those who have not the competitors' interest in any of the many departments. The Winter Garden Revue from New York, which has been billed by the biggest fairs in Canada and the United States as a stellar attraction, is outstanding, but is in addition to the regular skidway which carries many new sideshows and riding devices.

Rabbit Section At Fair Promises To Be Stronger

The B.C. Provincial Rabbit Breeders' Association is very pleased with the results of its co-operative marketing scheme under which some very attractive orders for breeding stock have been received.

Following the announcement that Judge Lewis S. Griffen, of Colorado, one of America's leading rabbit judges, will place the awards in the rabbit section of the forthcoming Provincial Exhibition, officials are receiving many inquiries for entry forms from distant provincial points and the neighboring states as far south as California, so that a record entry seems assured. Exhibition Secretary W. H. Mearns will be glad to send a prize list and entry form to anyone not already reached.

Optical Progress

It is a very few years, after all, since a person of limited means and in need of optical service was forced to forego the comfort and satisfaction of corrective lenses. Spectacles—and extremely crude things at that—were only for those who could afford to pay a high price.

Today, corrected lenses of perfect accuracy and with a wide field of vision, and mounted in frames of strength and beauty, can be obtained at prices that anyone can afford to pay.

Our registered optometrist will be pleased to demonstrate to you the advantages of the new precision lenses and the latest styles in frames and mountings.

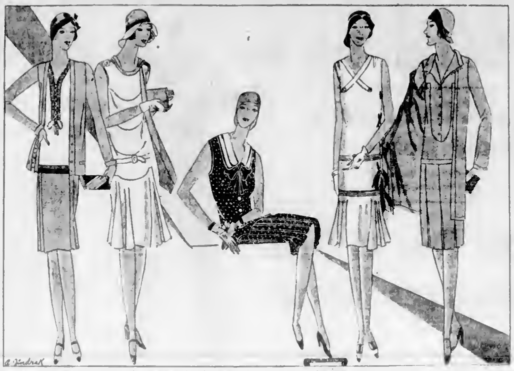
Summer Novelties for Matron and Maid

Midsummer Frocks and Costumes



THREE-piece ensembles or jacket suits of light spun jersey will meet the demand of vacationers who wish a chic outfit for cool Summer days at the seashore, lake or in the country. Many inexpensive yet well made models are shown in the shops, one of which is illustrated.

In solo-tone jersey such as white, flesh, maize, green, orchid or blue, the skirt and cardigan are contrasted with a sleeveless slip-over having a harmonizing border and laced according to the present vogue. The pleated skirt is on a body lining.

The Summer ensemble of silk is seen now with coats in other lengths than the jacket type. A seven-eighths length coat of straight lines is used for the ensemble at the very right, made of washable crepe in any of the pastel shades. The vestee with turn-back collar is the attractive neck finish to the sleeveless dress in the same shade as the coat.

Curved lines of seaming add to the chic of the frock shown at left centre with moulded contour and frontal flared skirt. Shirring in several close rows on the shoulder gives fulness over the bust. This is in eggshell washable crepe, but also comes in white, maize and flesh.

A V-neck finished by crossed straps which form a tie in the back adds decoration to the frock of white or pastel tub crepe at right centre, but it is further enhanced by a side lacing of ribbon in a contrasting color which extends below the hip in a large bow. The skirt is posed very low from a hip section outlined by two rows of horizontal pin tucks.

Polka dots continue to be seen in Summer printed silks, and this one is of a navy background with a small and spaced design in white. The long blouse is trimmed down the front with scallops and buttons, while the double collar is of white crepe bound with navy silk of which the tie is made.

Some Favorite Silk Suits

HOT days have arrived and women spending the daylight hours in town have appeared in very summery costumes apropriate for lunching at the fashionable garden restaurants.

The silk suit is quite popular, being pleasantly cool and smartly tailored in appearance. It does in fact outnumber the once ubiquitous one-piece dress and is seen in plain and printed crepe as well as solid color chiffon.

There are, of course, dresses of the one-piece variety ensembled with matching jackets. Yet it does seem that the favorite type of silk suit is that having a skirt and jacket of one color and a separate blouse harmonizing or contrasting sharply.

An unusually attractive crepe suit worn by a chic young woman on one of the most torrid days was in a small black and yellow print, the skirt finely pleated and the coat having a sailor collar edged with pleating to correspond with that which finished the bottom of the jacket.

Surprisingly, the color scheme of the blouse was reversed from what would seem a natural choice, for it was of black silk crepe banded with yellow.

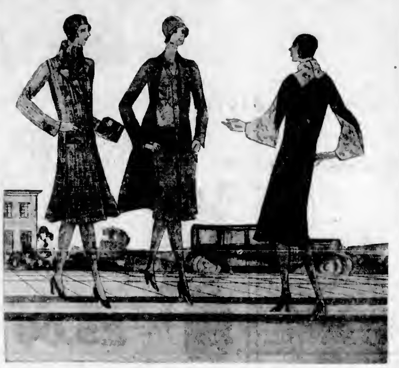
Numerous jacket suits of dark blue chiffon are worn by women in town for the day. Usually the skirts are finely pleated and the blouses are of a lighter color, such as eggshell or pale green.

Two smart looking chiffon suits seen were made with sailor collars which were worn outside of the jacket.

LESS JEWELRY NOTED

With the silhouette and whole fashion trend showing an increasingly elaborate tendency, it is evident that jewelry must and is to become more simple. This is notable in the newer pieces imported. Great clusters and showers of jeweled ornaments seen last season were difficult to wear with any neckline. Smart women chose the unpretentious pieces. And with the lingerie note injected in fashions, it is certain that jewelry must be simple if it is to be effective now.

Ensembles of Early Autumn



SHEER and heavy woolens, or companion materials in weight as well as design, are combined in the new ensembles designed for late Summer and early Autumn wearing.

Coats are of full skirt length or only one inch or two shorter. The molded contour with a gently flaring skirt presents a silhouette very much of the new season. Particularly in woolens does the flared line take precedence, although straight coats are not entirely pushed to the background.

Characteristic of the furless type of ensemble is Worth's original, which will influence Canadian-made costumes. This is a soft finished napped basket-weave has the straightline coat, slightly shorter than the skirt, made of the same fabric. The blouse which is cut with a petticoat bottom, is of light weight tweed in harmonizing colors. Its tailored details conform to the shaped, unusually belted skirt yoke accenting the waistline.

Companion tweeds are combined in the novelty fabric ensemble shown at the left, created by Martial et Armand. The sheer tweed is used for the dress and the heavier for the coat, each being trimmed with the other. The gently flared skirt of the coat and cravat collar introduce a swagger air to the ensemble.

Black and White is Vionet's color theme in the ensemble pictured in rear view to display its clever seaming. The coat is of black napped basketweave and is trimmed with point shaped collar and exaggerated cuffs of white galyac. The dress combines the black basketweave with a black and white wool.

EMBROIDERED SILK LINGERIE

Dainty chemises, dance sets, slips, nightrobe and pajamas are shown in one shop in silk with delicate Swiss embroidery as the trimming note which forms yokes and borders. It is possible to get almost any type of favorite undergarment in this lingerie. While suggestive of very expensive French models these are very moderate in price.

ERMINE ON SILK DRESSES

One must look back to pre-war days to recall any daytime dresses trimmed with fur. The late Summer will stage a revival of this fashion, for frocks of black crepe and of satin are stunning with ermine collars and bow effects, which places an emphasis again on the combination of black and white.

Delightful lounging robes of the negligee class are shown in gaily printed chiffon, with bow tied closings and full loose sleeves. Circular flares and cape shoulders add to the variety of models, some of which follow evening fashions and have trailing hems.

The Adaptable Blouse

PARISIAN dressmakers are adapting the blouse to the dressy as well as the tailored mode. Several of the French houses are showing it in their collections as a feature, limiting it neither to the one type of dress nor the other, but rather including it in both extremes of suit costumes.

As is many times true, after a season of one thing predominating, we have a new season in which the opposite is stressed. The tuck-in blouse has quite overshadowed the over-blouse, especially in suits for the younger generation. Both tuck-ins and over-blouses will diversify the Autumn suit, yet the model which drapes or moulds about the hips will lead. There is a natural tendency since the over-blouse is designed to accompany formal dressy costumes, of which a great many will be shown for the late Summer and early Fall.

Characteristic French blouses in different fabrics are shown which present a clear conception of types that will influence many models.

One version of the dressy blouse is that from Jane Regny in which white crepe satin is diversified with tucking, a plastron and a drape about the hips. It is button trimmed in the front and on the sleeves, and was designed to accompany a tricot suit.

The tailored over-blouse from Drecoll-Beer is typical of the smartness possible in the somewhat severe style. This in white crepe is embellished by trimming bands in which sections of pintucks play a part. These also extend up the sleeves from narrow band cuffs. The V neckline is softened by a self cravat, pleated and held with a shirred slide of its own.

For the tailleur Patou uses the lingerie tuck-in blouse. This one is of white linen with narrow lace insertions which repeat the outline of the skirt yoke, and trim sleeves and collar as well as front.

When the tuck-in is designed for wear with an afternoon ensemble of, say, black velvet, Patou makes it of flesh pink satin in quite severe fashion. One stunning model had a round collar which closed at the throat, and below this on either side of the neck closing was a plastron of shirring simulating fine tucks.

Which Flare Is Smart?

IN a season when so much is said about the flared silhouette it is well to be fashion wise on the subject of just what kind of flare really is chic. The answer is a very subtle one. There is, or should be very little ripple and the contour must remain smooth. This is applicable to coats for dresses are permitted more fulness. However, the flare is at all times well controlled and held down by shirrings, strappings and pressed-in pleats. One very clever and effective way of modifying the flare in connection with skirts is by the use of narrow gores so that there is an effect of even fulness with no ripple. This treatment is employed for both dresses and sports clothes.

SHEER WOOL FROCKS

Frocks for those cool days that intervene between torrid spells in the late Summer are very smart when made of the new sheer woolens like wool crepe, featherweight tweeds, coverts, plain and novelty knitted materials. The wool is handled as though it were silk, the contour takes the moulded bodice and low pleated or flared fulness and very often the dress will be cut on coat dress lines of a new order.

The Figure Prevails

A CURVED figure has become a fashion requisite.

For no one possibly could wear the new form-fitting evening and afternoon gowns with success unless a snug foundation garment provided a smooth curving line.

Even a merely good figure may be improved by one of these single foundations to confine the hips and emphasize the waistline. The newest models are in crepe de Chine in such fascinating colors as violet, blue and the like. They are cut with a low back and the uplift brassiere section.

Finely pleated violet point d'esprit borders the edge of this foundation, which together with a long tab obviates the necessity of any other undergarment.

Two striking examples of evening gowns which require such form fitted underthings are illustrated. Heavier fabrics which hug the figure being used for the most recent gowns are satin and satin-black moire, the latter employed for the model at the left, which emphasises the long moulded line to well below the hips, from whence starts the flaring skirt and fishtail drape at the back.

Extremely sheath in effect is the gown at the right, of rich ivory toned satin cut with a very fitted line further emphasised by horizontal inverted tucks all the way down the front. The fishtail back just clears the floor.

Paris Mirror of Fashions

By ALICE MAXWELL APPO

ALL signs point to the adoption of short sleeves for resort wear. Chanel is not the least among short sleeve sponsors and uses them on many new models just introduced. One novelty in this sleeve is like a band which crosses at the top of the arm leaving the lower edge in two points. This on a dress of light blue shantung with a pointed collar placed over a rounded one.

Another Chanel shantung of one piece dress and coat has a staggered or step motif carried throughout. The skirt has an uneven back with short pleats on one side and very long ones on the other. Shoulder yokes on dress and coat repeat the step design.

NARROW LACES

This couturiere very consistently employs narrow laces or lace cut to narrow proportions, which suggests a drift from all-over laces to bandings, insertions and the narrower flouncings, especially as the other houses show a similar tendency to edge tiers and the like of plain fabric with lace.

In a recent creation of flesh voile Chanel uses four tiers for the skirt with a lace border on each, running the lace up to a point in front by way of diversion from straight around lines.

Also interesting is her use of graduated horizontal tucks in the same skirt, the top tier of which is finely tucked with the widest tucks at the hem.

VELVET WRAPS

A stunning evening wrap seen at the theatre was in velvet, having a sable scarf banded across with the velvet at centre-back. A white velvet evening coat was trimmed with kolinsky. Many bright red velvet wraps were noticed, mostly self-trimmed, and light green in soft shades was a conspicuous note.

Always the lustrous white satin coat shares the distinction of white satin dresses, which do not diminish in number of importance.

SHEERNESS IN WOOLENS

Just as taffeta is given a flourish by the way it is draped to the figure in evening gowns, so are the new daytime woolens handled in a different manner.

Companion fabrics designed to go together in coat and dress are shown in wool fabrics. The two garments do not necessarily match for the most clever of new models are not even of the same weave, but they are alike in coloring or in design only.

An open mesh woolen in two colors is as firm as silk and will be worn for blouses with Autumn ensembles. A mixture of cashmere and silk is another extremely light weight fabric with a quality similar to Shantung which gives it great chic for a dress.

"The truth is," says a writer, "there is no line of demarcation between the tastes of one age and another." Nevertheless there is a good deal of difference between the taste of a cabb-age and that of a sau-sage.

Togs for Sea and Sun

FASHION seems to have declared against the dry cleaner for the Summer. The majority of costumes for disporting at the beaches or on the courts and links are of such hardy fabrics as will return in all their pristine glory from immersion in the tub.

Innumerable fabrics for Summer wear are of synthetic origin, their surfaces having a charming sheen, which women all know launder to perfection. For bathing togs these are especially nice, as the materials retain their shape and firmness when subjected to the surf.

A brilliant bathing ensemble that has an affinity with a setting of blue sky, white clouds, long stretches of sand and a serene green sea, is this illustrated—vivid French blue allied with scarlet.

This is made of washable moire or rayon, and will not lose its pattern when subjected to water. The bathing suit proper is of the blue bound with scarlet in the same material. It is in two pieces of shorts and over-blouse of hip length. The loose short coat is all scarlet.

An applique of scarlet on the blouse is suggestive of the monogram seen on so many Summer frocks. And the blouse binding takes a diagonal line to lend character to the suit.

A very popular frock for tennis is the sun back type in solid colors of the pastel tints. This model from an uptown shop is made of washable rayon twill and has a skirt with wide box pleats set onto the blouse portion at the hips so that each side forms a pocket in front. The narrow self belt has a round bone buckle.

Bandannas continue to be the favored sort of headdress for active sports, such as tennis. A deeper shade than the frock is worn by the young woman pictured who also has chosen crepe sole shoes of white buck widely trimmed in brown calf.

Plaids for Day Wear

PLAIDS will be a novelty of the late Summer and early Fall. For day wear they are attractive in many materials not heretofore treated to such patterns. Many fabrics have been printed in the criss-cross and there are plaided designs in woven materials.

Moire, for one, has an entirely new look in the plaid and it makes a very interesting frock in this present period, when stiffer fabrics are to the fore.

The dress at the left illustrates the chic possible in a plaid moire. The model is quite simple, with merely a draped neckline and two circular flounces to the skirt. The sleeve is given fulness at the wrist by means of a tiny circular flare.

Plaid moire also makes effective blouses and will be used for these and for coat linings with solid color cloths.

Velvet in plaided effects likewise has unusual distinction. The design is either woven in broche treatment or printed in a transparent or panne velvet surface.

Frequently the design is strikingly large and is used on the diagonal, after the manner of the couture with plaids this Spring. Note the effectiveness of the velvet jacket suit in a very colorful pattern. The skirt is plain save for a low-placed flare, and the collarless coat sets off the tuck-in blouse in a solid color matching one of the shades in the plaid.

Faille also is being used successfully as a foundation for plaids. Its somewhat dull sheen and individual surface is adaptable to the crossbar design.

Taffeta and silk crepes are very appealing when decorated with crossing lines forming vague plaids.

Wool materials in various types of plaids and checks continue to be approved by fashion and will be worn for sports. Yet, having had their day last season, they will of necessity give way in some degree to silk plaids with their newer look.

The New Weaves in Silks

SILKS of a novelty type suitable for formal wear and for sports and daytime frocks show both dull and lustrous surfaces. Printed satins have come to fashion's notice once more and have great chic in formal attire. Being in keeping with the already established vogue of panne velvet and panne satin seen in afternoon and evening models. Ribbed silks in the form of Cantons, reps, and diagonals are very smart indeed with the addition of silk and wool faille to this group.

A stunning printed satin of a different design is in a deep shade or red with an interesting allover pattern simulating embroidery. To the other extreme is a conservative check design after the manner of men's woolens, on a crepe back satin. An attractive silk and wool faille has a distinctive broken block pattern in different tones heightened by irregularly shaped and sized dots.

ACCESSORIES IN COLOR

BROWN has come to be one of the outstanding accessory colors. Green as a costume shade is stunning when allied with brown accessories, including novelty knitted blouses, hats, bags and shoes.

Black with red strikes a smarter note than brown with red. Dark red is especially chic with black accessories. Many of the red coats and ensembles are collared with black furs and are effectively combined with red and black check or plaid silk blouses worn with hat, bag and shoes in black.

FIRE CHIEFS ENTERTAINED IN VICTORIA

Pacific Coast Association Guests at Supper—Visitors Express Appreciation of Hospitality

MAYOR'S ADDRESS LOUDLY CHEERED

Outburst of Applause Follows Reference of Mayor Anscomb to Ties Binding English-Speaking People

Two outstanding incidents featured the supper given to the visiting delegates of the Pacific Coast Association of Fire Chiefs held at fire department headquarters last night. One of these was the appreciation expressed of the kindness shown by Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Butchart, and the other was the speech of Mayor Anscomb. Every reference to Mr and Mrs Butchart brought forth the most hearty applause, and the mayor's speech elicited a great outburst of cheers, not given only for his allusions to fire department matters, but for his stirring references to Anglo-Saxon civilisation and "the tie that binds."

More than 130 visiting delegates, as well as many guests, were present. The delegates had arrived in the city yesterday morning following the conclusion of the annual convention held at Vancouver. Alderman Worthington, chairman of the fire wardens committee, presided. After the supper the toasts to the King and the President of the United States were first honored.

HAS LOWEST FIRE LOSS

"I do not propose," said Mayor Anscomb, "to attempt to speak on any technical matters affecting fire fighting to men who have made this branch of public work their life's study. I will have to confine my remarks to generalities and give you a word or two of my own city of Victoria.

"Although I am not an expert, yet, as mayor of the city, I still have some claim to address you, for the city of Victoria is noted for having the lowest fire loss, and consequently enjoys the lowest fire insurance rate, of any city of its size in the Dominion or even on the continent.

"It may interest you to know," continued the mayor, "that the fire loss in the city of Victoria, over a period of seventeen years, averaged only $110,000, while for the last four or five years our annual loss from fire has been less than $45,000 per annum. I think you will agree that these figures speak volumes for the efficiency of our fire chief and the personnel under his charge, the adequacy of our equipment, our good roads, good water supply and the numerous other items which enter into the question of fighting fire.

DEPARTMENT MET GOVERNOR

"It may also be of interest to tell you that in Victoria we had a fire department years before we had a mayor or alderman; which would prove that our early pioneers were fully alive to the fire menace and realised the necessity for having a trained force to combat it.

"In this connection I might mention that in 1850, when Richard Blanshard, the first Governor of Vancouver Island, landed in Victoria from one of His Majesty's warships, the Victoria Fire Department, then a volunteer organization, met the Governor in a body and tendered an address of welcome.

"The fire department was the largest organization in Victoria at that time, and there was no civic body to do the honors. Victoria was not even surveyed until 1852, and it was ten years later, in 1862, before it was incorporated.

"I notice," proceeded the mayor, "that the total fire loss in the Dominion last year amounted to $139,000,000, while the loss in British Columbia amounted to $2,667,554. These are staggering figures. To my mind it is of the utmost benefit to bring these matters constantly to the attention of the public and more vividly impress on the minds of the citizens the ever-present danger from fire and the great economic loss we suffer therefrom.

MUST BE CHERISHED

"In conclusion," stated Mayor Anscomb, "may I add a word addressed to American and Canadian alike. It is with reference to a thing precious to both. It is this:

"If the thing we are proud to call Anglo-Saxon civilisation is to hold its place in the forefront of human life and human progress; if Anglo-Saxon civilisation is to continue, carrying with it the spirit of liberty and blessings on mankind, it must be cherished and sustained, not by a divided English-speaking people, but by those in all parts of the world who have a common reverence for its traditions and a common determination to maintain its standards."

DELEGATES WELCOMED

Alderman Worthington, on behalf of the citizens of Victoria, welcomed the delegates. They had all, he knew, greatly enjoyed their visit to the gardens of Mr. R. P. Butchart, and he would like Mr Butchart to address a few words to them.

Mr. Butchart expressed his pleasure at seeing them at his gardens, and he hoped they would pay frequent visits to them.

Fire Chief E. F. Coop, the newly elected association's president, then addressed the gathering.

Their association, he pointed out, was the largest association of its kind in the world. On behalf of the association he could say that they had never been entertained so royally and made so many friendships as on this trip. "We in the South," he stated, "can't hold a candle to you people up here." What particularly struck him was the true friendships which were always made when they came here. The note of friendship seemed to get warmer every time. They were grateful both to the Province of British Columbia and to the people.

HAPPY TO BE PRESENT

The three things which stood out were: The deep feeling of friendship and sincerity; the marvelous flowers they had here, and their music and song. Wherever they found music and song and flowers they found a friendly group of people. They were more than happy to have been able to come here. In conclusion, the fire chief stated that he had met Chief Stewart a number of years ago, and he had always benefited from associated with him.

Aldermen Worthington introduced Mrs. R. P. Butchart and Mrs. Anscomb, both ladies being very heartily greeted. Mrs. Butchart said she hoped to see "all the boys at the gardens again."

Fire Chief Stewart expressed his pleasure at having with them those who were assisting in "the same game." It was a great privilege, and on his own behalf and also speaking for the department he said that nothing he could say would add to the feeling they all entertained for their comrades.

He thanked Mr. and Mrs. Butchart for their kindness in entertaining the visitors that afternoon, and referred appreciatively to Chief Coop, whom he had known for years. He could not think of anything more valuable than the publications got out by the association.

FIRE BELL SOUNDS

Just as Mr. Herman Michel, Mayor of Santa Monica, California, was on the point of speaking, the fire bell sounded in the hall.

Mr. Michel said he hoped the gong was going to continue, so that he would not have to make a speech. They had, he said, been wonderfully entertained during the convention, but the hospitality they had experienced that day had been the best of all. He expressed his great appreciation of the kindness of Mr. Butchart.

Alderman Marchant expressed the pleasure he had had the last few days in meeting many good friends from the other side. When he had visited in the South and anyone mentioned flowers, someone would be sure to remark, "Ah, you have wonderful gardens at Victoria," and then went on to refer to Mr. and Mrs. Butchart. These gardens, he believed, helped to weld together a friendship between the two countries.

Alderman Worthington stated that they had with them at the supper a former fire chief of forty years ago, in the person of Mr. Deasey, whom he was very glad to see was spared to be with them.

EX-CHIEF DEASEY

Mr. Deasey said he had been connected with the fire department since he was a boy of twelve, when, with ten other boys, they used to meet on the sidewalk. The first chemical extinguisher they possessed was carried on the back of a boy who later became Fire Chief Watson. On one occasion they turned the extinguisher on behind Watson's back and the chemical went over the fire chief. Mr. Deasey said Victoria had a splendid chief and one of the best fire departments on the Pacific Coast.

Alderman Cullin said he had come down from his Summer vacation for the purpose of attending this occasion. He still owned a badge he wore forty-five years ago, when he was first axeman in Winnipeg, and therefore had some knowledge of firemen's duties. He also paid his tribute to Mr and Mrs. Butchart.

ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN

At the end of the speeches the tables were cleared for the entertainment on the stage, in which Mr Merryfield provided legerdemain, Mr William Farmer gave songs, and "Yorkie" gave ventriloquial selections. Dancing concluded the programme.

The Pasadena Fire Department Band played outside the fire department headquarters as the guests arrived, and the Victoria Fire Department Band, under Bandmaster Prescott, played during the supper. Fire Chief Stewart, having a place in the band, was not seated at the centre table, at which were Mrs Anscomb, Mrs Butchart, Mayor Anscomb, Aldermen Worthington and Marchant, Mr Butchart, Mayor Michel, of Santa Monica, and Fire Chief Coop.

On arrival at the docks yesterday morning the visiting party was met by Aldermen Worthington, Adam and Litchfield and Fire Chief Stewart. In the morning they viewed the city and its environs, and in the afternoon the visitors were driven to the famous gardens of Mr. R. P. Butchart at Tod Inlet, where the Fire Department Band rendered a musical programme.

Alderman Worthington stayed in Vancouver for the whole period of the convention and much appreciated the practical value of these meetings and the excellent papers men. Mayor Anscombe and Alderman Litchfield and Adam, with Fire Chief Stewart, were the Victoria delegates.

Spyglass-McLeod Decides to Ship High-Grade Ore

With shareholders attending from Vancouver, Seattle, Duncan and Nanaimo, as well as a large number of local people, the annual meeting of Spyglass-McLeod Mines, Limited, was held here on Thursday.

Reports of last year's operations were received with enthusiasm, and it was decided to set apart forty thousand shares at twenty-five cents a share for this year's development. Several thousands of these shares were subscribed for by those present.

Mr. R. G. McLeod, manager, reported that two engineers would inspect the property next month for their principals, one a Seattle syndicate and the other a prominent British Columbia mining operator.

Captain George Robertson and Mr. Edwin Foley-Bennett, prominent residents of Penticton and heavy shareholders, were added to the directorate. Mr Foley-Bennett is a well-known mining engineer with a high reputation in the Yukon. He will make a personal inspection of Spyglass-McLeod early in August with a view to interesting capital from the Interior.

This year's plan of operations as laid down at the meeting calls for the shipping of high-grade silver ore from two tunnels and the stripping of a sixty-foot vein of good milling ore at the creek.

Things looked very busy at the offices of Messrs. Solomons & Cohen. For three whole days the partners had been poring over books and feverishly adding up columns of figures. Then, at the end of it all, a wail of despair escaped the lips of Mr. Solomons.

"Ach, Cohen," he cried, "vot a vaste, vot a vaste! We have given the bookkeeper a veek's holiday and his books vas right, after all!"

PRESIDENT MADISON KEPT FROM SAILING BY TANGLED HAWSER

Six-Inch Rope Falls Overboard and Necessitates Services of Diver to Extricate It From Propeller Before Large Liner Is Able to Proceed to Japan and China

Ship Has Difficulty Docking In Small Space on One Engine

Held up by a six-inch hawser entangled in her starboard propeller, the American Mail liner President Madison, Capt. Thomas Johnson, was unable to leave Rithet piers for ports of Japan, China, and the Philippines until 8 45 o'clock last evening.

Arriving off Pier 2 shortly after 3·30 o'clock in the afternoon, the Madison had considerable difficulty in getting past two scows of lumber tied to the stern of the Blue Funnel liner Protesilaus, moored to Pier 1.

She was safely past the obstruction and proceeding to nose into her berth when things started to happen.

A light line attached to the hawser fell short of the dock and the heavy loop splashed into the sea. Before it could be stopped the rope twined itself about the swirling propeller and was torn from the stern.

Within a few seconds the starboard engine was stopped, but not before several fathoms of rope were tied in a tight knot about the screw. On one engine the Madison was piloted to the dock side with considerable difficulty, tying up at 4 30 o'clock.

Responding to a rush call for aid, a diver arrived upon the scene at 6 15 o'clock and was followed at 6 30 by a launch from Yarrows with a diving suit and air pump aboard.

Before a crowd which gathered upon the Madison's deck and the dock he donned a woolen sweater, socks and heavy woolen trousers to withstand the chilly waters under the liner's stern. Next he soaped his hands and wrists and was eased into his cumbersome outfit.

DIVER MADE READY

After tightly-fitting rubber wrist bands were slipped over his hands, two helpers screwed on the metal shoulder plate, fitted the diver with weighted boots and gave him a small woolen skull cap.

Next he lay over a small bench in the stern of the launch and was equipped with a canvas belt weighted at intervals with blocks of lead. He was handed a vicious looking knife to tie to the belt and spoke his last word before the copper helmet was eased over his head.

At the bow of the ship two men commenced rythmical pumping to supply the diver with air as a glass plate was screwed into the helmet. A final inspection of bolts and he was ready to free the Madison from her encumbrance.

With a hiss of air and bursting of bubbles he waddled to the side of the launch and was soon on the way to the bottom. A minute later he came to the top and waved his hand in the direction of the cabin of the launch. Those in charge evidently understood the pantomime for they handed him a large chisel.

Down in the depths again, the diver's movements could be followed by a thin stream of bubbles as he cut and hacked at the new rope that held the restless liner in its grip. Hard work it was, but sharp steel conquered and the Madison was off at 8 45 p.m.

Aboard the Madison were forty first class passengers and eighty steerage. Her cargo consisted of 6,200 tons of automobiles, machinery, canned goods and flour with approximately 2,000 bags of mail.

From this port there were five passengers, three tons of dried seaweed, seven bags of air mail and thirty-five bags of ordinary mail for the Orient.

PRESERVATION OF WILD LIFE CONSIDERED

Government Gives Assurances to Joint Meeting of Naturalists Here, on Occasion of Dinner

ROUND TABLE GATHERING HELD

The government is giving a great deal of attention to the preservation of wild life, believing that in doing so it is conferring a real benefit to the province from an economic and scientific standpoint, Hon. F. P. Burden, Minister of Lands, told the joint dinner of the British Columbia Ornithological Society and the Pacific Northwest Bird and Mammal Society last evening. The visitors were the guests of the government.

The Minister of Lands expressed his regret that the Premier, Hon S F. Tolmie, was not present to welcome them. It was fitting that he should have done it in view of the deep interest that his father, Dr. W. F Tolmie, had taken in natural history. It was due to his knowledge along these lines that he had been named to come to the Pacific Coast, where he arrived in 1832.

Mr Burden went on to tell of the research work done by Dr. Tolmie, which was largely along the line of botanical study. He had covered the Coast as far as the Skeena in carrying out this work.

Mr F Kermode, curator of the museum, took occasion to tell of what was being done in the province of British Columbia in the matter of preserving the big game. He then turned the order of business, following the dinner, into a round-table conference in which the various members of the societies were called upon in turn to speak freely of their connection with natural history. Many very interesting facts were touched upon by the naturalists gathered about the table.

There were present at the meetings yesterday Mr W N Kelly, of Vancouver, president of the British Columbia Ornithological Society, Mr F. S Hall, of Seattle, president of the Northwestern Bird and Mammal Association, Mr F Kermode, curator of the Provincial Museum; Mr Kenneth Racey, of Vancouver; Dr L. B Bishop, of Pasadena; Mr Theed Pearse, Mayor of Courtenay; Dr. W. T. McKechnie, of Vancouver, Mr W. Burton, of Victoria; Mr. J. H. Bowles, of Tacoma; Mr. O D Sprott, of Cobble Hill, Mr J E. Kempkes, of Seattle; Mr A. S Barton, of Victoria, Mr W. A. Newcombe, Victoria, Mr W P Stark, Victoria, Mr. J. McTaggart Cowan, of North Vancouver, Mr J M Edson, of Bellingham; Mr. A. H. Maynard, of Victoria, Mr J. W Winson, of Huntingdon; Mr. J. H. Schaffer, of Puyallup; Mr. J. D. Turnbull, of Vancouver, Mr. E. H Jones, of Seattle, Mr. A R. Sherwood, of Victoria, Mr. J. Clarke, of Pullman; and Mesdames Kempkes, Kermode, Racey, Schaffer and Clarke.

During the afternoon meeting, Mr. F. S. Hall, of the Washington State University, Seattle, dealt with the educational benefits of museums, and in this connection instanced the new one erected at Buffalo at a cost of $1,000,000, which was to be used for educational work.

Mr. Kenneth Racey, of Vancouver, dealt with a rare shew mole which he had studied.

Mr J H. Bowles, of Tacoma, gave an interesting address upon the meeting places of birds, and in this connection referred to the problem that presented itself in the constant changing of the frequency of bird life of many varieties from time to time certain species appeared for a while in a location, only to absent themselves suddenly and to be followed by other varieties.

MODAVIA ARRIVES FROM LIVERPOOL

Captain W. E. Mitchell Reports Rough Trip Up Coast From San Pedro

Drawing only fourteen and one-half feet of water at the bow, the Donaldson Line freighter Modavia, Captain W. E Mitchell, docked at Rithet piers from Glasgow, Liverpool, Los Angeles and San Francisco at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The freighter left Liverpool for the Pacific Coast on June 22 and had moderate weather crossing the Atlantic. All the way from San Pedro to Victoria the weather was nasty and the sea rough, according to Captain Mitchell.

For discharge here the vessel had eighty tons of mineral waters, earthenware, antique furniture, enamelware outs, chinaware, hardware, books, mining machines, whisky, cotton goods, steel sheets, 350 boxes of oranges and 140 boxes of grapefruit.

LIKELY PREMIER MAY COME WEST

OTTAWA, July 27.—Unconfirmed reports are to the effect that the Prime Minister may go West again this Fall. Last year he was obliged to cut his Western trip short, due to the signing of the Kellogg treaty. It is not unlikely that similar conditions may develop this year, for a number of important national affairs are impending. Chief among them is the projected visit in October of Premier Ramsay MacDonald to the United States. So far official Ottawa is without information respecting this move, nor has any invitation to attend the proposed conferences with President Hoover been received by Premier King.

ASIA IN PORT FROM FAR EAST

EMPRESS LINER BRINGS IN 582 PASSENGERS AND 3,903 TONS OF CARGO

Disembarks 149 Filipinos Who Are to Sail for San Francisco Today

Carrying 582 passengers and 3,903 tons of overland cargo, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Asia docked here at 7 o'clock yesterday morning after a smooth passage from Japan, the Philippine Islands and China. Included in the cargo, the bulk of which is for Canadian Atlantic ports, was 680 tons of silk.

Except for some fog which, however, failed to delay the white greyhound of the Pacific, Capt. A. J Hailey, R.N.R., reported the voyage was without incident.

Prominent passengers included Dr K. S James Woo, chief secretary of the Chinese delegation to the League of Nations, who is on his way to Geneva for the League session opening September 2; Mr. S C. Kingsbury, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce in Shanghai; Mr. O. M. Graves, United States consul at Hankow, China, Major R T. Osborne, general manager of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, of Vancouver, who has been studying the Oriental export market for flour, Mr. R. H Gregory, director of the British-American Tobacco Company, New York, and Mr. I Mitani, chairman of the Mitsubishi Mining Company.

For this port the liner had 151 tons of cargo, several cabin passengers and 149 Filipinos, who are to leave for San Francisco aboard Ss. Ruth Alexander at 8 o'clock this morning.

Market Women Drown As Cargo Boat Sank

STETTIN, Germany, July 27. — An undetermined number of market women were drowned less than fifty feet from the dock, in an unexplained disaster to a small cargo boat today. The boat, carrying thirty women and a cargo of vegetables, shoved off, but began suddenly to sink.

Within four minutes it filled and capsized. Some women were saved by jumping into other boats.

Two dead and two seriously injured were picked up. Divers were sent down to search of other bodies.

The time used is Pacific Standard for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, measured from the average level of low water.

To find the depth of water on the sill of the Esquimalt drydock at any tide, add 18.9 feet to the height of high water as given above.

SEA LION AND SEAL BLAMED WITHOUT CAUSE

STOMACH ANALYSIS ACQUITS ACCUSED

A plea for the seal and sea lion was voiced by Mr J. H. Scheffer, of Puyallup, a member of the staff of the Biological Bureau of Washington State, at the joint meeting of the Ornithological Society of British Columbia and the Northwest Bird and Mammal Society, which was in session here yesterday.

He gave the results of his studies with respect to the feeding habits of the sea lion and the seal on the Pacific Coast. He advocated, in common with the attitude taken by most of the natural history organizations on the Coast, that there should be a let-up in the wholesale slaughter of these animals until a very complete investigation is made into the feeding habits of the animals.

Mr Scheffer was of the opinion that the seals at least were more useful to the fishermen than injurious to their calling. Of more than eighty stomachs of seal that he examined, he found only one showing that salmon was a part of the diet. There were present octopus and squid, which were known to be of injury to the salmon.

He advocated that there should be a halt called in the destruction of the sea lion also, until it was found of what the food of these animals consisted.

FISH PLANTED TO WAGE WAR ON MOSQUITO

Variety Known as "Mosquito Fish" Brought to Kamloops From Banff to Aid in Control of Pest

VORACIOUS EATERS OF YOUNG LARVAE

Eric Hearle, Dominion entomologist of Kamloops, was in Banff recently, where he netted more than three hundred "mosquito fish" and had them shipped here to be planted in local waters infested with mosquito larvae, says The Kamloops Sentinel. These tiny fish, Gambussia Affinis, have a voracious appetite for mosquito larvae and are given much credit for having rid Banff of the pest. They were originally planted in the sulphur springs there by Mr. Hearle in 1918, and have since multiplied into millions, and their cannibalistic habits have gone so far as to extinguish former native species of those waters. It is expected that these finny friends will be a valuable auxiliary to the oil treatment of marsh water in the control of the mosquito nuisance here. The control undertaken this year has already been very successful and is deeply appreciated by every citizen.

The following dispatch from Banff has more to say of Mr. Hearle's visit there:

More than three hundred inhabitants of the vicinity of Banff have been shipped to Kamloops. They will be missed by many visitors who were wont to climb the hill above the Cave and Basin Swimming Pools and watch the now-departed ones darting about in the hot sulphur water, for the "shipped ones" are those finny curiosities known as Gambussia Affinis, or mosquito fish. These tiny fish aroused a certain amount of controversy regarding their origin a couple of years ago. Old-timers claimed the little fish were here before the advent of the white men. Eric Hearle, Dominion entomologist, claimed he planted them in the sulphur water about the year 1918. As contradiction to this the records at the museum show that years before Mr. Hearle came to Banff tiny fish were taken from the hot sulphur water and sent to Ottawa for identification. They were then classed Cousius Plumbeus. A visiting authority in 1926 stated that in his opinion they were Japanese Cupy and—that started the ball rolling.

Mr. Hearle visited Banff last year and stated that he remembered that when he planted the Gambussia Affinis there were tiny fish swimming in the sulphur water. The solution was at hand—the Gambussia Affinis are terrible cannibals and therefore had merely made a hearty meal of the poor little natives. All parties to the controversy were satisfied.

GLUTTONS

During his last visit Mr. Hearle inspected the marshes in which dwell his little "imported pets" and their descendents. He stated, after investigating, that they were now in the million class.

The mosquito pest has, in years past, been known to drive every visitor out of Banff. Under Mr Hearle's directions mosquito gangs were trained to pour oil on the waters of the marshes where mosquito larvae are found. This, with the noble assistance of the "mosquito fish," has made the mosquito practically unknown in Banff. The little fish have great appetites and will gorge themselves with mosquito larvae until scarcely able to move.

Those Who Come and Go at Provincial Museum

By H. W. HART

"No, sir you are quite wrong! The museum is not maintained for the exclusive benefit of visitors to the exclusion of citizens."

The temporary-assistant-deputy-attendant was "up in arms" when a fellow passenger in the Oak Bay street car complained that no provision was made for the workers of Victoria to enjoy the privileges of the Provincial Museum.

"What's to prevent you going?" the T.A.D.A. asked. "The place is open from nine to five every week-day, including holidays other than Christmas and New Year's Days and Good Friday. It opens Sunday afternoon from one to five, and were it not that the attendants like to go to church in the morning, it would be open all day."

"Well, for the 'luvapete,' why doesn't someone tell us? I've been here twenty years and didn't know it kept open when the rest of the Parliament Buildings were closed."

So here's telling everyone. The museum is open each weekday, holidays included, as well as Sunday afternoons.

An extra large visitors' book has been put in commission, and if it is not soon filled with names of Victoria citizens, it will not be because opportunity is denied them.

There is another point local people should understand, and that is the inadequate space available for the proper display of what visitors refer to as "the wonderful collection you have."

It is a wonderful collection. It is the city's greatest attraction. Many tourists declare that a visit to the museum is worth everything else rolled into one. With space to display things effectively, it would rank with the best museum on the continent.

But until Victorians show they appreciate it by their attendance the Government is not likely to erect a much-needed new building for museum purposes.

But people come and people go in ever increasing numbers, and comedy and tragedy pass hand in hand across the stage with its setting of Indian relics. From there the "braves" sometimes journey forth in search of adventure while their white "squaws" wait in anguish of mind until the wanderers return with the spoils of the chase.

A lady from the "bad lands" of Chicago, whose knowledge of Indian customs and interest in everything pertaining to the aborigines of the continent were greater than those of any other visitor during the "two moons" of the T.A.D.A.'s service, spent a long and profitable period discussing the varied exhibits. At last a shaft of memory brought back recollection of a husband who did not share his wife's enthusiasm.

"Oh, dear! I must go now," she suddenly said. "I expect my husband is waiting upstairs. He gets bored to death with this sort of thing."

An hour later the attendant saw a very disconsolate looking lady sitting on a chair on the main floor, waiting for the husband who did not wait.

Another hour elapsed, and preparations were being made to close the museum for the day when the missing "brave" returned. He was not alone, another "brave" was with him and both were supremely happy.

He greeted his wife affectionately and without reproach for leaving him so long while she delved into the genealogy of bygone Indian chiefs. His companion was presented as "one of the best from New York City," and both wife and attendant were invited to share the contents of an interesting looking flask.

The attendant promptly assumed an official frown and discouraged action along the line indicated. He was adamant to all persuasion and refused to be beguiled from the path of rectitude, giving as his principal reason, "You can never tell who might see me."

The proposed party was called off, but the husband was called upon to give an explanation of his movements during his absence.

This he was quite willing to do. He was lonely and bored. He met another lonely countryman, whose wife was enjoying herself in her own way. He was invited to his fellow countryman's room. He went and was made welcome, and in order to liquidate his debt of gratitude he went to the liquor store for more of the necessary liquid, with which he returned to his new friend's room. He had some evidence in a flask, but the attendant made him keep it there, and his friend was one of the very best from New York City.

The attendant received pressing invitations to visit both Chicago and New York, and the now smiling and reunited wife beamed a smile at parting which might have meant anything or nothing at all.

Thus tragedy was turned into comedy, the only tragic feature remaining being recollection of the flask, which stern duty, rising superior to desire, plus fear of detection, kept securely corked and in the hip pocket of the visitor from the pork and "moonshine" city.

Sometimes evidence of highly skilled work done by people who are often despised by their white brothers brings out the best traits of visitors. They admire the specimens and are unstinted in their praise, placing blame for deterioration of the aborigines on the white men's shoulders.

But there are occasions when husbands and wives seize the opportunity to take a nasty "crack" at each other. A husband and wife, who were old enough to have learned discretion, were interested in the bead work of the Kootenay tribe. "Isn't it beautiful?" the lady said. "That was all made by hand. Now, if we want anything of the kind, we go to the store and buy machine made goods."

"Yes," replied her husband, "women made that. Now they buy machine made stuff. There's evidence of deterioration for you!"

Later they stood in admiration before the Salishan case of stone implements. "There's some wonderful work," said the husband. "Look at those hammers, they are as true as if they were turned on a lathe."

"Yes," said the lady, "men used to make them. Now if the inferior brutes want tools they buy them at the hardware store."

Fortunately the lunch hour had arrived and the attendant was spared the pain of witnessing a "rift in the domestic lute," which showed signs of reaching serious proportions.

An American has left money to his lawyer. That is one way of dispensing with the usual formalities.

Radio Waves Get Lost in Thick Woods

If you should make your vacation camp in the heart of a dense forest and the radio receiver on which you depend to keep you in touch with the outside world should remain silent, the trouble may not be due to any fault of the set, but to a most surprising thing.

As a result of a series of interesting experiments, scientists have made the amazing discovery that when radio goes into a dense forest it rarely comes out. Great forests act like screens to the radio waves. For this reason, as Professor Albert Nodon, a French scientific writer, explains in La Nature, radio is practically useless in the neighborhood of the immense forested regions of the tropics, especially in Africa. It is not the trees themselves that are the trouble, Professor Nodon thinks, but the fact that the space around them is turned into an electric conductor by emissions from the foliage. Such a conducting medium opposes the passage of electromagnetic waves.

"Forests have a mysterious absorbing action of electromagnetic waves, explains Professor Nodon. Barfield, in England, has undertaken a new investigation of this interesting question and has found that the absorption is much greater in wooded regions than elsewhere. He has also proved that it is 30 per cent greater in Summer than in Winter.

"In Southwestern France it is well known that the great forests of pine that cover a large part of the Departments of the Landes and the Gironde act like screens toward the sending stations at Mont-de-Marsan and Bordeaux.

"The persistence of the foliage in these forests causes the disturbance to be almost as great in Winter as in Summer. In immense tropical forests, particularly in Africa, the effects are still more striking, and radio communication there is practically impossible.

"The investigations that I have undertaken on the radio activity of plants," says Professor Nodon, "may furnish a satisfactory explanation of these facts. I showed as early as 1923, in researches published by the Paris Academy of Science and the Spanish Royal Academy, and in various scientific reviews, that plants, and in particular the foliage of trees, are the seat of radioelectric manifestations, provoking an abundant emission of ions into the atmosphere.

"In Winter, owing to the absence of leaves, these effects are lessened. But in the immense tropical forests, where the vegetation is exuberant, the effects of ionization, which is naturally greater than in the northern temperate regions, oppose an almost impassable obstacle to the passage of hertzian waves, especially by day.

"The waves, passing over the forests, undergo more or less complete reflection, which turns them aside from their original direction. There would seem to be no other practical way to avoid the trouble due to the forests, than to set up in such places the absorbent or reflecting action of the conducting layers.

"In certain cases, inequalities may be utilised, by erecting the antennas on mountains or hills partially deforested."

BALKAN PEACE SETBACK LAID TO IL DUCE

Apparent Bid for Bulgarian Friendship Stirs Distrust Among Neighbor States—Animosities Fanned

ITALIAN AIR FLEET IS GREETED COOLLY

VIENNA, July 27.—The political situation in the Balkans changes like the weather in April. It would be more stable but for two facts. First, there is the quarrel over Macedonia, which, Bulgaria asserts, is ethnographically part of Bulgaria, but was snatched from it because the Bulgarians were on the losing side in the World War. Secondly, there is Mussolini, who, disregarding the thesis that the Balkans belong to the Balkanites, considers it as a desirable field of expansion for the Italians. He has won over Albania, which now is a base of operation for the Italian imperialism, but his plans go much further.

In March it looked as if Bulgaria and Jugoslavia, while not ready to bury their feud over Macedonia, were on the point of attaining a tolerable measure of peaceful neighborly co-existence. A Jugoslav-Bulgarian conference at Pirot reached an understanding over the border disputes and there seemed to be founded hope that a trade agreement between Sofia and Belgrade would follow and help to disentangle the strained relations. But the Pirot pact was never ratified, and today the sentiments on either side are more hostile than ever.

DUCE'S STRATEGY AT WORK

To foster a conciliatory spirit, where deadly feuds have poisoned the atmosphere, has been difficult at all times and everywhere, but more than elsewhere in the martially minded regions of the Balkan Peninsula, where people have a long memory and where hatred is apt to reach an intensity that is hardly thinkable among more Western-minded nations. Seeing that the reconciliation between Bulgaria and Jugoslavia made slow progress and that a rough blast of wind would kill the tender plant of forgiveness, the Duce carried out a clever political move with all the audacity which characterizes his policy when it deals with Balkan problems.

It is not in the policy of Mussolini to let Balkan rivals get too friendly, for, in the case of warlike complications, they might become more than a match for him. Bulgaria had come near a point where the wish to settle the quarrels with her neighbors became tempting, the more so, as King Boris' plan to marry Princess Giovena ended in failure. Something had to be done. The Duce decided to stage a military display which would demonstrate to Bulgaria Italy's military strength, and he reckoned with the probability that some lucky incident, likely to estrange Bulgaria's neighbors, would happen at this occasion.

PLAN WORKS SMOOTHLY

He had calculated correctly, for the incident did occur and the results were exactly of the nature foreseen by Mussolini.

A squadron of thirty-five armed hydroplanes, heavy bombers that can carry 14,000 pounds of explosives, was sent out on a tour, and this formidable fighting force alighted one day in the Bulgarian port of Varna. Officially the flight was described as entirely non-political and undertaken with the sole purpose to acquaint the Italian naval flyers with the atmospheric conditions over the Black Sea. But in one of the planes traveled State Secretary Balbo, head of the Italian air services and intimate friend of Mussolini, and the flyers were accompanied by a number of prominent journalists who certainly had not come just to write on the atmosphere over the Black Sea.

Bulgaria was more or less taken by surprise. It has not yet definitely chosen sides and therefore is in a delicate position. Having in the country two almost equally influential parties, one of which is favor of a conciliation with Jugoslavia, the "Slav brothers," and the other supporting an alliance with Italy, the Government would incur considerable risk if it suddenly exchanged its policy of neutrality for a declared friendship with a power whose antagonism against Jugoslavia holds the danger of future conflicts. For this reason the Bulgarian Government carefully avoided giving the impression that it ascribed much importance to the advent of the Italians.

BIDS FOR BULGARIAN AID

Instead of sending the War Minister to Varna to welcome the guests Bulgaria delegated its Traffic Minister, Rashko Madjaroff. Bulgarian journalists were dissuaded from giving their Italian colleagues an official reception and the newspapers were instructed not to make too much noise over the visit. Cool correctness marked the functions at Varna until Colonel Solaroff, commander of the port, in the course of a historic speech mentioned the fact that a great deal of territory over which the guests had flown was soil which his country had lost in the war.

This remark was water on the mill of the Italians. In his reply Balbo said with careless candor that the flight served not only the purpose of atmospheric studies but also was undertaken to demonstrate that Italy makes itself not only understood by words, but also by the thunder of its motors and that it wishes to show the world clearly the new position it holds among the nations. Not only in the Balkans, Balbo continued, but all over Europe are to be found hidden danger points from which the flames of conflagration may blaze up at any moment.

As Bulgaria had been vanquished by the war, he said, Italy had become a victim of the peace. In the face of this common fate the time had arrived for the two nations to combine their forces for the fight against the general injustice. The present peace, built up on injustice, cannot last forever, he declared, saying that Italy has no confidence in peace conferences as long as hidden rifles are lying under the conference tables, and that it will never cease to battle against injustice side by side with the nations who have received unfair treatment.

SPEECH FANS ANIMOSITIES

This certainly is distinct language. If a country cannot make up its mind one must push it into the direction where its happiness lies. The echo of this speech was what might be expected. Most Bulgarian papers printed it without comment, and the few who commented on it did so vary cautiously, using meaningless phrases, in which the determination of Bulgaria to stick to its peaceful policy was stressed.

But in Rumania and in Jugoslavia the annoyance was general, and the suspicion against Bulgaria, which had somewhat abated, received new fuel. When the Italian squadron moved on from Varna and called in Rumania it was politely received by the authorities, but the press showed it the cold shoulder and there was a noticeable undertone of animosity.

Italy has made another bid for the friendship of the one Balkan state which it needs to close a ring round Jugoslavia. Mussolini has not received an immediate answer to his avowal of sympathy, but it looks as if he felt reasonably sure that one day the ripe fruit will fall into his lap.

Y.M.C.A. Summer Camp

ABOVE are two scenes photographed at the Y.M.C.A. Summer camp at Beaver Lake by Vivian Shoemaker, Boys' Work secretary, who is in charge of affairs of the youngsters under canvas. The upper photo shows a group of young aquatic stars taking their early morning dip under supervision of capable swimming instructors. Each morning, shortly after 7 o'clock, a gathering such as this may be seen at the camp. In the lower picture a softball game can be seen in progress. Ball games are a part of the daily routine and take place on scheduled time, usually an hour or so after breakfast. This year's outings have been a great success and great credit is due to Mr. Shoemaker and his group of capable instructors.

Longueuil was seething with excitement, for a palmist had come there to live, and the villagers decided that they one and all must visit this man of mystery.

One afternoon old Farmer Giles took his wife and sat open-mouthed while the palmist read her hand.

"Now this line," remarked the palmist—"this line tells me that you are doomed to wear widow's weeds."

Farmer Giles was devoted to his wife, and sympathetically squeezed her other hand.

"Oh dear, oh dear," moaned his wife, pulling her hand away from him. "Tell me—for how long?"

GREEK ENVOY IS RECALLED FROM TURKEY

Delay of Angora in Settling Terms of Transfer of Nationals Is Cause of Extreme Dissatisfaction

VENIZELOS SOUNDS NOTE OF WARNING

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 27.—Greek Government has decided to call to Athens its minister in Angora for an explanation of the endless differences over the exchange of the populations between the two countries. With the Lausanne Treaty a special convention was signed to this effect between Turkey and Greece, but since July, 1923, the date of the signing of the Lausanne Treaty, this convention has never been entirely applied.

A Greek-Turkish subject living in Constantinople and whose status is not clearly established owing to this convention, cannot marry. The Turkish authorities will not give the necessary permission for the civil marriage, and as this civil marriage is obligatory by the new law in Turkey and must precede the religious ceremony, the church itself cannot even marry the persons of this category. And this situation has lasted many years.

Persons in this category cannot start for a voyage abroad nor in the interior of the country. They do not know if they will be exchanged or not, so they cannot engage in commerce. This is also one of the reasons for the economic crisis of Constantinople.

NEGOTIATIONS

Negotiations between the two governments for the settlement of these complicated questions through the Mixed Commission named by the League of Nations at Geneva have lasted six years. Lately it was said that an agreement was to be signed between the two governments, but now the Greek minister at Angora, M. Pappas, is called by his government to Athens for having exceeded his instructions, the situation again becomes difficult, especially as there is the grave problem of the race of naval armaments between Turkey and Greece.

Premier Venizelos of Greece has made some sensational declarations on this subject to the press.

It should be pointed out that since his return to power the Greek Premier has never spoken until now of a war, and until now his various statements to the press were invariably pacific.

The Turkish press here and at Angora has published in large type these declarations of M. Venizelos. The Turkish newspapers add that Turkey has the right to have any fleet that she desires. But Greece has also the right to see that this reinforcement of the Turkish fleet does not constitute a danger to her own security. Greece has many islands to protect, while Turkey has only coasts, which can be protected with the army.

The problem is insoluble, the two countries being right in their respective positions. The dispute is the same as that existing between some of the great powers, which was provisionally settled by the Washington naval conference. This is the reason why a similar naval accord must be signed between Turkey and Greece if it is desired to avoid a war.

TURKISH FLEET SUPERIOR

The official "Millat" published recently a message from Angora saying that the warship Yavous, formerly the German Goeben, will leave the docks of Ismidt shortly. This powerful unit gives to the Turkish fleet a certain superiority over the Greek fleet, although the Greek fleet is stronger in light unity of destroyers and submarines. It can be said that the situation between the two countries becomes daily more delicate, in spite of the pacific declarations made by the two governments in their parliaments, and especially by the Turkish Minister for Foreign Affairs. Happily, the memory of the World War is still fresh in the minds of the two nations and exercises a certain restraint on their national passions.

A candidate for election addressing his constituency was surprised by a voice which, calling from the back of the hall, said.

"Well, I don't care wot yer says, guv'nor, I wouldn't vote for you if you was the angel Gabriel."

Quick as lightning came the reply:

"If I were the angel Gabriel, you wouldn't be in my constituency."

CHESS NEWS AND NOTES

England—Lancashire Championship—The tie between Fairhurst and Broadbent is being settled by a match of four games, the winner to play, Matthews, of Blackpool, for the title

Ireland—The Dublin C.C. Championship—This event drew the strongest players of the D.C.C., the Sackville and University College. The complete scores are: P. Baker and P. Laracy, 4½ each; Cranston and Gerrard, 4 each; McDonnell, 2, Varian, 1½; Reynolds, ½.

The Irish Times credits Laracy with play of a very high order, a necessary corollary of a tie with Baker, the national champion.

J. J. O'Hanlon, Tailtean champion, plays at board No. 1 of the Irish 100, who meet a like number of English players in the Correspondence Match. O'Hanlon tied with Dr. Euwe at the Broadstairs meet, and he, as well as two or three other Irish players, have that highest faculty in chess, the imagination, the creative power of grand masters, but business comes before chess.

France—The Paris Tournament—Last week's column gave the scores of the leaders; we now give the final standing of all the competitors: Dr. Tartakower 8, not 8½, according to first report. Barata Colle and Borowski, 7 each; Sir G. A. Thomas and J. Cukierman, 5 each; F. Lazard, 5½; Koltanowski and Schwartzman, 5 each; A. Seitz, 4½; Miss Menchik, 3; Duchamp 2.

Australia—Melbourne C.C.—This club has a full programme for the coming season. Lightning tourneys, simultaneous displays or team matches will take place every week also the major and the minor championships will be played for on two evenings each week.—Australasian.

Czechoslovakia—The Carlsbad Tournament—The list will have at least twenty-one players, representing seventeen nations. Bogoljubow Germany; Canal, Peru; Capablanca, Cuba; Colle, Belgium, Dr. Euwe, Holland, F. J. Marshall, United States; Nimzowitch, Denmark. Dr. Vidmar, Jugoslavia; Sir George Thomas and Yates, England; Miss Menchik, Russia, Rubenstein, Poland. Grunfeld, Austria, are a part of this formidable array of talent. Dr. Alechin must be a spectator owing to the season and the gate, preventing the postponement of the world's championship match for the time required as a resting period between the two events. Bogoljubow is believed to be seriously impairing his chances in his forthcoming match with Alechin by playing at Carlsbad and allowing only five days to elapse between that event and the world's championship match.

United States—Marshall C.C.—The weekly rapid transit tourney was won by the State champion, Santasiere, whose score was 8-2; there was a triple tie for second between Reinfeld, Rudolf Smirka and Schlesinger, each with 4-4.

The American Chess Bulletin—The May-June number announces its survival for a quarter of a century, a great tribute to the genius for chess journalism possessed by its owner and editor, Herman Helms.

The president of the National Federation says: "That twenty-five years of able and unselfish work leaves every devotee of chess deeply indebted to Herman Helms. This useful periodical has been conducted by its editor at all times in the spirit of one who consistently endeavors to conform to the ideals inherent in the royal game itself. The well-informed are aware that chess is without a rival in the revealing of character. The standards of the game which have been upheld by Mr. Helms and The Bulletin are those that gentlemen unconsciously and naturally reveal to their opponents across the board." The foregoing is part of the tribute paid by M. B. Kuhns, speaking for the boards of directors of the National Federation.

Germany—In The Deutsche Schachzeitung is a statistical record of master tournaments down to the end of 1928, showing there were 102 to date, of which 33 were held in Germany, 14 in England, 11 in Czechoslovakia, 9 in the United States, 8 in Austria, 6 in France, 5 in Hungary, 4 each in Belgium, Holland and Russia, 3 in Spain, and 1 each in Italy and Sweden.

Poland—The club championship, with six teams of six a side, was won by Warsaw, who won 4-1 in matches and scored 23 game points. The other scores were: Lodz, 18½, Krakow, 15½; Lwow, 13, Slask, 10½, Posnan, 8½.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

World-Famous Stories

THE VISION OF THE FOUNTAIN

By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE

(Nathaniel Hawthorne, 1804-1864, was an American writer of romances and short stories. He is particularly famous for his novel, "The Scarlet Letter," and his collection of "Twice-Told Tales.")

From my childhood I have loved to gaze into a spring. In one spot, in the spring into which I was now gazing, the gushing of water violently agitated the sand—it appeared as if some living creature were about to emerge, the Naiad of the spring, perhaps, in the shape of a beautiful young woman, with a gown of filmy water-moss, a belt of rainbow drops, and a cold, pure, passionless countenance.

Reclining on the border of grass, where the dewy goddess should have been, I bent forward, and a pair of eyes met mine within the watery mirror. They were the reflection of my own. I looked again—and lo!—another face, deeper in the fountain than my own visage, more distinct in all the features, yet faint as thought. The vision had the aspect of a fair young girl, with locks of pale gold.

A mirthful expression laughed in the eyes and dimpled over the whole shadowy countenance, till it seemed just what a fountain would be, if, while dancing merrily into the sunshine, it should assume the shape of a woman. Through the dim rosiness of the cheeks, I could see the brown leaves, the slimy twigs, the acorns, and the sparkling sand. The solitary sunbeam was diffused among the golden hair, which melted into its faint brightness, and became a glory round that head so beautiful.

My description can give no idea how suddenly the fountain was thus inhabited, and how soon it was left desolate. I breathed and there was the face! I held my breath, and it was gone! Had it passed away, or faded into nothing? I doubted whether it had ever been.

For a long time I sat perfectly still, waiting till it should recover, and fearful that the slightest motion, or even the flutter of my breath, might frighten it away. Was she a water-nymph? Or fairy or woodland goddess? Or had a lovely girl, with a warm heart, and lips that would bear pressure, stolen softly behind me, and thrown her image into the spring?

I watched and waited, but no vision came again. Sad and heavy, I was returning to the village. Between me and the church spire rose a little hill, on it a group of trees. Glory and gloom were mingled in the placid light of the late afternoon. I was admiring the picture when the shape of a young girl emerged from behind the clump of trees.

My heart knew her; it was the vision; but so distant and ethereal did she seem, so unmixed with earth, so imbued with the pensive glory of the spot where she was standing, that my spirit sunk within me, sadder than before. How could I ever reach her?

When I gazed a sudden shower came pattering down upon the leaves. In a moment the air was full of brightness, each raindrop catching a portion of sunlight as it fell, and the whole gentle shower appearing like a mist. A rainbow, vivid as Niagara's, was painted in the air. Its southern limb came down before the group of trees, and enveloped the fair vision, as if the hues of heaven were the only garment for her beauty.

When the rainbow vanished, she, who had seemed a part of it, was no longer there. Was her existence absorbed in nature's loveliest phenomenon, and did her pure frame dissolve away in the varied light? Yet, I would not despair of her return; for, robed in the rainbow, she was the emblem of hope.

Thus did the vision leave me; and many a doleful day followed that parting moment. By the spring, and in the wood, and on the hill, and through the village, at dewy sunrise, burning noon, and at the magic hour of sunset, I sought her, but in vain. Weeks came and went, months rolled away, and she appeared not.

I imparted my mystery to no one, but wandered to and fro, in solitude, like one that had caught a glimpse of heaven and could take no more joy on earth. I withdrew into an inner world, where my thoughts lived and breathed, and the vision in the midst of them.

In the middle of January I was summoned away. The day before my departure, visiting the spots which had been hallowed by the vision, I found that the Spring had a frozen bosom. Most of the day was spent in preparing for the journey. About an hour after supper, when all was in readiness, I descended from the chamber to the sitting-room, to take leave of the old clergyman and his family, with whom I roomed. A gust of wind blew out my lamp as I passed through the entrance.

According to their custom, the family were sitting in the parlor, with no other light than what came from the hearth. The foundation of the fire was a large heap of tan or ground bark, which would smoulder away with a dull warmth and no flame. There was no light, except the little that came from two half-burnt brands.

But I knew the position of the old minister's armchair, and also where his wife sat, with her knitting-work. Groping through the gloom, I found my own place. I noticed there was less room than usual, tonight, between the clergyman's chair and mine.

As people are always silent in the dark, no word was said for some time after my entrance. At times the fire threw out a brief and dusky gleam, far too faint to light up the faces in the room. The silence was finally interrupted by a remark addressed to someone in the circle, who was called Rachel. The answer was a single word, but in a voice that made me start, and bend toward the spot whence it came.

Had I ever heard that sweet, low tone? If not, why did it rouse up so many old recollections, and fill my mind with confused images of her features, who had spoken though buried in the gloom of the parlor? Whom had my heart recognized, that it throbbed so? I listened to catch her gentle breathing, and strove, by the intensity of my gaze, to picture forth a shape where none was visible.

Suddenly the fire blazed up with a ruddy glow, and where the darkness had been, there was she—the Vision of the Fountain! A spirit of radiance only, she had vanished with the rainbow and appeared again in the firelight, perhaps the flicker with the blaze, and be gone. Yet, her cheek was rosy and lifelike, and her features, in the bright warmth of the room, were even sweeter and tenderer than my recollection of them.

She knew me! The mirthful expression that had laughed in her eyes and dimpled over her countenance when I beheld her faint beauty in the fountain, was laughing and dimpling there now. One moment, our glance mingled—the next darkness snatched away that Daughter of Light, and gave her back to me no more!

Fair ladies, there is nothing more to tell. Must the simple mystery be revealed, then, that Rachel was the daughter of the village squire, and had left home for a boarding school the morning after I arrived, and returned the day before my departure? If I transformed her to an angel it is what every youthful lover does for his mistress. Therein consists the essence of my story. But slight the change, sweet maids, to make angels of yourselves in some young man's heart of hearts!

The Auction bidding of this deal presents no problem but at Contract the North player is faced with the necessity of deciding upon the correct response to an original two No Trump bid by partner.

There is a well established convention at Contract as to the requirements for an original two No Trump bid, namely at least 4 Quick Tricks with all four suits stopped, three of which are doubly stopped. Thus, it may be seen that an original two No Trump shows a tremendously powerful hand and that partner should assist if holding anything that even looks like a high card trick, and must take out if, lacking any high cards, he holds the probability of two long card tricks. The procedure of the North hand in this deal will clarify the question of weak responses to original two No Trump bids.

SALIENT POINTS OF THE BIDDING

Auction: South bids one No Trump and neither opponents nor partner have any sound reason for an over call or take out.

Contract: South bids two No Trumps originally holding the requirements for such bid as outlined above. West passing, North considers whether he should take-out with three Diamonds or assist the No Trump. With two Queens, North's preferable procedure is to bid three No Trumps. His partner, having shown double stoppers in three suits, must hold a double stopper in either Diamonds or Clubs, or both, and therefore it is safe to conclude that at least one of these suits is practically solid as to tops.

THE PLAY

West leads initially his fourth-best Spade, the 5, a fortuitous opening for South as it obviates the necessity for his taking a possibly losing Spade finesse. South wins the first trick with the Queen of Spades and stops to count the hand. He figures his tricks as follows: two Spades, the Ace of Hearts and five Diamond tricks, or eight in all plus either the King or Queen of Clubs.

Declarer's best procedure therefore is to play his Ace and King of Diamonds at once to find out the adverse split of this suit. Both adversaries following to these two leads, South is now assured of his five Diamond tricks, and shifts to Clubs to set up the needed game trick in that suit rather than run down the Diamonds and force discards from his own hand.

Accordingly he leads the King of Clubs, which places West in a most embarrassing position as, should he win this trick, he has no sound lead. West, therefore, allows the King to hold following which South must now take in his Diamonds as he cannot be sure but what East may hold the Club Ace-Jack over Dummy's Queen.

On the three round of Diamonds South and West have two discards to make and South's continuation of play thereafter will depend wholly upon West's discards. He has seven tricks already in and holds the Ace of Hearts and Ace of Spades which must surely make giving him game and the only question is whether or not West, by his discards, will be forced to give up one or two extra tricks when thrown in the lead.

Sea Birds Throng Sanctuaries in Quebec Province

Thousands of sea birds—gannets, eider ducks, puffins, cormorants, terns, and many others—wheeling and screaming or covering the nesting ledges like banks of snow, is the scene which presents itself to the visitor to the bird sanctuaries of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Since the earliest times the Bird Rocks of the Magdalen Islands, Perce Rock, and Bonaventure Island off the Gaspe Coast and the islands along the north shore of the gulf have been the breeding grounds for countless numbers of sea birds and the protection their bird inhabitants have received because of the Migratory Birds Convention Act, has resulted in greatly increasing their numbers. Each year the sanctuaries are visited by a migratory bird officer from the Department of the Interior and careful note is made of the increase among the birds under protection.

The fame of the bird sanctuaries of the St. Lawrence, which number thirteen, has spread and growing throngs of tourists make the trip by rail or steamer each year. The Gaspe Coast rookeries were set aside in 1919 and those along the northern shore of the gulf were established in 1925. All are under the joint control of the Dominion Government and the Quebec provincial authorities.

THE KING'S POLICY

In the things that matter most at the moment, King George has most definitely had a policy—a policy of despising fantastic luxury and indiscriminate innovation, of preserving the old social sanity which used to be counted specially English. It has been his fate to live at exactly the moment in history when the ruin or restoration of this particular normal and national habit will certainly be accomplished. It has probably made a vast difference that the first family in the nation has been so firmly fixed on that foundation. It has made it impossible for moderation and modestry, and common sense in custom and costume, to die out in the lower middle classes as things entirely dowdy and discredited. A mere aristocracy is always ready for the newest thing. The aristocracy, whatever its other virtues and vices, has been quite ready to go the pace and to set the pace. Monarchy has taken on again something of its ancient leadership in matters that were once counted light and trivial, but which have become in this strange season and in the eyes of all the wise, very weighty.—G. K. Chesterton in The Illustrated London News.

THE HOME OF QUALITY AND SERVICE

PROPER PLUMBING PRIME NECESSITY

Convenient and Efficient Outlets for Water and Waste Ensure Sanitary Conditions

It is conceded that the small house not properly wired is a "back number." But what about the house that has not been properly attended to by the plumber. Here is just about as important a matter as there is in the whole construction of a modern home. Convenient and sanitary outlets for water are as necessary as electric wiring, and the wise homebuilder will not overlook this point.

There are practically three parts in the plumbing system of a dwelling—the pipe that brings in the water, the piping that takes it out, and the third is made up of fixtures. A home may be made to function much easier if it has a few additional fittings and equipment that aid in the more efficient water supply, and exhaust.

In the supply system water comes through the meter, through main shut-off valve, and goes to the fixtures. This is the bare fitting in the ordinary way; but convenience calls for stops at the fixtures in addition to the faucets. When the faucet has to be repaired, unless these stops are there, all water in the house has to be stopped—making it very inconvenient for the housewife and, for the time being, less sanitary. A compression stop cock at the base of each riser is the least that should be done in this connection.

Opportunities for improvement are offered in the kitchen sink, especially in regard to the faucet. A combination faucet is a time saver—a "convenient outlet." This device allows the temperature of the water to be adjusted. Lavatories may also be equipped with combination faucets.

In place of the ordinary rubber stopper attached to a chain used in the outlet of the lavatory, may be used the "pop-up" waste, another convenient outlet. This consists of a knob on the top of the lavatory that can be raised, or lowered, to regulate waste of water. This is not an expensive addition and brings much added convenience.

Extension of the hot water supply system may be brought about from bare necessities to absolute luxury with comparatively small outlay and with greater efficiency and comfort. The simplest water heater is a loop that extends in to the house heater from which the hot water supply is derived in Winter time. When the furnace is not working an auxiliary gas coil will do the work. This may be a simple one that has to be lighted when needed or it may be an automatic one, some of these operating when the hot water faucet is opened. Thermostats operate other types so that there is always an abundant supply of tempered water on hand. The choice of these convenient hot water supply systems must be guided by what one can afford.

Plumbing fixtures as offered by the manufacturers may be obtained at a wide range of style from the most simple to those in which luxury abounds. There will be found no difficulty in any purse of securing any amount of convenient fixtures for the toilet necessities of the bathroom.

LOVE OF HOME

Home is still there, but no one is living in it permanently but the baby. The other occupants wander cheerfully in and out and just leave it there till they come back. It isn't clamped over them like a cloche over lettuce for them to mature in any more. Let us be starkly honest about this home business. It is the exile's eyes that dim over "Home, Sweet Home," not the eyes of the daughter of the house sitting in the middle of the scene listening to the touching words over the wireless because it's the maid's night out.—Coristine Jope-Slade in The Woman's Journal.

SPORTS IN BRITAIN

The enthusiasm for sport, extending from the King and the Prince of Wales to the humblest apprentice in the coal mines, is a unifying influence that has its great social value. Undoubtedly the betting habit has spread beyond bounds, and it should be curbed, if possible, by moralists and statesmen. But the British fondness for sport, as such, is a wholesome thing. It may be studied to advantage in relation to the shortening of working hours, the improved standard of health, and the rise in every way of the British democracy.—Albert Shaw in The American Review of Reviews.

Lumps in Melting Pot

From the standpoint of Europe, the greatest of republics is a stupendous uniform mass. Its people are believed to have been welded into a mighty sameness, to have become a single standardized community, feeling, saying and doing the same things under the pressure of a common continental system. To the American himself, especially if he belongs to the older Anglo-Saxon stock, this European notion of the United States is an absurdity. So far from the American people being unified, they are to him a congeries of alien and dangerous communities. They continue to speak the languages of Europe. They are not within sight of the goal of assimilation.—New Statesman (London).

NONMETALLIC MINERALS USED IN INDUSTRY

New Report Shows Growth of Application to Manufacturing in Canada

OUTPUT VALUE SHOWS INCREASE

Establishment of new industries to work up nonmetallic minerals, and the expansion of existing enterprises of this class in Canada, are reflected in the continued rise through several years of the sums invested in the group of plants classed by the Bureau of Statistics as manufactures of the nonmetallic minerals in Canada on which a comprehensive report covering the calendar year 1927 has been printed and is available for distribution.

Producing more than $175,000,000 worth of finished products, the 1,184 concerns mentioned in this report represent a wide range of manufactures of which petroleum refining, the manufacture of illuminating and fuel gas, the production of coke, the manufacture of cement, may be regarded as leading examples. Industries such as brick and tile making, cement, lime and salt usually regarded as primary mining industries have also been included to make the report comprehensive.

Of the fifteen main industries included, thirteen reported gains in output value over the previous year and only two showed lower output values.

Manufacturing of secondary products from nonmetallic minerals was centred in Ontario and Quebec. Fifty-four per cent of the factories were located in Ontario and 21 per cent in Quebec. Ontario's output in this group was valued at $85,832,634 or 51 per cent of the total for Canada, and Quebec's output was worth $41,998,404, or 27 per cent. Nova Scotia ranked third with an output worth $12,265,962; in order of production the other provinces were, Alberta, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Capital employed in the manufactures of nonmetallic mineral products in 1927 was reported at $373,933,057, an increase of $18,200,000 over the corresponding figure for the preceding year.

Copies of the report are available for distribution, and may be had on application to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa.

Shakespeare Enlisted

Shakespeare himself is the most effective of Tory agents. If English education consisted, like the Roman, almost exclusively of the study of the national poetry, our Socialists could shut up shop. The Englishman's political ideal, when he is not led astray to follow after strange gods, is the maximum of private liberty compatible with public order. That is also, in one of its aspects, the ideal of the Conservative Party; and it is what Shakespeare meant by that magical and most English phrase, "night's rest and neighborhood" . The tone of English literature is so incurably aristocratic that the Conservatives have no need to worry about propaganda. They have but to encourage the sale of cheap editions of the national classics.—Saturday Review, London

Empire-Wide Organization Of Business Men Is Needed To Realize Opportunities

Written for the Canadian Press by Hon Frank Carrell, Member of the Legislative Council of Quebec

QUEBEC, July 25—During my recent two months' stay in London I was impressed with the necessity of an organization of business men throughout the Empire to unravel and settle many conflicting commercial problems, which I believe are retarding the expansion of trade within the Empire.

There seems to be no organization among the many existing within the Empire to cover this situation. I interviewed many prominent men on the subject and met many Canadians, and am more than ever convinced that a fresh organization should be formed. It will be of inestimable value to all governments and trading associations of the Dominions if the many conflicting problems could be aired and solved by coming together by mutual understanding.

The unemployment situation in England and the raising of the tariff in the United States are blessings in disguise They are awakening the business men of the Dominions and the Motherland to do some serious thinking, and this should lead to action. This is why it is absolutely necessary that there should be some central agency—a clearing house one might say— to co-ordinate the thought which is going through the minds of many today on a subject of such vital importance to capital and labor throughout the Empire

For instance, Canadians want to trade with Great Britain. They are becoming rich, efficient in manufacturing and beginning to travel, not alone, but with their families, considering it part of their education. I have met many of them, some touring England in their own motor cars, who would feel more at home if the formalities of signing their automobiles' entries were removed They are trifling irritating conditions which might be easily cleared away by an organization such as I have in mind.

NOT MADE IN BRITAIN

I met a prominent Canadian broker visiting England with his family, who was indignant with the fact that after shopping with his wife and purchasing seventeen articles in various stores to find the majority of them foreign made. The president of one of Canada's leading financial institutions was perturbed over the fact of being driven to his hotel in a foreign-made taxi, in a country with a million unemployed!

Another Canadian woman was indignant with an English friend who bought a dinner service made in Czechoslovakia. Naturally each country has its specialties—but ordinary goods used in England should be made in England Similar cases come to one's notice from day to day. How can we ask the people of Canada, much as we want to, to buy British-made goods when they come here to experience these conditions. They and their children return to become more and more Americanised than ever

The foreign trade policy of the United States manufacturers is to plant branch factories in all countries where there is a market for their goods They have honeycombed Canada with over 1,000 branch factories They are now penetrating Great Britain and will continue their course in other European markets. The result of this modern policy of trade expansion decreases export trade. Of course, Canada with its potential natural resources and immense water powers is benefiting by this American policy of foreign trade expansion with its string of branch factories and chain stores But does it benefit Great Britain? Again, the Americans build artistic as well as efficient factories, generally on the most important and conspicuous sites, thereby benefiting by constant and direct advertising of their goods. A few recently erected in London are eliciting much comment. One is even illuminated at night, but what is more noticeable than anything else to the practical business man, is that it is erected at a point where the motor traffic is enormous, and they are making goods for motor cars We can only compete with the American in his enterprise and foresight by emulating him. We are doing it in Canada, why not in England?

SALES SERVICE

Then take the methods of salesmanship and service, the most important adjuncts to export trade We can adopt many excellent ideas from the Americans in this direction The chain store, which really originated in England, has rapidly developed in America It is direct trading from the factory to the consumer It fills factories with orders. The Eaton dry goods business of Canada is worth observation They are expanding their business throughout Canada with branches of immense proportions thereby enabling them to keep their factories in full operation The American branch factory and chain store system has penetrated throughout Canada, and now is doing the same thing in Great Britain. That system will naturally increase American trade abroad. The process of this trade expansion is to introduce and sell American goods The export business must, in consequence, suffer Let me give you an example. I am financially interested in an American company which a few years ago was supplying the British and German markets with goods from its Brooklyn factory Now there are branch factories in both countries, therefore America ceases to export to them but the purchasing power of raw materials (steel, lead and copper) of these factories still remains American. Today Americans are not thinking so much of export trade in the literal sense, as they are of finding markets for their surplus goods, and it seems to me Empire manufacturers have everything to gain by emulation of this trade policy, and there is no greater way of building the foundation for this course than by establishing the greatest mutual understanding good will and sentiment on this question throughout the Dominions and Great Britain.

BRANCH FACTORIES

At a time I was talking to a British stainless steel manufacturer, whose plant was only working about 50 per cent of capacity, word arrived that an American stainless steel company was going to erect a branch factory in the province of Quebec. This will mean a loss of orders for Sheffield. If this firm had followed the American method of trade expansion through the establishment of branch factories six months ago, there is no doubt that the American manufacturer, who uses scientific reckonings in planning his industrial expansion, would not have ventured into Canada, because his research experts would not have considered the field large enough for two such factories. British manufacturers must reconcile themselves to the present-day American trade expansion movement, if they want to keep pace with the times.

I met a Canadian trade commissioner from India and asked him what Canada sold in that country. He said, "large quantities of automobiles." I could not help thinking that the Canadian automobiles were manufactured in American branch factories, the profits from which went to American shareholders. How amusing, yet how true. Here was Canada, glad to further the trade of her American branch factories in India, not only because it provided labor for her working population, but it evidenced her appreciation of the investment of American capital within her border.

I believe Canada and Great Britain are better at the present time without diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia, but this state of affairs need not interfere with taking orders for goods, if the purchasers have the gold to pay for them. While England is busy thinking over the matter, the Americans are capturing many concessions in natural resources and even laying the foundations for the establishment of branch factories—to advertise and educate the people in the use of American goods. Even Ford, who, one would think would be the last man in the world to have any truck or trade with the Russians, is reported to have closed a deal with them which will make his car the most widely known car in Russia, yet I have not the least doubt that Mr. Ford's principles do not condone the Russian conduct any more than the strictest minds in England, but Mr Ford, like many American manufacturers, draws the line between his personal views and his desire to find employment for working men and will go after business in any country with his branch factories as long as he can find a market for his class of car

Another strong factor among Americans is their overwhelming desire to obtain home-made goods along the world's travel routes. A similar patriotic sentiment with the people of the Empire would certainly increase Empire trade.

SUGGESTIONS

The discussion of these and many such important economic questions among employers and employees in all parts of the Empire as a medium of education would assuredly benefit and stimulate interempire trade The following suggestions would, I think, help us to achieve this purpose:

First—The organization of a representative body from all the Dominions, to meet annually in London or elsewhere to debate and solve by resolution many conflicting problems, independent of politics, but representative of capital and labor.

Second—That branches be established in all industrial centres to meet weekly or monthly, at which time, personally, or through the agency of the "talkies," the most prominent men of the Empire could address these meetings on the increase of trade within the Empire

Through this medium, with the use of the theatres at the noon hour millions of our Empire population would be enlightened on economic issues that would create greater understanding and good will and a material patriotism that would stimulate and increase trade within the Empire

The following are a few advantages that would be obtained by the activities of such an organization:

To support and help all Government efforts in interempire trade.

To remove political, racial, sectional or selfish motives from such efforts.

To make the object one of honor and patriotism to the commercial progress and welfare of one's country and one's Empire

To give all trade classes an opportunity of free discussion on all subjects pertaining or leading to the main issue.

To hold sessions every year, in London or elsewhere, to give final voice of approval to all branch resolutions, before presentation to all governments.

To encourage and assist workmen of an inventive disposition.

To publish, print and circulate in simple text form pamphlets such as "What does trade within the Empire mean to us?"

To meet weekly or monthly at luncheon or in theatres during the noon hour to keep movement alive

To protect Empire trade interests, particularly relative to discriminations of foreign countries.

To inspire employer and employee on the vital benefits of trade within the Empire.

To convert prominent and representative men to inter-Empire trade ideals

To educate the public on the economic principle of trading within the Empire.

To encourage and emulate America's efficiency, methods of salesmanship and national penetration where it does not exist

To become a happy medium of understanding on all conflicting trade questions now causing unnecessary prejudice and ill feeling.

From all whom I have interviewed, from the man in the street to the most prominent men, I can assure you no movement will meet with greater general public support, or favor, if a group of British public-spirited men will only lend a hand to give it a start. I feel sure Canada and all the Dominions will answer the call as they did in the Great War.

How to Restore Respiration in Cases of Apparent Drowning

The following instructions for artificial respiration, which should be applied in cases of drowning, are taken from the manual of First Aid Instructions for Miners, issued by the United States Bureau of Mines. Clip the instructions and keep them in your camp kit:

In using the Shaefer or prone method, place the person on his abdomen; remove from his mouth all foreign bodies, such as false teeth, tobacco and gum. The tongue usually falls forward of its own weight, but see that it is forward. Turn his head to one side and rest it on his forearm, so that the mouth and nose will not come in contact with the ground, and extend the arm forward.

BEGIN RESPIRATION

If the person is thin, prepare a pad of folded clothing or blankets and place it under the lower part of the chest. Do not wait to loosen the victim's clothing but begin artificial respiration at once An assistant may remove all tight clothing from the victim's neck, chest and waist. Blankets, hot-water bottles, safety lamps or hot bricks well wrapped in paper or cloth should be placed about the person by an assistant.

Kneel, straddling the person's thighs and facing the head; the palms of your hands are placed over the short ribs with your thumbs parallel with the spine about two inches apart and your fingers spread out as much as possible, the ends of the little fingers reaching just below the last rib With arms held straight, swing forward slowly so that the weight of your body is gradually brought to bear on the person. This operation, which should take about two seconds, must not be violent, lest the internal organs be injured. Then remove the pressure, but leave your hands in place, thus returning to the original position. After two seconds swing forward again and repeat deliberately about fifteen times a minute, the double movement of compressing and releasing, causing a complete respiration in about four seconds. If a watch or clock is not available follow the natural rate of your own deep breathing, swing forward with each respiration and backward with each inspiration.

DON'T WAIT FOR PULMOTOR

Do not wait for the arrival of a pulmotor before beginning artificial respiration. According to the Bureau of Mines, when breathing is suspended manual methods should be used at once, because there is a chance of reviving the patient if they are used immediately, but "if owing to delay, the cells of the brain have been derived of their supply of oxygen for more than the critical period (rarely more than ten minutes), it is utterly impossible for any later treatment to restore them to their normal condition."

Secretary Ernest H Cherrington, of the World League Against Alcoholism, said to a Washington reporter:

"Beer and light wines are being widely recommended nowadays, but all these recommendations remind me of a story

"One man said to another on a train:

"'What's that pink powder, friend, that you keep sniffing up?'

"'It's snuff—hay fever snuff,' said the other man.

"'Is it any good, friend? I'm a hay fever sufferer myself.'

"'Is it any good?' said the other man, warmly 'Well, sir, I've had hay fever twenty-nine years, and I've never took nothin' for it but this.'"

FIRE LOSS RECORD

Fire losses in Canada during the week ended July 17, 1929, are estimated by The Monetary Times at $2,199,600, as compared with $239,500 for the previous week and with $210,500 for the corresponding week of last year From January 1, 1928, to July 18, 1928, fire losses totalled $11,346,460, and from January 1, 1929, to July 17, 1929, they were $15,175,850.

The story is told that once when in the city of Washington, Bishop Galloway was accosted by a bootblack, with brush in hand, he said, "Senator," to which Galloway replied, "I am no senator." Quickly the bootblack retorted, "Judge," and the bishop replied, "I am no judge." "Well," said the boy, "what is ye then?" The bishop, smiling, answered, "I am a bishop of the Methodist Church, South." "Then," answered the bootblack, "I knowed ye was at de top whatever ye was."

FACE "SHINE" means tired tissues and sluggish cells. To restore a dry velvety finish and clarify and brighten a sallow complexion, give your skin this invigorating "toning up" two or three times a week. Get peroxine powder at any chemist's; after hot applications rub gently on the face Wash with warm and then cold water; apply cold cream. (We recommend Coral crème.) 1-28

PLANS READY FOR LEADER'S ISLAND TOUR

Hon. R. B. Bennett Has Engagements at Duncan, Nanaimo, Parksville, Port Alberni and Courtenay

MR. C. H. DICKIE PREPARES WAY

Parksville and Courtenay Meetings Will Be in Open Air — Others Will Be Indoors

The visit of Hon. R. B. Bennett to British Columbia this Summer is proving far from a holiday trip. His itinerary allows little time for recreation, except that which may be obtained to making long trips between points.

Speaking at the Conservative picnic on Wednesday the leader of the Conservative party has a well-filled programme for the remainder of the week, filling the engagements arranged for him on Vancouver Island. He will leave here Thursday morning, reaching Duncan for lunch, addressing a meeting in the Agricultural Hall at 2:30. It had been intended to hold a picnic there at which the leader would be given the opportunity of speaking,' but this plan has been changed owing to the fact that previous arrangements made for the grounds rendered it impossible to carry out the plans.

The Agricultural Hall is a large one, and will afford an excellent opportunity for the residents of the district to hear the eloquent leader of the Opposition in the Canadian Parliament.

NANAIMO AND PARKSVILLE

Mr. Bennett then will leave Duncan in time to allow of his arrival in Nanaimo in time to speak at a mass meeting in one of the theatres commencing at 8 o'clock. He will remain over for the night in Nanaimo and leave next day for a party picnic, which is set for Parksville on Friday afternoon. He will address the gathering at this picnic and leave in time to speak at a meeting called at Port Alberni that evening at 8 o'clock.

Staying over all night at Port Alberni, Mr. Bennett and party will leave again Saturday morning for Courtenay, where he will speak at a picnic on Saturday. In the afternoon he will leave by fast launch with General A. D. McRae, M.P., for Vancouver.

After resting over Sunday in Vancouver the leader resumes his arduous tour of the province on Monday, with an evening meeting in Chilliwack.

Mr C. H. Dickie, M.P., for Nanaimo, who arranged details of the Island tour, after leaving Victoria went over the entire route laid out and was in the city yesterday. He reports that all the places visited are enthusiastic over the approaching visit of the leader of the party. There is manifested everywhere, he said, a feeling similar to that which preceded the last provincial election, and which was followed by such a decided vote in favor of the Conservative cause.

Mr Dickie will accompany the leader on the Island trip, and also Mr. D. B. Plunkett, member for Victoria, and others prominent in the party.

PARISHES JOIN IN PRESENTATION

Strawberry Vale and Royal Oak Bid Farewell to Rev. A. L. Nixon and Family

ROYAL OAK, July 27.—On Friday evening at St. Michael's Hall, the parishes of St. Columba, Strawberry Vale, and St. Michael's Royal Oak, joined in a farewell entertainment in honor of Rev. A. L. and Mrs. Nixon and family, both parishes being well represented. The affair had been arranged by the social committee, Mr. William Stone acting as chairman, while the programme was in charge of Mrs. H. Sharp. The following artists from Victoria contributed various selections, which were much enjoyed and appreciated by the audience. Mr Plowright's mixed orchestra delighted the listeners with several numbers; Mr Stapleton, Mrs Bamford, Mrs. Sehl and Mr. F. Spooner gave vocal selections, with Mrs Grieves as accompanist.

Rev. F. A. P. Chadwick, rural dean, read a letter of regret from Archdeacon Laycock at his inability to attend and spoke of the esteem in which Mr Nixon is held both by the clergy and laity. He voiced the regret of parishioners at losing both Mr. and Mrs. Nixon and wished them all that was good in the new field of labor to which they are going. On behalf of St. Michael's parishioners he presented Mr. Nixon with a purse of gold, accompanied by an illuminated address, and from the parish of St. Columba a cheque. Mrs. Nixon was presented with a china tea set from the members of the Women's Auxiliary, Mrs. Popert making the presentation and adding a few words of appreciation and regret.

Ella—When are you to be married?

Stella—Whenever the man in the case gets his salary raised to a point where he will not find the alimony I expect prohibitive.

Nanaimo Man Loses Balance, Falls in Well

NANAIMO, July 27.—Mr. Steve Meiser, of South Five Acres, had a very close call with death last evening. When he was in the act of drawing a bucket of water out of the well he lost his balance completely and plunged headlong into twenty feet of water. In his fall Mr Meiser was injured about the arms, but he succeeded in clinging to a rope until his wife's calls for help were heard and he was pulled out of the well after a narrow escape from death.

CAR SMASH-UP PROVES FATAL

CHARLES NELSON VICTIM OF ACCIDENT ON ISLAND HIGHWAY

Companion Not Seriously Hurt When Car Overturns—Inquest Set for Monday

DUNCAN, July 27.—Charles Nelson, of Lake Cowichan, died in the King's Daughters' Hospital here early last evening. Death was apparently caused by internal injuries received in a car accident, which occurred between 8 and 9 o'clock last evening on the Island Highway at Tyee Siding. William Hamilton, of Cowichan Lake, who was also in the car, was not seriously hurt. The car was traveling south on the Island Highway; it overturned and then caught fire. Residents in the vicinity saw the fire and rushed to the rescue, and the Provincial Police were immediately notified and proceeded to the scene of the accident. An inquest will be held at 5.30 on Monday.

TRUCK STRUCK BY E. & N. TRAIN

Occupants Are Fortunate in Escaping When Rear End Is in Collision

NANAIMO, July 27.—When the truck owned by the McFarlane Motors Company, in which they were riding, was struck and partially demolished by the northbound E. & N. passenger train on the Comox Road shortly after 7 o'clock last evening, Emerson Dickinson, driver, and Clive Akenhead had a narrow escape from serious injury.

Laden with lumber from the Nanaimo Lumber Company's mill, the truck was aiming back to the city. The rear end of the truck was struck by the train and badly damaged. In many directions the lumber was scattered, with the result the train was delayed some fifteen minutes while an investigation of damages was being made. Being shut in by the cab of the truck, neither Mr Akenhead nor the driver had a chance to jump but, although given a severe shaking up, they luckily escaped without injury.

HEALTHY CONDITION CONTINUES IN THE NEWSPRINT TRADE

Newsprint statistics for the month of June indicate a continuance of the healthy condition that has existed during the last few months, namely, a ratio of production to capacity substantially higher than that which has existed for quite some time. In June, the ratio in Canadian mills was 86.7 per cent, and in United States mills 80.8 per cent.

June production of Canadian mills totalled 225,055 tons, which compares with previous months as follows:

	Canada tons	U.S. tons
January	212,191	123,822
February	187,200	103,644
March	218,147	114,586
April	221,784	116,679
May	245,644	123,504
June	225,055	113,407

For six months ended June 30, Canadian production totaled 1,311,474 tons, compared with 1,158,723 tons last year and 997,669 tons for first six months of 1927.

The operating ratio of 86.7 per cent in June compares with 79.2 per cent for June, 1928.

JOKERS TO MEET MILLMEN'S NINE

Ball Teams Will Clash in Important Game Tomorrow Night—Steele to Oppose Lidstone

Jokers and Sidney will provide the ball dish tomorrow at the Royal Athletic Park when they hook up at 6.15 o'clock in the last of the thirty games in the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League schedule.

The millmen in their last time out humbled the fast-stepping Tillicums and the fans are wondering if they will put the skids under the Jokers, and by so doing dislodge them from first berth.

Wade Steele is expected to go to the mound for Sidney, while the heaving in the Jokers' camp will in all probability go to Dan Lidstone.

John Chinaman—Dog

By RICHARD L. POCOCK

It was obvious that he had breeding. No wonder, then, that he resented being led on a rope by a common coolie to the "foreign devils'" compound, and little wonder also that, this resentment being such as it was, the coolie had taken the precaution to fasten the rope on one end of a bamboo long enough to keep John the Dog at a safe distance from his calves.

In size about half way between an Airedale and an Irish terrier, sandy-colored, with an aristocratic black muzzle, he looked a real dog, a gentleman dog, in a country where caste and class distinction is all-important, but dogs of blue-blooded ancestry are rare.

But, viewed as an aid to an exile in a strange country desirous of relieving the monotony of the daily supervision of Chinese miners by shooting a few ring-neck pheasants, a hare or two, possible a brace of bamboo partridge now and again, or, on rare occasions a six-foot long-tailed Reeves pheasant or a gorgeously plumaged golden pheasant, John the Dog at his first introduction was not a very promising prospect.

Certainly, could he have spoken, his words, on being introduced, would have been: "Pleased to meet you!" The coolie was obviously relieved when he took the price promised for the delivery of John the Dog into the foreigner's hands and transferred the safe end of the bamboo from his own hand to mine.

And then began a long trial of patience and will power. For twenty-four hours he touched no food—we offered him none. And then, what a breakfast did we set before him with our own hands and a would-be ingratiating smile!

He would have none of it while we were there, but hunger got the better of him when left alone, and the platter was cleaned.

MAKING OVERTURES

For two weeks he lived a lonely life in his shed, fed regularly by ourselves and none other, and at last his pride bent a little, and we were greeted one morning by an unmistakable wag of the tail. Relations were decidedly starting to get more friendly.

That afternoon we risked our skin and took him for a little walk, without the bamboo pole, but with the rope attachment to his collar. Then came the crisis.

Less than a hundred yards from home his soul rebelled, and he started to fight to get away. A bitten thumb was the worst wound given or taken in the struggle, and after that, strange as it may now and did then appear, he seemed to experience a complete change of heart. There were no more vain struggles to get loose, just a dignified acquiescence in Fate (characteristically Chinese), and from that day on a gradually firming friendship between him and me, and a polite tolerance of the other inhabitants of our compound.

But never, mark you! a slavish adherence. It was one thing to ask politely in that expressive dumb language of his for a piece of toast at tea time, but quite another to "kowtow," as might just a common coolie dog. And, even after I had won his trust, and, I hope and believe, his affection, and we had come to an understanding on some of our common interests of life, such as hunting pheasants and the correct procedure therein, I had to be mighty careful to respect his dignity.

At times, when I had been less careful of that dignity than he judged I should have been, he would retire to the top of a small hill outside the compound wall, to watch my doings at a distance with a sad and reproachful air, as if pained at my deficiency of manners.

And then the only thing to be done to bring about a rapprochement was to get out the old gun, carefully refrain from calling, whistling or even looking in his direction, and start out of the compound gate and up the opposite hill in the direction of the rice stubble fields or low bush beloved by phasianus torquatus.

THE RULING PASSION

Sooner or later there would be a padding of four feet behind, and sooner or later they would pass, and John the Dog, without a glance, without a sign that he even saw me, would be off in front and attending strictly to business. And with the first shot relations would be as before the rupture, and friendship recemented.

Oh! John the Dog was a dog of parts! Though at least three years old when we became acquainted, and never before that time a pheasant hunter, he took to the game as soon as he saw it played. He would scent the birds and point them like any white man's setter or pointer but with a little improvement in technique of his own. Body rigid, paw upraised, nose pointed straight to the bird, he would mark the quarry, but, as if to make more certain that his human partner noticed what was up, that old tail of his was the one part of him that did not freeze and that just wagged and Wagged, and WAGGED to attract attention.

And after that, what excuse for a man to miss the shot? And if he did, small wonder John the Dog found it hard not to express his contempt, and more than a bit difficult for a while to resume the business in hand with quite the former enthusiasm.

Keeping himself strictly aloof from others of his kind of less blue-blooded ancestry, he was not popular with the canine hoi polloi of the district, and more than once one had to come to his aid against the brute force of the rabble. Never would he turn his back no matter how overpowering the enemy's numbers.

And so it came about that one day he was missing and after hue and cry was at last brought into the compound sadly hurt and apparently at death's door.

For a week and more he lay refusing food, until at last his wounds began to heal and he slowly recovered his interest in life. But, though the spirit was still willing, the flesh had been weakened by his terrible hurts, and his hunting days were numbered.

Came a day when we had to part. Aged and infirm, the old dog was left in kind hands and I trust his last days were happy. His bones rest, as they should, in the land of his ancestors. A good scout, if there be another life in a better land for dumb creatures, John the Dog will surely be there. And why not?

TELLS OF GREAT MEN OF CANADA

Premier of Ontario Writes Introduction to Work of History—Second Series of Life Stories

Ontario's Premier is not one to let the grass grow under his feet. In September, 1927, the Association of Canadian Clubs adopted a resolution that an exhaustive survey be undertaken, with a view to finding remedies for the inadequate teaching of Canadian history in Canadian schools. In 1928 Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, as Minister of Education, gave his benediction, in the form of a preface, to John Henderson's "Great Men of Canada" (Southam Press). Whether the distinguished committee has come to any conclusion, the present writer is unaware; but Mr. Henderson's "Great Men of Canada, Second Series" (Southam Press), has just appeared, with its own signed preface by Mr. Ferguson.

These two books illustrate at least one, and one of the best, ways to remedy the shocking state of ignorance as to their country's history in which students of an older generation usually left high school and graduated from university. With all due respect to the excellent work of Mr Henderson as author, Mr. Ferguson, as Minister of Education, if he did not inspire these books, is a public benefactor in the alertness with which he has seized on them as a means of stimulating sound education in this important subject.

For they are based on the ancient and noble principle that the chief work of the educator is to foster the love of knowledge. If the desire to know be awakened, if the pupil once becomes aware that knowledge is pleasant, he can hardly be stopped thereafter from acquiring it. My first thought on opening one of the volumes was that Johnnie would have a hard time preparing his lesson as father would be forever sneaking off with the book. So I was not surprised to learn from the publisher that the demand of the adult public is being met by a "trade" edition. The solution of Johnnie's problem lies in telling father, when this textbook is bought, to get himself a copy of the library edition.

Popularity has resulted naturally from a combination of the "outliner's" brevity and readability with a touch of the technique of the short story. The chapters are relatively short. Only the important things are covered, and among such the author has had a wary eye for the bits of color or drama that rouse interest and hold it. The sketch of Sir John Thompson begins with Riel and the impending defeat of the Macdonald Government on account of his execution. Rises a new member to make his maiden speech, and turns the decision of the House. Only then, when the reader has seen the man in action at a decisive moment, does the author start to explain who Thompson is, and what he had done before, the narrative flowing easily on to his subsequent triumphs. That is not the only way to impart historical information, but it is a very good way, especially for most children, whose minds are apt to wander from a too-stilted recital, and for most adults, whose minds are also prone to wander.

The first volume begins with "The Explorers," which is chiefly about Sir Alexander Mackenzie, who followed to the northern sea, at the age of twenty-five, the river that now bears his name, and at twenty-nine was the first man to reach the Pacific overland across the Rockies. Then come sketches of John Greves Simcoe, Lord Durham, Sir John A. Macdonald, George Brown, Sir Georges Cartier, Joseph Howe, Sir Alexander Galt, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Leonard Tilly, Thomas D'Arcy McGee and Lord Strathcona. Of the twelve it will be noticed that all of them are famous principally for their part in politics, except Mackenzie, the pathfinder, and the governor of the Hudson's Bay Company who also, but incidentally to his business, engaged in politics.

The second volume shows a welcome broadening of the scope of the work to include pioneer leaders in other callings. Here we find Lord Shaughnessy and Sir William Van Horne of the C.P.R., a thumb-nail history of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, with special reference to Lieut.-Col. James F. Macleod, Sir Sanford Fleming, the great engineer, and Sir Adam Beck, father of the public ownership of electricity. In this class we should also put Egerton Ryerson, whose political activity was mainly in the interests of education. "The Opening of the Northwest," too, is only in part about the fine and striking figure, John Norquay, the half-breed premier of Manitoba.

The remainder of the book is devoted to the careers of the statesmen, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir James Douglas, Alexander Mackenzie, Sir John Thompson, Robert Baldwin, Sir Oliver Mowat and Sir James Whitney. A simple quotation from the last named will both illustrate the straightforward forcefulness of the writing and prove that political bias has not been allowed to tamper with fact. "He could not achieve affection; respect, yet, but not affection. His manner with the ministers of his cabinet was frequently exasperating. He wanted to do everything himself, he was too interfering in his methods. His manners were brusque almost to the point of rudeness, his sarcasm was of the kind which is frequently sardonic, and the quality he possessed which he described as 'bluntness,' frequently became boorishness."

Marginal decorations, adding enormously to the attraction of the book, have been used at the lower corner of each page, after the manner of Seton Thompson's wild-animal biographies, and rest assured that the fauna behind prime ministers desks are just as interesting as the naturalist's grizzlies and cotton-tail rabbits. Yet one of these sketches furnishes the only complaint I have to offer, and, oddly, it concerns Sir James Pliny Whitney. On page 135 he is seen riding a bicycle in derby hat and mutton-chop whiskers. So far so good. Where the artist is wrong is in making his legs too long and the bicycle not nearly high enough, nor the mutton-chops nearly aggressive enough. His torso was also much stouter than in the picture. As I often saw him riding across Queen's Park, I used to wonder how so fat a man, who rode so slowly, could keep his seat. He rode gingerly, with great dignity as befitted his office. The gesture was symbolic. As governor, he went slowly and ponderously, too, but he never lost his seat.

Cougar Bagged In the Early Morning Hours

Tearing down chicken coops in early morning just as Old Sol is about to sneak out through the clouds might be an interesting pastime, but such an act on the part of a cougar cost the poor animal its life yesterday morning on the South Saanich Indian Reserve, twelve miles from town.

The big mountain lion was having an amusing time until her antics awakened a dog owned by Alex Joseph, an Indian, and the dog set up such a howl that the cougar became alarmed and sought refuge in a nearby tree. While she rested peacefully, but nervously, Alex Joseph was putting on his clothes and getting out his shotgun. Shortly after he arrived at the scene, the gun barked twice, and the cougar "fall down and go boom." She was dead. The kill was made at 4 o'clock.

For the past week this cougar has been terrorizing residents of Oak Bay, Uplands and South Saanich, eating ducks, geese and young turkeys, but now her reign of terror is ended.

OLD ROME FIRST TO INTRODUCE TRAFFIC RULES

Caesar Wrote Code Which Gave Pedestrians Right Over Vehicles—Also Set Assessment Law

VESTAL VIRGINS WERE EXEMPTED

Old Rome had traffic troubles and they were so vexing that Caesar, a year or two before he died, formulated rules of the road for the regulation of the gilded chariots which came racing into the city and for the ordinary types of vehicles used by the Romans of those days. Caesar considered the pedestrian first and so ruled that vehicles must remain outside of certain sections of the city, perhaps the shopping zones and business districts practically, between sunrise and sunset, except on special occasions when the restrictions were temporarily lifted.

In "A Panorama of the World's Legal Systems," written by Dr. John Henry Wigmore, professor of law at Northwestern University, is a translation of the Roman City code dated B.C. 45, which evidently was Caesar's code. He died in B.C. 44. Here are the rules obeyed by drivers in Rome:

"In the roads which are or shall be within the city of Rome, or within the limit of continuous habitation, no person, after the first day of January next following, shall be allowed in the daytime, after sunrise or before the tenth hour of the day, to lead or drive any heavy wagon, except where it shall be requisite, for the purpose of building the sacred temples of the immortal gods or executing some public work, to draw or convey material into the city, or where, in pursuance of a contract for the demolition of buildings from such places, and in cases and for objects for which it shall be lawful for specified persons and for specified causes to lead or drive such wagons.

"On all days when the Vestal Virgins, the director of religious ceremonies, and the priests, shall be required to ride in wagons in the city or by reason of the public religious ceremonies of the Roman people, or when wagons shall be required for a triumphal procession on the day fixed for such triumph, or for games, which shall be publicly celebrated within the city of Rome, or within one mile of the city, or for the procession at the circus sports, for all such causes and on all such days it shall be lawful for wagons to be led or driven in the daytime, anything in this law to the contrary notwithstanding.

"It shall be lawful for wagons, brought into the city by night, drawn by oxen or horses, if returning empty or conveying away refuse, to be in the city of Rome or within one mile of the city after sunrise in the first ten hours of the day, anything in this law to the contrary notwithstanding."

This same city code also provided for the assessment of the property owner for the building and maintenance of roads on which his property abutted. The assessments were fixed "according to the length and breadth of the road in front of their property." The code further provided that "if any person so assessed shall, within the next thirty days after he or his agent is notified of the assessment, fail to pay the money . . . then such person shall be bound to pay in addition half the sum to the party (the contractor) to whom he shall be liable."

FOOTPATHS MAINTAINED

The code also provides for the paving of footpaths by property owners, and says "Any person, before whose tenement a footpath shall be situate, shall be required to keep such footpath fitly paved along its whole length where it abuts on said tenement, with stones whole and closely compacted, to the satisfaction of the aedile (public official) to whom by this law the charge of the roads in that part shall appertain."

CHAPTER XIII

Colburn's cocktails were reducing his courtly manners to a point where they were all but invisible, the real man was showing through, uncouth, overfleshed, gross. "You just sit around a couple of minutes while I boil the egg."

He disappeared toward the rear of the apartment, and a silence of some awkwardness ensued. It was broken by Miss Vernon.

"What's he up to?" she demanded of Blade.

"Nothing special."

"He acts fishy. I know when he's acting fishy. Has he said anything about me?"

"No."

"He don't need to," she said savagely; "I can tell. A girl can always tell. He's through with me and out I go."

"Now, now," cautioned Blade.

"Now, now, what? Don't you want her to hear? She might as well get used to it. It'll be coming to her one of these days. Maybe six months, maybe a year—and then out."

"Don't make a fool of yourself," said Blade.

Suddenly the girl was on her feet, standing before Martha.

"Do you think you're any prettier than I am?" she demanded.

"Why, why—no," Martha said.

"Any better than I am?"

"Perhaps as to manners," said Martha coldly.

Miss Vernon sneered. "Well, you won't be. Not when he gets through with you. Test at the studio tomorrow! Maybe you think I didn't have a test. He gave me the whole works from first to thirty-third degree, and I fell for it. Ever seen my picture on a movie magazine?"

"No."

"And you never saw my name signed to any contract either. But here I am—and getting the gate."

"If," said Blade, "you don't shut up, I'll call Colburn. Miss Bundy is a friend of mine. Don't take out your grouch against Colburn on her."

"Friend of yours, eh? Then what's she doing here? Handing her to Colburn on a silver platter?" Suddenly her humor changed and she threw herself into a chair and covered her face. Blade stole a glance at Martha, who was sitting stony-faced and erect.

"I think I want to be taken home," she said icily.

"Nonsense," said Blade in a half whisper. "Pay no attention. It's just some family row, embarrassing, but none of our business. Be a sport, Martha. Stick it out. Colburn means business with you."

"It's humiliating."

"Maybe, but you don't get something for nothing in this world."

Martha pondered that briefly; before she had followed to their logical conclusions the several ramifications of this truism, Colburn returned.

"This way to the festal board," he said. "The ham sandwich and the fried egg are on the platter." He paused. "What's wrong?" he asked.

"I don't think I care to stay," said Martha.

"Why?"

Dicksie Vermon sprang to her feet. "It's I, if you want to know," not furiously but very quietly. "I've been saying things to her, and she's sore."

"You behave yourself," said Colburn venomously, "or you'll draw an out."

"It'll be permanent, won't it? You're through with me, aren't you? Picking the next one before I'm out of the room and making me sit to watch you do it. You like to hurt them, don't you, Sam? Always a little touch of cruelty at the wind-up . . . Like with Gloria James. And she was in love with you, too. Gave her the gate on Christmas Eve. A gorilla wouldn't have done that, Sam."

"Shut up—or out you go."

"Out I go, Sam, but not like Gloria. Carbolic for her, wasn't it? And how much did it cost you to hush it up? Think I don't know all about it? . . . And now it's my turn. Well, I'm no Gloria—and I'm not in love with you."

Colburn advanced a step, all vestiges of spurious culture evaporated. "Here, you——"

"I'm no Gloria James . . . Imagine dying for love of you. You pig! You lying, cheating, double-crossing pig."

"Here," intervened Blade, "for heaven's sake, pull yourself together."

"Keep out of this," said Miss Vernon. "This is between Sam and me. The last scene between Sam and me . . . Sam, you've cost me too much. I haven't anything left. It isn't as if I got anything back." Her voice lifted, became thin and shrill. "When I go out there's no place to go. You've advertised me too well. . . . The family won't have me."

Sudden sympathy for the girl stirred in Martha's heart; she saw something—not everything of the tragedy—comprehended little of what the girl was going through. She stretched out her hand to touch Dicksie's arm. "Hush," she said. "Come away with me. That will be better . . ."

"I'm going away," said Dicksie in a reedy voice, "but I'm going alone. . . . Sam, did you think you could get away with it—with me? Didn't you know me better?"

Colburn mouthed in incoherent rage. "Git . . . Clear out . . . Out." Then his face changed, became flaccid, pallid. His eyes bulged and his mouth opened to emit a cry of fear and protest. There were two shots . . . Martha had been watching Colburn's face and had not seen Dicksie snatch the revolver from her handbag . . . Two shots! . . . Colburn fumbled for the table, touched it with his fingers, clutched the embroidery which embellished it and pulled it with books and bric-a-brac to the floor. For an instant he stood swaying, then slumped to the table top limply and slid off upon the carpet.

"There," said Dicksie Vernon, and turning abruptly she walked to the front door, opened it, stepped through into the hall and disappeared.

The thing was done! The Vernon girl who had fired the shots was gone. Colburn lay on his face amid broken objects of virtu and, on the rug on this side of the table, the handbag and the revolver which it had concealed. It was unreal, not to be grasped in an instant. Mortimer Blade stood, clutching the back of a chair, wide of eye, motionless, and Martha did not believe.

"It's not so," she said aloud.

"My God!" said Blade hoarsely. And then both were silent and motionless again.

Martha closed her eyes, but opened them again quickly, because she saw frightful pictures against which her soul revolted. Strangely, in that first brief time, it was not shock at the death of a human being which rendered her weak, incapable of motion. It was rather astonishment — astonishment and protest that such a thing should have happened in her presence.

"This," she told herself, "cannot have happened to me."

Horror gripped her, not of the deed she had witnessed, but of its consequences to her. It had been her belief that the opinion of others as to herself and her conduct was without importance. What did she care what people thought? She was free, independent, possessed of a sort of divine right to do as she pleased—and public opinion was a negligible thing . . . Now she found it was not negligible. When she shut her eyes for that brief instant she had seen headlines, she had seen flaring, pictured scandal, she had seen ghoulish gloating—and her young life in ruins. Not her picture, beautiful and lauded in the motion picture magazines, but a photograph as "the women in the case."

Lifting herself by the arms of her chair, she stood erect and stared at Mortimer Blade. He was a man, and it was woman's right to look to man for help in emergency. But he, pallid, shaking visibly, was no strong reed upon which to lean.

"She's gone," he said, "and we're holding the bag."

"Is—is he dead?"

"I don't know . . . Yes . . . Yes . . ."

She gripped herself; something must be done, and she must take command. The walked to the table and looked down upon Colburn shuddering. Then automatically, almost without realizing she did so, she stooped, picked up the revolver, dropped it in Dicksie Vernon's bag and clung to it.

"Nobody's in the house," she said.

"Someone might have heard—the shots."

"Does anyone know that we came here?"

He stared at her, and some reason and resolution dawned in his vacant eye.

"No . . . We've got to clear out of this."

"And leave——"

"Do you want to be found here?" he asked roughly.

That was the solution—a chance of a solution. No one knew she was dining there. It was unlikely Colburn had told anyone. If, then, they could make their escape without being seen, the fact might never be discovered.

"Hurry," she said. "Hurry."

"Your hat. Don't leave anything."

"It's in the bedroom."

Blade returned with her hat and him, making a wide circuit not to pass close to Colburn's sprawling feet—grotesquely chubby feet. He opened the door a crack and peered into the hall. It was untenanted.

"Come on," he said.

They left the apartment swiftly, closing the door behind them, and almost ran down the hall to the sidewalk and turned to the right. Fifty feet away they met a man approaching, a Japanese, who glanced at them and passed on.

"A taxi," said Martha.

"No. Taxi men remember. We mustn't be seen in this neighborhood. We must be seen somewhere else, as far away as possible and as quickly."

"The L, then," she said, and they hastened on, mounted the stairs and entered a train which fortunately rumbled in as they arrived. They rode two stations and Blade arose.

"Where?" she asked.

"Miss Patty's," he said.

"Yes, yes. That's all right."

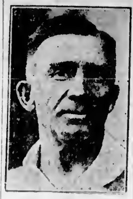
Deputy Minister Ends Treaty Flight



MR. WALTER C. CAIN

Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests, who, during Indian treaty flight, was taken ill and rushed to Sioux Lookout Hospital, has returned to his home.

DR. J. R. MOTT IS HOPEFUL

On his return from an extended tour in the Far East, in the course of which he visited India, Siam, the Philippine Islands, Japan, Korea, and China, Dr John R. Mott, head of the International Missionary Council, reports that there are at present twenty voices speaking and twenty pens writing with reference to promoting better relations between the nations, where there was one voice or pen so engaged as recently as his visit in 1922. He also observed a noted quickening of the social consciousness, and greatly changed psychology among Christian workers. Both Nationals and missionaries were becoming less depressed and hesitant. They were more hopeful and were gaining a new sense of direction.

Central Baptist Church

During the next five weeks while the pastor is on his vacation, special speakers will be in the Central Baptist Church pulpit at both morning and evening services. Sunday's service will be in charge of Rev Andrew Grieve, of Vancouver, well known to most Baptists as a very able speaker. Old friends will be pleased to hear him again and strangers will enjoy his message.

DRIED, CONDENSED AND EVAPORATED MILK

Canned milk leads all other canned goods in quantity. It is used in practically every nook and cranny of the earth. Its concentration makes it especially valuable in mining towns, construction camps, ocean voyages and even the average home kitchen.

The four or five hundred factories in North America all use the same underlying principle of manufacture, that is, of using a vacuum process to remove a portion of the 85 per cent or 90 per cent of water which milk contains. To secure a first-class product, the finest milk is needed, and the larger herds exercise a careful supervision over the cows and care of the milk. Indeed the quality of milk used is often superior to store and delivery milk.

The types of condensed milk manufactured are the sweetened and unsweetened evaporated, and the dried and powdered milk.

The term "condensed milk," although originally meaning any kind of evaporated milk, has lately come to be applied to the condensed milk which has been sweetened in the process of evaporation. The usual method of preparing sweetened condensed milk is to first standardize the butter and milk solid contents to conform with Federal standards. The milk is then heated to 208 degrees Fahrenheit for five minutes in order to destroy dangerous bacteria. Cane sugar is then added, and the mixture is emptied into vacuums of about 145 degrees until two and a half parts of the whole milk are reduced to one part of condensed milk. It is not as desirable from a dietetic viewpoint because of the large amount of sugar.

Evaported milk is made in practically the same manner except that the sugar is not added, and that it is also homoginized before cooling and is sterilized in the can for twenty minutes at 240 degrees Fahrenheit.

Dried milk is prepared by a number of processes, the two principal methods being the roller and spray. In the first method the milk is condensed in vacuums and then poured upon a revolving steel drum which is heated by steam to a temperature of 212 degrees. The milk dries almost immediately and is automatically scraped from the drum into receptacles and placed in empty cans.

In the spraying process the milk is sent under high pressure through a series of fine nozzles into steel chambers of hot air at a temperature of 270 degrees. The fine drops are promptly converted into milk powder.

These different types of evaporated milk may be diluted with water and almost resemble the composition of whole milk. The relative composition of the food substances remain unchanged except for the absence of water.

The advantages of evaporated milk are first, keeping qualities, secondly, concentration, and thirdly, freedom from disease germs. This last is considered quite important, as many cases of tuberculosis, typhoid fever, scarlet fever or dyphtheria and septic sore throat and children's diarrhoea have been credited to contaminated milk.

These concentrated milk products are heated to a temperature sufficient to destroy any of these organisms. The evaporated milks are readily digested, but they are deficient in vitamin C, and should therefore be used with fruits and vegetables.

American Doubles Team Checks Rush Of France's Best

John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison Defeat Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra in Straight Sets at Davis Cup Tennis Finals

PARIS, July 27 (Associated Press) —France will have to wait another day to pour champagne into the Davis Cup, the gleaming silver bowl that symbolizes world supremacy in tennis.

Hopeful of winning three straight matches, the French sent their best doubles team of Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra on to the court today against the United States, but the singles conquerors of "Big Bill" Tilden and George Lott were soundly and smartly beaten by two American collegians, John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, the one from Princeton and the other from Texas. France needs but one more victory in two matches tomorrow, however, to keep the Davis Cup another year.

America must win both to win back the trophy.

10,000 ATTEND

Ten thousand spectators packed the Roland Garros Stadium to see Allison and Van Ryn triumph in double quick time by scores of 6-1, 8-6, 6-4

Until today many a "garrulous Gaul" would have argued through a full hour and several drinks on the proposition that Cochet and Borotra together constituted the best doubles team that can be put on a tennis court, but not now

Cochet and Borotra, the one capable of sterling shots from anywhere on the court, the other nimble and an audacious artist at volleying, beat Bill Tilden and Francis T Hunter last year in the Davis Cup finals.

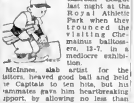
The Americans outplayed the Frenchmen at the start, capturing eleven of the thirteen games with a whirlwind attack and then possessing sufficient reserve to offset French rallies in the last two sets.

Allison's service was a vital factor in the victory. It was broken through only once in eight times.

CAPITALS DOWN CHEMAINUS AND GO TO THE TOP

Score is 13-7 in Mediocre Island League Exhibition —McInnes Heaves Good Ball—Errors Prominent

B. McBRIDE HITS HOMER IN THIRD



CAPITALS jumped into undisputed occupation of the premier berth in the Southern Section of the Vancouver Island Baseball League last night at the Royal Athletic Park when they trounced the visiting Chemainus balltossers, 13-7, in a mediocre exhibition.

McInnes, slab artist for the isitors, heaved good ball and held ie Capitals to ten hits, but his 'ammates gave him heartbreaking ipport, by allowing no less than ine bobbles to creep into their play.

Jimmy Dangerfield, doing the 'aving for the Capitals, was touched ir thirteen safeties, which inuded a circuit smash by B Mcride, but his team held him up the critical stages. Some idea the heavy hitting being done by e visitors can be seen by the fact iat Roy Copas, crushing the daisies the centre field was credited with x putouts. Some of these he picked f the fence.

"Fat" Johns, who usually covers e initial sack, completed the battery for Chemainus last night, but as not so good, having three miscues chalked up against him.

Robinson, playing third base for a visitors, led the sluggers with ree hits out of four trips.

UNITED WESTON DEFEAT C.N.R. IN SEMI-FINAL

Winnipeg Team Enters Final of Dominion Soccer —Fans Swarm Field When Fight Starts

MONTREAL ELEVEN DOWNS FT. WILLIAM

WINNIPEG, July 27.—In a hard-fought and rough Western Canada semi-final game here tonight United Weston, of Winnipeg, Manitoba soccer champions, qualified for the Canadian finals by eliminating the Canadian National Railways eleven, of Edmonton. The Edmonton team left the field two minutes from the end of the fixture, with the score 3-0 against them, after Referee Rose had ordered Winters from the field for striking McNeil, star Winnipeg left half.

Hundreds of fans swarmed over the field when Winters deliberately flattened McNeil with a straight right to the face after he had lost the ball to the Weston player. Graham had previously been ordered from the game for volubly disputing the officials' decision. The teams had played two tie games previously. They battled through a ragged and scoreless first half, with play about even, but Weston had a decided margin after the interval. McNeil, Melville and Tiley scored for the Manitoba eleven.

MONTREAL ADVANCES

FORT WILLIAM, July 27.—Montreal Canadian Nationals entered the finals of the Connaught Cup soccer series here today, when they lost to Fort William 3-1. The lead gained in the first game, which ended 5-3, however was enough to give them the series. They will meet United Weston, of Winnipeg.

Thrilling Finish at Vancouver Meeting

THE photograph here shows the thrilling finish of the women's 100-yard dash at the Vancouver Summer Carnival. Myrtle Cook, of Montreal, formerly of Toronto, is first; Lillian Palmer, of Vancouver, is a close second, with Mary Frazell, also of Vancouver, almost abreast of her, third. Ethel Smith Hogarth, Toronto, came fourth, just a few feet in the rear. The winning time was 11.4 secs.

Mehlhorn Holds Position By Victory in Met Open

Brilliant Score of 288 Betters Average But Not Place—Diegel's Total Keeps Him Intact—Henry Ciuci Placed Among First Ten

Taking a 296 in the Metropolitan Open, Leo Diegel managed to hold to fifth place in golf's seasonal averages, but Gene Sarazen's 300 wasn't good enough to keep him in sixth place, which he had occupied for some time. He slipped behind Walter Hagen, who advanced merely through not playing any tournament golf.

An unobtrusive figure in the medal race is Henry Ciuci, of Stratford, Conn. This young player, taking part in sixty-nine tournament rounds, has compiled the splendid average of 73 19-23 strokes to the round.

His medal average is higher than that of such stars as Al Espinosa, George Von Elm, Al Watrous, Harry Cooper, Bobby Cruickshank, George Voigt, Ed Dudley, Macdonald Smith, Willie Macfarlane, Johnny Farrell, Joe Turnesa, Jim Barnes, and others generally ranked higher. Yet fortune has failed to smile on him. Although he has frequently finished high up in important events, he has failed to win a single one.

Ciuci has a good chance to finish among the ranking ten medalists of the country this year if he can continue his steady gait.

He finished third in the Metropolitan Open and seventh in the National Open.

In the first encounter, Oaklands put it over their rivals, 9-3, but in the second battle South Park came back strong and scored a fine 7-3 victory.

Fred Smith, veteran of Canada's national pastime, will be in charge of the tussle and the teams will line up as follows:

Oaklands: Borde, Burnett, Taylor, C. Chapman, Alexander, Merriman, L. Chapman Williams, A. Chapman, Sweeney, Cockin, Nicol, Duckworth, Viggers and McKenzie.

TWENTY-FIVE CENTS' WORTH

In the good old days there was a fight emporium that used to put on bouts for twenty-five cents admission. Once, when a customer thought he was being cheated, he shouted to the two listless boxers to get a move on.

One of the men, turning lazily in a clinch, replied

"What d'ye want for two-bits—a civil war?"—Fight Stories.

VETERAN MAKES HIGH SCORE AS BIRTHDAY GIFT

VICTORIA'S TEAM REGISTERS HIGH

Major F Richardson, veteran Victoria marksman and for many years one of Canada's representatives at Bisley, celebrated his sixtieth birthday yesterday afternoon at Heals Rifle Ranges, by capturing the weekly shoot. He turned in the remarkable score of 102 for the 200, 500 and 600-yard distances.

Major Richardson compiled the following scores in capturing the honors, 35 points at the 200-yard range; 33 on the 500-yard, and 34 points on the 600-yard distance. Close on the winner's heels and tied for second place were Sergeant S Watson and Sergeant-Major Ruffel with totals of 101. Quartermaster-Sergeant Evans and Quartermaster-Sergeant McKay were deadlocked for third place with 100 each.

The highest shooting of the year took place yesterday, and this augurs well as the first eight men are members of the team which will represent the city in the big forthcoming meets at Ottawa and Toronto.

LEO DIEGEL

Who yesterday retained his Canadian open golf championship. Diegel led a select field of golfers by three strokes, finishing with a total of 274 for the seventy-two-hole grind. Tommy Armour was second.

A hectic struggle marked the final day in which thirty-six holes closed the competition. Diegel led Tommy Armour by a stroke at the start of the third round, but Diegel took 71 in the third round and Tommy was around in par 70.

In the afternoon there was nothing to choose between them for nine holes, each going out in thirty-four strokes, one under par. Leo picked up a stroke on the first three starting home. He bagged two birdies while Tommy's best was one. The champion then began to draw away and a birdie two at the short seventeenth left him with a chance to cut four strokes from par by scoring a par four at the home hole. With machine-like precision he reeled off the four and called it a day's work well done.

FOURTH VICTORY

No one but Diegel had ever won the Canadian title three times. He was home in front in 1924, 1925 and 1926, and made it four today.

He has never, however, captured the championship with such a score as that compiled today, nor has any one else.

Von Elm Has Best Chance He Has Had in Years to Win Back Title

He Should Be Bobby Jones' Most Formidable Opponent in California

By BUNKER

As Summer hastens on with that villainous speed which is so disgruntling to golfers who can't go South in the Winter, it begins to appear that no more than three gentlemen are apt to interpose serious obstacles in the way of Bobby Jones when he precipitates himself and his recovered golf clubs upon Pebble Beach, Cal., in September. No. 1 of these is George Von Elm, who is not in the books to fall by the wayside as he did at Mintkahda in 1927 and Brae Burn in 1928. So excellent a golfer cannot have such miserable luck three times hand-running.

GEORGE VON ELM

No 2 might be either George Voigt, the Long Island sharpshooter, or Dr O F Willing, of Portland, Oregon, owner of the greatest collection of titles ever collected on the links of the Pacific Northwest.

No. 3, ditto.

A survey of the golfing scene indicates that Mr. Watts Gunn no longer is the threat of prior years. Mr Francis Ouimet is too busy with business to bother about golf. Mr Jess Guilford after a spasmodic burst of efficiency in early Spring got off the track in June. Jess Sweetser is not the same lad that won the title in 1922, almost snared it again in 1923, and finally grabbed that marvelous victory in Britain in 1926. Indeed, the fellows that used to give the Atlantan an occasional black eye are almost lost on a disappearing horizon.

Dr. O. F. Willing

In the East a number of brilliants have developed in the last three or four seasons. Phillips Finlay, Gene McCarthy, Eugene Homans and Eddie Driggs are good ones. But the fact of the matter is that in strictly medal competition, this year, Finlay has averaged 75 1-5 strokes to the round, McCarthy 75 3-5 strokes, Homans 75 4-5 strokes and Driggs 74 strokes—a gait, be it said, considerably faster than Eddie has ever achieved before.

Mr. R. Jones, Jr., doesn't play that kind of golf.

Since the decline of Francis Ouimet and Jess Guilford, New England has become a negligible quantity in national golf. In the Middle West only George Von Elm, of Detroit, and Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, are really important contenders. Harrison Johnston has occasional flashes when he is a great medalist, but he seldom keeps up a fast gait extendedly. One has to take the long leap to the Pacific Coast to dig up any other material that offers to trouble the present champion.

WILLING STILL PEER

Dr. Willing is at present the peer of Northwest experts, professional or amateur. Holding four championships at the same time—the Pacific Northwest amateur, the Oregon open and the Oregon amateur, he also had established, late in June, the fine record of having played at a gait of 72 5-8 strokes to the round. If he is on his game at Pebble Beach he will give anyone—even Bobby Jones—a battle. It must be admitted, though, that the doctor never seems to do well in national events.

The Los Angeles district has a number of promising youngsters developing—Fay Coleman, Jack Gaines, Charlie Seaver, Danny Sangster and one or two others. But although they will be battling on home soil they are not of championship calibre.

The fellow who has a real chance to beat Bobby—the best he has ever had—is George Von Elm. Now a Detroiter, George will be actually at home when he shows up at Pebble Beach. California is where he learned his game and that is where he plays the best golf of all.

George has averaged approximately seventy-four strokes to the round in twenty-eight rounds of tournament golf during Winter, Spring and Summer, east, west and in England. But out on the Coast, in the sunshine of the Los Angeles district, he plays at a gait nearly a stroke a round superior to this game.

If he doesn't stop Bobby out there, it is scarcely likely that anyone else will. But of course someone may get to Bobby in one of those ghastly first rounds before he strikes his gait.

Slow Game Between Wanderers and Victoria Ends in Win for Former During the Last Over

DARCUS STARS FOR WANDERERS

Heavy scoring marked the game between Albions and Incogs yesterday at Beacon Hill, H. Allen scoring a century, being stumped at 161 for the Incogs. R. Wenman and F A Sparks also contributed useful scores.

For the Albions Pite, with 71 runs, and Mawhood with 67, substantially helped the Albions team.

A slow game between the Wanderers and Victoria ended in the last over in a win for the Wanderers by 86 runs. The slowest scoring seen at Cranmore Road this season marked the innings of the Wanderers, who declared with five wickets down for 145. Darcus, who had had the batting honors for the Wanderers, took five of the Victoria wickets for twenty runs. Attempting to play out time, Victoria were dismissed rather lightly for 59 runs.

Plans Under Way For Detroit 1930 Ice Hockey Squad

DETROIT, July 27.—When Manager Jack Adams, who signs players for both the Detroit Cougars and Olympics hockey clubs, dropped in town he gave out some information on the 1929-30 new players who will be on the Detroit ice sextettes this Winter.

The Olympics have signed three new men and have lines out for others. They are Stuart Evans, a defence man from the Iroquois Falls, Senior O.H.A. team; Jimmy Creighton, centre with the Port Arthur sextette the past season and Jack Steele, who played at right wing for the Niagara Falls Canadian League outfit.

Ebbie Goodfellow, centre; Harvey Rockburn, defence, and "Rusty" Hughes, defence, are the players who will go up to the Cougars from Canadian League clubs. The first two were members of the Olympics last season, while Hughes was the defensive star with the Buffalo Bisons.

It is planned to start outdoor conditioning work for the Cougars about October 20. Before that time Adams expects to have some other talent lined up for the Olympics and possibly for the National League club.

Marksmen Firing at Great Bisley Meet

THE above picture brings home some idea of the number of competitors who took part in the great Empire meet recently at Bisley. The photograph shows some of the competitors firing in the Roupell Cup match. The Canadian team did remarkably well this year, Lieutenant-Colonel Blair, of Vancouver, winning the King's Prize. In addition to bringing the greatest prize to the Dominion, Canadian marksmen won the prized Kolapore Cup in competition with picked teams from Great Britain and other Dominions.

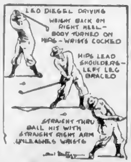
Leo Diegel Has Good Healthy Wallop



LEO DIEGEL DRIVING
WEIGHT BACK ON RIGHT HEEL—BODY TURNED ON HIPS—WRISTS COCKED HIPS LEAD SHOULDERS—LEFT LEG BRACED STRAIGHT THRU
BALL HIT WITH STRAIGHT RIGHT ARM UNLEASHES WRISTS

BY SOL METZGER

Leo Diegel's flop on the last day of the British Open recently, when leading Hagen, ought to prime his determination for the competition at Winged Foot.

Diegel believes in getting plenty of body and wrist into a tee shot, as much as anyone can. He's a loose-muscled hitter. Hence the tremendous wallop. Note how far around his shoulders are at the top and how far he cocks his wrists. Leo believes in getting his weight back at this point and succeeds by a wide hip shift laterally to the right.

Starting down he slides his hips with some force laterally to the left, swings down from the inside with a straight left and just before he meets the ball he drives into and through it with a straight right arm. That unleashes all the power of his cocked wrists. Next — the brace for such a wallop.

San Franciscan Captures Third Straight P.N.W. Title—Levy and Turenne in Final

SEATTLE, July 27.—Ed Levy, of San Francisco, or Leon de Turenne, of Seattle, will be Washington's tennis champion tomorrow. Both of them qualified for the final play this afternoon.

Levy defeated Driscoll, of San Francisco, 8-1, 8-4, 6-2, and Turenne defeated Dranga in a more fiercely contested match, 8-3, 4-6, 8-4, 0-8, 6-3.

Two singles and one pair of doubles champions were crowned today. Dorothy Weisel of San Francisco, beat Mrs. Golda Myer Gross, of the same city, 4-6, 6-0, 6-0, taking her third straight Pacific Northwest title. Jack Tidball, of Los Angeles, won the boys' junior title by outpointing Kyren Hynes, of Seattle, 6-0, 6-2, 6-3. Mrs Gross and Miss Weisel won the women's doubles when they vanquished Anne Cook, of Oakland, and Mrs Jerry Bartoth, of Los Angeles, 6-3, 6-2.

An old man who had bet a large sum on a certain fighter, saw him hit below the belt and counted out. After the battle, he walked up to the referee and asked, "Where's your dog?"

"Dog?" replied the referee. "I haven't got a dog."

"Well," said the disgusted old man "you're the first blind man I ever saw without a dog." — Fight

Montreal Ace Downs Frank Shields After Spectacular Battle

Singles Championship Returns to Canada by Wright's Victory—Olive Wade, of Toronto, Captures Women's Title From American

JACK WRIGHT

Of Montreal, who brought the singles tennis title back to the Dominion yesterday, when he defeated Frank Shields, of New York, in the final at Toronto. Wright displayed brilliant tennis in his victory.

TORONTO, July 27.—Canadian Men's singles tennis championship returned to the Dominion this afternoon when Jack Wright, Montreal, defeated Frank Shields, New York, 6-4, 8-4, 1-6, 7-5 in the final of the National tournament. The battle was won last year by Wilmer Allison, and he did not defend it because he was chosen member of U.S. Davis Cup team.

Wright's victory was the second international triumph of the day for Canada. In the National women's final Miss Olive Wade, seventeen, Toronto, defeated Mrs A F. Reise, Saginaw, Mich., 6-0, 1-6, 6-1.

Wright won his match by fine play and brilliant generalship, breaking through Shield's service. He bent all his energies to winning position to use his most deadly weapon, his terrific service. The crowd gave Jack a great hand for his fine victory, and applauded Shields for his most sporting and brilliant game.

The men's doubles championship won last year by Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, United States Davis cup combination, also returned to Canada. Wright and Willard Crocker, of Montreal, Canada's number two ranking player, defeated Shields and Don. Strachan, of Philadelphia, in the final match, 6-3, 6-4, 6-0.

MINTAKA WINS IN CLOSE RACE

Tern Shows Her Heels to Other Dinghies in Yacht Club Series Races at the Royal Victoria

NORTHERLY BREEZE HOLDS STEADILY

Mintaka, W. T. M. Barrett's star boat, was the winner in a close race for her class at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club yesterday afternoon when she crossed the line exactly 16 seconds ahead of the second boat and 45 seconds ahead of the third. Yesterday's victory puts Mintaka in the lead for the star boat series for the present year.

Boykin, sailed by R. F. Blandy, was the first of the four boats to cross the starting line upon the four and a half nautical mile course to a point off Willows Beach; thence to Flower Island; thence to a buoy off the Cadboro Beach Hotel and so back to the starting line. The tide was flooding when the race started and there was a smart sailing breeze, which remained in a northerly quarter throughout the afternoon.

By dint of shaving the rocks and by swerving into the little bays along the coast line, Genie avoided the worst of the tide and worked ahead. After rounding the Willows Beach mark, Blue Bird turned inshore, while the other three boats elected to work the main channel. It was at this point in the race that Boykin stood out too far into the tideway and lost ground.

The results and times for the star boats were as follows:

1. W. T. M. Barrett's Mintaka, 1:10.
2. Nick Blandy's Genie, 1:10:18.
3. E. S. Hourtley's Blue Bird, 1:10 46.
4. R. F. Blandy's Boykin, 1:12 47.

The race for sailing dinghys was won by Humphrey Golby's Tern, with Ginger Hotham's Puffin second. Commodore J. F. Dick, officer of the day, started this race at 3 o'clock. Puffin got away to a wonderful start, crossing the line three seconds after the firing of the gun. Tern started second with Helen and Margaret third and fourth, and John Hutchison's Murlett last. In the absence of the Misses Lindsay, Helen was sailed by O. Wallace and Margaret by Major W. W. Rowson. Murlett was sailed by H. R. Punnett.

The race was twice round the triangular course in Cadboro Bay. The first leg was an easy reach to the mark off Flower Island, the second a tricky beat back into the teeth of the wind, and the third a spinnaker run, with jibs boomed out.

Tern drew ahead from the start and rounded the first mark 2 seconds ahead of Puffin and 33 seconds ahead of Helen. At the second mark Puffin was 40 seconds behind Tern, and then, to all intents and purposes lost sight of her for the rest of the race.

The results and times for the dinghies were as follows.

Humphrey Golby's Tern: Elapsed time, 55 16, corrected time, 54 30.

Ginger Hotham's Puffin: Elapsed time, 66 20, corrected time, 58 20.

Miss Helen Lindsay's Helen: Elapsed time, 60 35, corrected time, 59 55.

John Hutchison's Murlett: Elapsed time, 1.1 35, corrected time, 60 10.

MARY PHILLIPS AND BILL ERICKSON WIN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Miss Mary Phillips and "Bill" Erickson were declared the prize winners in the "American" tournament held on the club courts of the St Andrew's Tennis Club yesterday afternoon. Competition was keen in all the matches, the result being in doubt until the last set was played. Miss Ormunsden and "Bunny" Hurn ran a close second to the winners, while Mrs. W Erickson and Cedric LeFevre were only one game behind for third place. The results follow:

Mary Phillips and W Erickson 38 games; Miss Ormunsden and H. S Hurn, 34; Mrs W Erickson and C. LeFevre, 33; Miss B. Boyce and Allan Anderson, 31; Alice Kenning and C. Luttrell, 29; Alice Dougan and K. Luttrell, 17; Ada Moffatt and Thompson, 16.

Next Saturday afternoon the St. Andrew's Club will be at home to the Langford Club on the McKenzie Street courts, when an interesting interclub tournament will be staged.

CUBS CONTINUE TO CLIMB IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

Bobby Jones Added Insult to Pros by U. S. Open Victory

Atlanta Wizard Continues to Lower Colors of Salaried Exponents by Drubbing He Handed to Espinosa in Playoff—Other Incidents

(Special to The Colonist)

NEW YORK, July 27.—George T Hammond, golf expert, says: It will never be possible to please everyone in a tournament as long as only one entrant is permitted to win the title, but frequently there is agitation to prevent such dissatisfaction as the lack lustre playoff for the National Open at Winged Foot or the mediocre final round of the National Intercollegiate Golf Tournament at the Hollywood Golf Club at Deal, N.J.

BOBBY JONES

When Boboy Jones added insult o injury by annihilating Al Espi-osa in the thirty-six-hole playoff t Winged Foot, there was an im-nediate reaction in the form of ecommendations that in the future layoffs be played at eighteen holes. t was argued that the golfer who ould establish his pre-eminence in eighteen-hole duel coming on top f a gruelling seventy-two-hole truggle, deserved the title without urther adieu. The playoff for the Metropolitan Open, when necessary, contested at eighteen holes, hough in 1926 it actually required fty-four, because Macdonald Smith nd Gene Sarazen both scored eventies for the first eighteen holes nd duplicate seventy-twos were re-urned for the second trial. Finally Macdonald Smith's sixty-six, four rokes better than Sarazen's total r the third playoff round, brought e epochal marathon to a belated nish.

The temporary stir born of pity r Espinosa has blown over with-t evoking any concrete recom-endations that the rule be anaed to permit eighteen-hole ayoffs for the open.

But coming to the other compara-ve fiasco, the final match of the tercollegiate Championship, in hich Tommy Aycock, of Yale, de-ated his teammate, Marshall For-st, for the title, there are well-unded rumors that things may be fferent in the future. With all ie respects to Aycock's fine con-est of Morris McCarthy, Jr., of orgetown, the defending title lder in the quarter final round, d Forrest's victory over Don Moe, Oregon, recently crowned West-n champion, there is a feeling ong many of the college golfers at the East lags behind in seek-g the most just and most satisfac-y way to elect a national inter-llegiate golf champion.

CARRIES HONOR

Like the National Championships several other lines of sport, the lf title theoretically carries with the country-wide distinction, but management up to the present ne has been in the hands of the sterners The selection of a na-nal intercollegiate golf champion been also bound up with the se-tion of the national team cham-n, and inasmuch as the Eastern leges are chiefly concerned with team title, the faraway institu-ns not being in a position to send four-man teams over long distances, the tournament has been annually held in the East.

The real progressives in the college golf councils are ready to strike for a seventy-two-hole medal play tournament to replace the present match-play system and to divorce the individual from the team tournaments. Together with these proposals goes the one that the entire matter of running off the Intercollegiate Golf Championship be taken over by the United States Golf Association through the appropriate channels.

This is obviously a radical programme. It breaks with all the traditions of the intercollegiate classic and would certainly make it less of an Eastern proposition.

The proposal to convert it to a medal play affair is based on observation of the Big Ten and Pacific Coast Intercollegiate tournaments, both of which are conducted over a seventy-two-hole medal play route and the conviction that nothing takes the place of medal play when crowning a champion.

The movement was accelerated by the happenings at Deal, where only one of the finalists was conceivably a favorite for the title and the quality of golf in the final made the entire tournament ludicrous in the public eye After shooting 73's in the quarter-final rounds, Aycock and Forrest collapsed the next day, the former needing an 84 for the morning round to 88 for Forrest.

Golf is a matter of getting the ball into the hole in the fewest possible strokes and some such theory should govern the selection of a golf champion. A champion may win his title for many reasons, and there is no inclination on the part of anyone to change the national amateur from match to medal play, although the agitation to abolish the eighteen-hole matches for the first and second rounds is gaining converts every day In the intercollegiate field tradition is not too strong and it seems likely that before next year, when it is planned to hold the intercollegiate tournament at Worcester, the medal play system will be adopted.

DEMPSEY WOULD BE FOOLISH TO TRY COMEBACK

If Former Champ Returns to Meet Winner of Schmeling-Sharkey Go It Would Mark His Doom

(Special to The Colonist)

NEW YORK, July 27.—Now and then rumors are heard that Jack Dempsey intends to come back to the ring, and fight the winner of the proposed Schmeling-Sharkey bout. If the former champion is wise he will remain in retirement. He knocked out Firpo nearly six years ago and since then he has had two ten-round bouts with Tunney, each a crushing defeat. He has not been seen in action for two years and if he should be fool-hardy enough to take a fling at Schmeling, he would be doomed to receive another humiliating setback. Schmeling today is a smarter boxer than Dempsey ever was and no doubt he will take the measure of Sharkey as handily as he disposed of Paulino

DEMPSEY

Dempsey has been quoted as saying that he will not fight again unless he receives one million dollars, win or lose. It is hard to believe that any promoter would run such a financial risk in view of the fact that Dempsey has seen his best days and would not amount to much in a battle with the hard-hitting young German.

The manager of George Godfrey, negro heavyweight, who was born in this country and served in the World War, has issued a formal challenge to Max Schmeling to the effect that if Schmeling can stay fifteen rounds with Godfrey, the latter will donate his share of the spoils to charity Godfrey is the greatest heavyweight in the world today, according to his manager, but promoters and fighters have drawn the color line against him.

The negro's mentor declares that Schmeling should not be permitted to take the world heavyweight title back to Germany without meeting a real fighter He says that Jack Sharkey, of Boston, is not equipped with sufficient pugilistic skill to encounter the German and that there is no other American-bred fighter capable of turning the trick excepting Godfrey. Sharkey got a decision over Godfrey in a ten-round bout in Boston several years ago, but since then the latter has improved as a fighter

Foxx and O'Doul at Top Of Major League Hitters

Both Lead Respective Circuits by Slim Margins—Manush and Simmons Well Up—Grove and Bush Leading Hurlers—Klein Leads Homers

CHICAGO, July 27 — Jimmy Foxx, the Philadelphia Athletics' youthful first baseman, has regained the peak in the American League batting race, after yielding the top position to Heinie Manush, of the St. Louis Browns last week. Connie Mack's all-round hand dropped two points from his mark of a week ago, unofficial figures including Wednesday's games reveal, but his average of .388 left him five in front of the Brownie slugger

LEFTY GROVE

The pitching last week again was a little better than the batting in the junior major circuit, only two players in the first ten improving their marks Bing Miller, Philadelphia outfielder, added twelve points to his average, and Harry Heilmann, of Detroit, picked up three points. Following Foxx and Manush were, Simmons, Philadelphia, .362, Fothergill, Detroit, .360, Lazzeri, New York, .357, Miller, Philadelphia, .355 Fonseca, Cleveland, .353, Heilmann, Detroit, .353, Cochrane, Philadelphia, .354, K Williams, Boston, .347.

Home run leaders of the league failed to improve notably during the week Lou Gehrig of the Yankees, added one to remain in the lead with twenty-three circuit smashes, but was dogged by Babe Ruth who in spite of injuries, had collected twenty-two, and Al Simmons, who also had twenty-two. Foxx boosted his total to twenty.

AL SIMMONS

The collective batting efforts of the Detroit Tigers slipped by three points, and the Athletics climbed into a tie for first position at .305 The Yankees picked up one point and were second with .303 The Athletics displaced Detroit as the league-leading organisation, with total runs, and held all opposition to 229 successful assaults on its plate

Philadelphia also maintained its fielding pace, handling the ball for a mark of .967 since the beginning of the season. St Louis was second with .963 and the Yankees third one point behind the Browns Cleveland, fielding in sixth position, was the first team to cross the 100 mark in double plays, having completed 107 double killings.

GROVE WELL AHEAD

Pitching supremacy was largely a Philadelphia affair Bob Grove won one game during the week to lead the pitchers working in turn with a record of sixteen victories and two defeats George Earnshaw, another Mack hireling, turned in the best mark of the week, three victories, bringing his record to fifteen triumphs and four defeats. Rube Walberg won a pair and had a mark of fourteen victories and five losses. Old Tom Zachary, of New York remained as the only undefeated hurler, his record being five straight triumphs.

OTHER LEADERS

Other leaders—Runs batted in Simmons, Philadelphia, 63; triples, Miller, Philadelphia, 12; doubles, Gehringer, Detroit, and Cissell Chicago, 14 each; triple plays, New York, Chicago and Detroit, one each, strikeouts, Grove, Philadelphia, 120, team home runs, New York, 84

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Frank O'Doul, of Philadelphia has moved up to head the National League batters, displacing the former leader, Babe Herman, of Brooklyn, by the margin of a single percentage point O'Doul has a batting mark of .397 in the averages issued today and including games of last Wednesday, while Herman is hitting at a .396 clip

Melvin Ott, the young Giant, wears the only double crown heading the scorers with 88 runs and leading in runs batted in with 96 Bill Terry, his teammate, has collected 143 hits to lead the league in that department Johnny Frederick, of Brooklyn, is on top in hitting doubles with 30, while Lloyd Waner, of Pittsburgh, has the most triples 14

Chuck Klein, the Philadelphia slugger, is far ahead in the home run race with twenty-nine four-base clouts His nearest rival is Ott, who has hit for the circuit twenty-six times.

Following the two leaders in batting averages are these regulars Terry, New York, .370, Klein, Philadelphia, .369, Hornsby, Chicago, .362 Traynor, Pittsburgh, .360; Hafey, St. Louis .356, L. Waner Pittsburgh, .334; Hendrick, Brooklyn, 348 and Bressler, Brooklyn .344

Hack Wilson compiled the longest hitting streak of the year before he was stopped by Dazzy Vance in the Brooklyn-Chicago game last Monday. The Cub slugger hit safely in twenty-seven games.

BUSH STILL LEADS

Guy Bush, of Chicago, held his lead in the National League pitching staffs by adding one more victory to his list last week. He has won thirteen games with but one defeat for an average of .939 Burleigh Grimes, of Pittsburgh, held second place with a mark of .889 gained from sixteen victories and two defeats Henry Meine, of Pittsburgh lost his National lead when he took his second defeat with five victories

The Phillies increased their margin in team batting by two points last week merely by holding their aggregate average at the .309 mark Their rivals, the Pirates and the Giants, slipped to .308 and .306 The slip cost the Giants third place on the list as the Cubs lost less ground and remained at .302 The Giants are on top in team fielding with .974, with the Cubs one point below them and the Reds another point back.

Appearance of Car Claimed to Reflect Motorist's Character

Automobile Owner Unconsciously Reveals Own Temperament in Care Bestowed on Machine and Method in Which It Is Operated When in General Use on Streets and Highways

By KATE SHAFFER RANSOM

Did you ever think of automobiles as character reflectors? In a way, they are. The general appearance and the way in which the car is driven show up traits, good and bad, in the car owner's character.

Take the general appearance, for instance—a highly polished body, seats well dusted, clean floors and a spotless windshield, and you can be almost certain that the owner prizes his car and is a rather fastidious person.

On the other hand, if the body is dirty, the top leaky from being left out in the weather, the windshield so streaked with dust you can hardly see through it—then what do you think of the owner? Most probably that he is slovenly. But often this simply signifies that he cares little for detail. What he is most interested in is the engine and keeping it in running order.

The family man who owns a car generally takes great pride in its appearance—at first. As he rides out with his wife and kiddies on Sunday you can almost feel his happiness in possession. How perfectly immaculate it looks! But, lack-a-day, as time wears on, baby spills crumbs on the floor; sonny scratches a nice long mark across its hood and mother uses it all day long. Before you know it, father gets tired and discouraged. The car suffers. Under such conditions, an automobile simply reflects two of the most noticeable domestic traits of the average Canadian husband.

Perhaps the most outstanding test of temperament lies in the driving. Watch a man at the wheel of a car closely and before long you can size up not only his ability in manipulating the car but whether he has a positive or vacillating character.

For instance, a wavering character passing a car on a narrow road with another car coming from the opposite direction would possibly hesitate and so lose his opportunity. A positive character would gauge his distance, make up his mind quickly and so gain his end.

Another noticeable characteristic in a driver is the way in which he uses the accelerator. An uncertain person seldom drives evenly. First he speeds up, then, deciding that he is either going too fast or perhaps gaining too much on the car ahead, he jerks his foot away. A person of a more decided nature keeps the speed of his car as even as possible.

STARTING A CAR

Quite an insight into a person's temperament can be gained from the mere starting of a car—inserting the key, turning on the ignition and applying the self-starter. It is often amusing to watch this proceeding. Some go about it in the most matter-of-fact way, which nine times out of ten spells competency and self-reliance. Others make an ordeal of it. Almost invariably when these people are studied it is found that they are either nervous and excitable or simply not sure of themselves because of a lack of confidence in their ability.

Although a very small thing apparently, testing the gear before starting, to see if it is in neutral, is one of the main keys to judging the driver's character. Of course, he has been taught that this is most important, and naturally he pays some attention to it. The positive character gives the gear a wiggle and knows at once whether all is well. But the nervous person who lacks confidence will spend many minutes trying to be perfectly sure that it is safe to push the self-starter.

There are many other idiosyncrasies that are a dead giveaway as far as temperament and character are concerned. It is rather uncanny to realize that no matter what we do—even to the driving and upkeep of a car—our characters can be so easily stripped of their coverings and bared to view.

Butler—Your wife has run away with the chauffeur.

Husband—Oh, well, I was going to fire him anyway.

MODERN SEVEN-BEARING CRANKSHAFT DESIGNED TO TAKE THE STRESSES OF A HIGH-SPEED HIGH-COMPRESSION ENGINE.

By J. EDWARD SCHIPPER, S.A.E.

THERE used to be an old rule in automobile engineering that 1,000 feet per minute was as high as the linear speed of a bearing should be permitted to go. In simple language this means that any point on the surface of the crankshaft bearing would not be traveling faster than 1,000 feet per minute. Today, bearings travel at more than twice that speed.

This fact is not important in itself, but it has a very direct bearing on the lubrication of the car. If the stresses on the oil film which is supposed to guard the bearing were considered high in the old days at 1,000 feet per minute, today at 2,000 feet per minute the stresses are four times as great as the stresses increase in proportion to the square of the speed.

For this reason lubrication systems that were adequate in former designs will not meet present existing conditions. Not only are the speeds of the engines much greater, causing higher bearing speeds, but the actual pressure on the bearings is also much higher, because of the higher engine compressions and more effective handling of both fuels and ignition.

It must be remembered that in comparison with older engines, the motor of today gets more gasoline into the cylinder on each suction stroke, compresses it to a higher degree on the compression stroke, burns it faster, thus completing the combustion before the piston has gone far down on the expansion or explosion stroke, and finally, exhausts the burnt gases more completely on the exhaust or scavenging stroke. In other words, the efficiency of all four strokes of the four-stroke cycle or as we commonly call it, the four-cycle motor, has been increased to a great degree. Today we get so much more out of the engines of the same piston displacement, that our ideas of pressures on the crankshaft and connecting rod bearings and the stresses on all the other working surfaces of the engines have had to be considerably revised.

This leads back to the subject of oiling the engine. Naturally, the newer engine needs a greater supply of oil delivered under pressure to take care of the greater pressure on the bearings and this tendency may be very clearly noted in the engines coming through this year.

The crankshaft is drilled and there are connecting leads through the crank cheeks into the centre of the crankshaft. These leads connect with leads direct to the lower connecting rod bearings. The pistons are designed in such a way that oil is picked up to keep the wristpin working in a bath of oil. There are oil rings or scraper rings to keep the excess oil out of the combustion chambers.

Other separate leads run to the camshaft bearings. It used to be considered satisfactory to take care of the camshaft bearings with the oil splash or mist that exists in the crankcase while the engine is running, but this is no longer considered good enough in any but the very lowest-priced cars, and practically all motors have a positive oil feed to the camshaft bearings.

The valves are also lubricated positively and as a result there is not nearly so much valve stem wear as there used to be. Many even allow the oil to drain back so it flows to the cam follower, putting a positive stream of oil between the cam and the follower, which materially reduces wear at this point. The lightening tappet assembly now used also helps in keeping wear down here.

In addition to the more positive systems of lubrication, there is more pressure used and a greater amount of oil is put in circulation. The oil purifiers keep the oil fresh and clean if the owner gives them the proper attention. In the cartridge type it must be remembered that a replacement should be made in accordance with the directions of the manufacturer. If this is not done the purifier will not function after the cartridge has taken up all the foreign matter it is capable of handling. The changes do not have to be made frequently enough to be an inconvenience.

One point the owner must remember, and that is, the best oiling system in the world will not function if there is not enough oil in the pump. Never let the oil drop below the ¾ full mark. Even though the pressure will apparently be good and everything functioning as it should when the level is ½ full, the same oil is being circulated over and over again so frequently that it is rapidly reaching a completely worn-out condition. Its lubricating value becomes nil. Keep the oil supply fresh and clean and take advantage of the fine lubricating system that has been designed into your car.

The minister of an Edinburgh church, speaking about the lack of enthusiasm in the average churchgoer, said, amongst other things:

"The church is like a motor car, the congregation come and sit in the pews as they sit in the seats of a car, they place the minister in the pulpit as the driver at the wheel. There is, however, no engine in the car, no driving force in the church, the tank is empty."

Brown and Black in Use as Auto Colors

The color situation for June in the monthly color index of the Duco Color Advisory Service, shows increasing preference accorded to brown and black largely at the expense of blue and green. At the present time black is at the highest position reached during the past two years.

Within the brown group an interesting transition has occurred. Light tints of brown and tan are displacing the darker browns and tans. Crockett brown is still the leader in the brown color family. Driftwood smoke and debeers tan have moved up into second and third places respectively.

Blue has had a rapidly advancing career since last November and now appears to be on the verge of a temporary reaction from last month's peak. This will result in greater prominence for the brown and grey color families. Little change has taken place within the blue color family. Intense, rich blues continue in favor; Shoshone and Seminole still head the list, although greenish blues such as Algerian are beginning to gain some prominence.

Greys are slowly returning to favor. It seems possible that the high index position of grey attained at the early part of the year may again be approached on the present move. The leading greys have held their positions with remarkable consistency, the only addition to the list being Nave, a grey of greenish cast. Halmet grey, a brownish grey, is now second in importance.

Maroon has exceeded with a good margin the forecast predicted in last month's index. Vineyard lake maroon is advancing steadily while Toga maroon, although still the leader in this group, is losing to it at an equal rate of loss. Maroons with a secondary cast purple or mulberry, seem to be gaining wide acceptance.

Yellow and red are rapidly losing favor, although dusk rose, a clear rose color of unusual cast, is showing a rising index. Orange is constant and its steady index is due, no doubt, to its virtue as a stripe and wire wheel color for use with brown. Beige shows a slight gain over its index for May.

SAFETY NUTT SAYS:

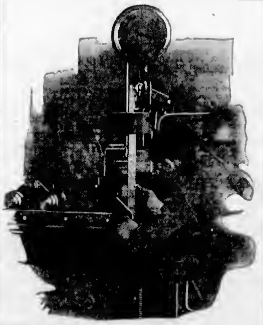
Care for safety means safety from care.

The Traffic Cop

No, we do not expect that you'll remember all of these hints on safe automobile driving, but we do expect that you'll read them as they appear here every week and that they will lead you to think when you grip the steering wheel and when you walk on the public highways. They require only a half minute of your time, but they may save you a few months in the hospital or an early residence in the cemetery.

No matter what your hurry, never pass a trolley car discharging passengers, unless passengers are being discharged on a safety island. To do so is decidedly against the law in most cities, and it is against every safety law. A street car passenger may run into you and then you are headed for some trouble. It is good to remember, too, that some passengers are somewhat confused immediately after alighting on the street and are hardly in position to dodge an automobile.

Plan Springs Individually



EVERY Chrysler automobile is equipped with springs made and tested for a particular load and car model. Springs used on the roadsters are different from those used on a sedan or coupe, etc. Every spring, prior to its being installed, is tested for resilience and for balance with the other springs with which the car is equipped. Photo shows how springs are also tested for fatigue in a device which accomplishes in a few hours the equivalent of a road test of several thousand miles.

NUMBER PLATES TO PROTECT DE SOTO 6

Fedco Serial Numbers Built Into Instrument Panel Help Discourage Thief

The thief is rapidly disappearing as a menace to automobile owners. This fact is disclosed in figures furnished by the De Soto Motor Corporation, a division of Chrysler Motors, at Detroit.

An analysis of police reports shows the percentage of recovered cars has increased during the past ten years from 79 to 82.8 per cent. All but 7.2 per cent of the automobiles stolen throughout Canada and the United States last year were reported recovered at the end of the year, compared with 21 per cent in 1918.

Among the reasons given for this remarkable increase are the increased ability on the part of the police department to combat the car thief and the innovations in locking equipment on modern automobiles that now protect car owners. Dealers and service departments, too, are co-operating with the factories in tracing stolen cars. In this way they provide an efficient service to owners and discourage those who would make a business of stealing cars.

An outstanding example of the tendency of auto manufacturers to co-operate toward the prompt recovery of stolen cars is the Fedco plate, bearing the serial number in code, which is built into the instrument panel of every De Soto Six. This plate is so constructed that the numbers cannot be changed or removed without noticeably defacing the plate and panel. If the plate is removed, an empty space is left in the panel showing immediately that it has been tampered with. Police officials assume such a car has been stolen and immediately trace its ownership, every theft of a Fedco-protected car being investigated by a detective agency with international affiliations.

According to De Soto officials, a number of cases have been reported to the company's headquarters of stolen De Soto Sixes which have been recovered through the number plates within a few days of the time the cars were stolen. Immediately the owner advises the dealer his car has been stolen, the information is broadcast throughout the United States and Canada, to police departments, and Federal authorities, as well as to an extensive list of garages, service and filling stations.

As a result of this protection and the improved ignition locks with which every De Soto Six is equipped and the door locks contained on all closed bodies, the insurance rates are exceptionally low.

ARGENTINE HONORS GO TO STUDEBAKER

President Eight Roadster Wins Major Honors in Stock Car 500-Mile Contest

That public interest continues to centre on the performance of regular factory production automobiles rather than special built racing cars was demonstrated in Argentina recently during the "Gran Premio Standard, 1929." The race, which is one of the country's leading speed events and confined to strictly stock cars, attracted the largest attendance in its history.

The event was sponsored by the Circulo Automovilista Argentino, motor organisation, and was run over country roads from Florencia Varela, near Buenos Aires, to Mar del Plata and return. The distance for the round trip was 840 miles.

Leaving Florencio Varela at one-minute intervals in the morning, the thirty-two entrants started for Mar del Plata on the first stage of the race. On the following day the return trip was made, with only eighteen cars completing the run. On arrival in Florencio Varela, the cars were turned over to the Automobile Club Argentino and thoroughly checked by a staff of twelve competent mechanics to determine if they were strictly stock models. As a result of this inspection, three cars were disqualified.

Major honors in the speed contest were won by a Studebaker President Eight Roadster, driven by Miguel Viggiano. Viggiano was declared "absolute" winner when he completed both stages of the race forty minutes ahead of the field. The Studebaker, which completed the 840-mile run in nine hours thirty-five minutes and 49 2-5 seconds, also finished one hour and forty minutes ahead of the nearest competitor in its class to win class honors.

The President Eight Roadster which won the "Gran Premio Standard, 1929," is the same model that won eleven world and twenty-three international speed and endurance records for Studebaker when it traveled 40,000 miles in 26,326 consecutive minutes.

Seeking Gasoline Substitute

SUCCESSRUL experiments have recently been made in Germany with a substitute for gasoline called "synthocarbon." It is a mixture of charcoal, coal and peat.

Meant expecially for automobile fuel, it is put up for sale in paper sacks, conveniently for the motorist's use. All he has to do is to pour the mixture into a tank on the car. The tank has at its bottom a burner, whereby the mixture is heated and caused to give off a gas whose expansion drives the machine.

The "synthocarbon" burns without soot, and, it is claimed, develops twice the power of gasoline relatively to cost.

Ernest Godward, a young New Zealand inventor, recently brought to America a device which he thinks may save motor car owners in Canada and the United states $50,000,000 a year. Mr. Godward claims thet his invention anables the ordinary gasoline motor to run on cheap fuel oil, such as is used in oil-burning furnaces.

This apparatus is described in Popular Science Monthly as an aluminum pot in which is set a nest of stationary, thin curved plates radiating from a central core. This pot is heated by the exhaust. The oil, drawn through a carburetor, passes over the surface of the warm plates, where it is converted into dry gas before reaching the cylinders. The inventor designed a simple apparatus to test the efficiency of motors. It measures the unburned gas coming from the exhaust pipe.

Twenty Philadelphia buses have been equipped with the invention and have run nearly 300,000 miles over steep, hilly roads. Six hundred additional interurban buses of that city are being fitted to burn the heavy oil. Motors burning the new fuel are said to start as quickly as when using gasoline and to show an increase of as much as fifteen per cent in horsepower. Unlike Diesel engines, motors equipped with the Godward device can use either oil or gasoline.

In other tests airplanes were operated on heavy oil instead of gasoline. Dr. Joseph S. Ames, of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, predicts that eventually special Diesel engines burning the less expensive fuel may be installed in airplanes.

INDIVIDUALITY IN CARS IS LATEST

Detroit Dealer Sets Fad of Retrimming Motors to Suit Owner's Idea

DETROIT, July 27.—Factories and dealers throughout Canada and the United States are showing a widespread interest in the success of a Detroit automobile dealer in retrimming new cars to give them individuality.

Their being individual cars is backed up by the dealer's promise to his customers to paint and trim only one of each of a triad of color combinations that he is able to offer, thus assuring the customer that his will be the only car of that make in his territory trimmed in thet fashion.

The dealer is doing a large business. At present he has fourteen men working full time. The cost of painting and trimming the cars, amounting to between $290 and $300, is the amount charged the customer.

After satisfying himself as to the appearance of his car, the motorist now is looking for the best place to travel. The vacation season is here. It is estimated thet forty-five million persons will tour this Summer.

The American Automobile Association, which has compiled this figure on a basis of the increases during the past years, as shown through demand for touring information, makes the prophesy that the best touring conditions ever encountered will be found throughout the North American continent this Summer.

BASIC CHANGES IN AUTOS ARE FEW

During Last Ten Years Little Important Differences Found in Motor Cars

DETROIT, July 27.—While the decade beginning with 1920 thus far has seen many refinements, improvements and changes in design, it has brought relatively few basic changes in automobile construction.

The period has not been nearly as prolific in fundamental alterations as was the first decade of the industry's existence on a commercial basis.

The last ten years have brought the almost complete elimination of the open car; so, too, has it brought the virtual elimination of the four-cylinder car in the medium and higher priced class. The development of the eight-cylinder car also belongs to the last decade.

Yet these developments have not been basic, for they were in the making, so to speak, during the decade that saw the World War. Moreover, they borrow most of their features from the original two-cylinder motors.

It would not be correct to say that efforts at basic changes have not been made. The period from 1920 to date has been marked by numerous claims of revolutionary developments that would change the whole fabric of the automobile industry.

One of the outstanding developments in automobile engines during the last ten years was the introduction of the high compression engine in 1927.

FIND FINGER TIP CONTROL HANDY

New Steering Gear of Willys-Overland Proves Its Great Convenience

With the number of women drivers increasing by thousands and thousands each year, automobile manufacturers more than ever before consider this factor in the design and construction of their products. This is aimed at by providing as many conveniences and safety features as possible, that will appeal not only to women but to all drivers.

A clear example of this is seen in the Willys-Overland Company's new line of whippet fours and sixes. Notable among the outstanding conveniences on these cars is the "Finger-Tip Control." This consists of a button conveniently placed in the centre of the steering wheel to control all the functions of starting the motor, manipulations of the lights and sounding the horn.

In addition to this being a decided safety factor it also materially increases the driving comfort of the driver. With this new improvement the driver no longer searches with his or her foot for the starter button usually found in the toe board. Instead, a slight pull up of the button starts the engine, a turn of the button to the right controls the lights of the new type headlamps, and the horn is sounded by pressing the button downward with the finger.

The new improved steering gear also provides easier handling of the car with a minimum effort. This permits women to more easily park their car. The increased second speed gear is a distinct aid in heavy traffic and allows quicker pickup and getaway. The larger and more comfortable interiors, as well as the large, easily-operated four-wheel brakes, also are distinctive features which will appeal to both men and women drivers, while the notable fuel and oil economy and low maintenance cost make the whippets outstanding in the low-priced classification.

MOTOR'S "LIFE" TABLE COMPUTED

Records Disclose "Mortality" of Average Automobile at Six and Three-Quarter Years

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The "life" of the average automobile is six years and nine months, while the average cost of operation, for a four-cylinder passenger car, is 6.43 cents per mile, and for a six-cylinder machine is 8.40 cents per mile, based upon an average mileage of 11,000 miles per year, according to the American Motorists' Association.

The "mortality" figure is based upon replacement data furnished by automobile manufacturers. The cost per mile is computed from detailed cost accounting records covering 800 typical automobiles, operated in various parts of the United States.

The largest single item in the composite "average" automobile, for both the four and six-cylinder machines, was maintenance, followed in both types by depreciation and gasoline consumption. Following is a comparison of the operation costs of the "average" medium four and six-cylinder types:

Items	Cents Per Mile Four-Cylinder	Cents Per Mile Six-Cylinder
Mantenance	1.72	2.14
Depreciation	1.38	2.09
Gasoline	1.31	1.52
Tires	.64	.80
Garage	.44	.44
Interest	.36	.71
Oil	.22	.20
Insurance	.21	.26
Licence	.14	.24

The above figures are computed on a mileage of 11,000 miles per year, getting an average of 17.53 miles per gallon of gasoline for the average four-cylinder car and 13.10 miles per gallon for the average six-cylinder car (American gallons).

For the light four-cylinder model, the average operation cost is shown to be 6.02 cents per mile; the heavy four-cylinder average type is 7.20 cents per mile; the light six type is 7.38 cents per mile, and the heavy six-cylinder type is 9.45 cents per mile.

The News From Detroit

(By FRED KINGSBURY)

The automobile business during the last half of the year is not expected to set the record thet was made during the first six months of 1929, although manufacturers are looking forward to good conditions until the first of next year. It was not expected that the record-breaking production would continue, although at least two or three of the companies are still not able to produce the cars demanded.

Turning to retail sales in Wayne County, Mich., of which Detroit is the county seat, figures just compiled for the first six months of the year show that 77,685 units were sold. The figure for the first six months of 1928 was 42,671, a gain for 1929 of 35,014.

Considerable talk has been heard recently regarding excessive used-car stocks throughout the country, but surveys made by the manufacturing companies do not indicate that stocks are greater then usual. Word comes to Detroit that most of the dealers in Canada and the United States have been conservative in their trading this year, and good financial statements are being received from all parts of the country.

The time is drawing near when some of the companies are expected to announce new models. These are expected to be the last word in motor transportation, as it is true that better values are being given this year than ever before. Nothing radical is expected, as most of the companies will continue along conservative lines, refining body styles and attempting to give better performance.

The only radical changes in automobile types are two front-wheel-drive cars—the Ruxton, which was announced some time ago, and the Cord, which is expected in the near future. The latter has been developed by the Auburn Automobile Company, of Auburn, Ind.

There also seems to be a trend toward the four-speed transmission and it is said that several companies are studying it. Both the Graham-Paige and the Durant cars have transmissions of this type. Years ago the four-speed transmission was popular, but it was gradually forced out by the three-speed type because car owners objected to noisy gears. This difficulty has been overcome and further developments are expected. It is rumored that at least one more large company will equip a line of its cars with four speeds.

Auburn bids for your patronage not with words, claims or promises but with THE GOODS. Amazing cars at amazing prices! Values so outstanding as to preclude comparison. That is why Auburn is over-sold today. That is why Auburn sales are breaking records every month, month after month. That is why we have had to increase production 100 per cent this year. Such a nation-wide demand can not be ignored. It means with finality that Auburn enables your dollar to buy more than other cars do. We bet everything on the belief that the public is motor-educated; that you KNOW cars; that you can COMPARE values and judge for yourself. And Auburn has won the most decisive victory of public acceptance ever won by any car. And won it for one and only one reason, because people HAVE compared, HAVE driven and found that Auburn DOES give more than other automobiles; more power; more strength; more endurance; more comfort; better performance; easier handling; safer roadability and smoother riding. And gives all this for LESS. By passing back to the buyers the fruits of Auburn's sensational success, Auburn is enabled to grow as no other company is doing. Public approval and the success of the cars in owners hands is KEEPING Auburn oversold.

AUBURN'S LATEST MODEL IS UNIQUE

Convertible Sedan Revolutionizes All Preconceived Ideas of Construction

Now on display at the Auburn Motors, Limited, 807 Yates Street, stands a model of the Auburn car that revolutionizes all ideas of value in a convertible sedan. The 8-90 Phaeton-Sedan offers to the purchaser unique features in body design and construction. By the simple process of lowering the hood an open car is obtained, the pliable material of the cover allowing it to pack neatly into a protective envelope that fits snugly across the rear. Four thumb screws are all thet need to be loosened and the operation takes but a few moments. The centre posts lift out leaving a clean body line from windshield to back seat. If so desired the windows may be raised with all the advantages of an open car.

When used as a closed sedan the whole is completely weatherproof. The windows fit into channels of rubber crepe, preventing rattle and excluding all draught and moisture. Exceptionally wide range of vision is to be had under all conditions, for the windshield posts are but one and a half inches wide, though built of sturdy chromium-plated metal. The upholstery is of genuine leather, deep and comfortable, while the fittings are convenient and beautifully finished. The single hinge on the doors, both back and front, allow them to open right back to the body, giving a full width of the door for entering and leaving.

A wheel base of 125 inches insures comfortable riding at all speeds and the hydraulic shock absorbers at four points give splendid resilence. Dayton type wire wheels combine beauty with ease and speed for detaching. These are of a standard racing type. A feature that is unique in a car of this class is thet of the Bijur lubricating system. By a pressure of the foot on a pedal under the dash lubrication is shot to twenty-one points on the chassis, kingpins and steering gear. A specially reinforced frame prevents any tendency toward shimmying, and four-wheel Lockheed hydraulic brakes insure safety. Powered by a straight-eight Lycoming motor this car is outstanding in beauty, comfort and performance.

TACHOMETER HAS SPEEDS OF ENGINE

Irrespective of Car's Motion, Instrument Discloses Rate of Turnover of Power Unit

Try a tachometer, if you would like to see for yourself what happens under the hood of your car at different road speeds.

The tachometer works on the same principle as a speedometer, but registers the engine speed in revolutions per minute, regardless of car speed. That is, whether the car is standing still or moving, the tachometer shows how fast the engine is turning over.

The chief advantage of the Graham-Paige four-speed drive is not its one additional speed, but the fact that it makes possible lower engine speed at any road speed, through the use of a high-gear rear axle. As a result, the engine of the four-speed car going sixty miles per hour is turning over slower than the engine of a three-speed car going forty-five miles per hour. The tachometer shows this plainly, so that he who rides may read engine speed at any road speed.

In a four-speed car (gear ratio 3.6 to 1) at sixty miles per hour, the engine speed is only 2,495 revolutions per minute.

In a three-speed car (gear ratio 4.7 to 1) at sixty miles per hour, the engine speed is 3,337 revolutions per minute, while at forty-five miles per hour the engine speed is 2,502 revolutions per minute.

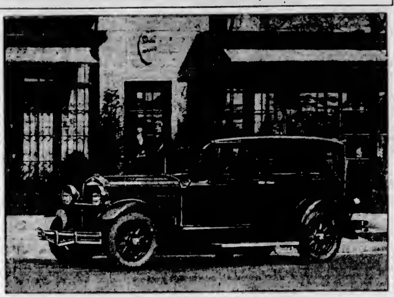
The tachometer-equipped Graham-Paige car quickly makes clear certain facts—chief of which is that low engine speeds mean ease and comfort, and that in an automobile capable of high road speed at a low engine speed, the driver and passengers are not conscious of going fast.

According to the Graham-Paige engineers, who are sponsoring the tachometer test, the average motorist has a very indefinite idea of his engine speed, so that a ride in a tachometer-equipped car will prove a revelation. The average driver is not conscious of his engine at speeds below forty-five miles per hour; however, when he gets above that figure, he can no longer ignore the motor because the high speed of the engine, the whirring of the fan, the roaring of the intake and exhaust, and increased vibration, make themselves very apparent. It is claimed for the Graham-Paige four-speed transmission that, even at very high road speeds, the engine does not attain an excessive rate of revolutions per minute.

The Graham-Paige third speed is a silent internal-geared drive slightly lower in gear than the direct drive of three-speed cars, giving a final drive ratio of 5.25 to 1. Because of its silence and its high speed capability, this gear is known as an additional "high." These two high gears give the driver a great advantage, fourth providing reduced engine speed at any road speed, and third offering unusually brilliant acceleration and hill-climbing powers.

The use of internal gearing in the third speed, besides giving a drive of the utmost silence, also makes it possible to change gears, in either direction, surely and quietly.

The Newest Hudson Roomy Town Sedan



ONE of the most important additions to the Greater Hudson line is this distinguished town sedan. Outstanding among the features of this model are unusual roominess, luxurious upholstery and finish and the ultra-modish lines. Choice of color, at no extra cost, is another feature, as in all Hudson and Essex models. In order to attain the extra amount of room which this model affords, Hudson engineers have tilted the seats slightly, built the body as long as practicable on the 139-inch chassis on which the car is mounted, and made the upholstery on the seats much deeper and more comfortable than is the common practice.

Fittings on the new car are of wild rose design with a Tiffany finish, which accentuates the trim beauty and the smart individuality which has been carried down to the last detail in this stylish new model.

"The preacher in our church last Sunday told us how Lot's wife looked back and turned into a pillar of salt. I couldn't help thinking whenever my wife looks back she turns into a telegraph pole or a lamppost or something.

The only really nice thing about being a bill collector is that the people you call on don't return your visits.

A London Letter

Crowded Attractions of Unique London—Celebrities From All Parts of the World—Addresses by Leaders of World's Thought—Canadians at Oxford—New Play by St. John Ervine Booked for Many Weeks to Come

By ELIZABETH MONTIZAMBERT

The thanksgiving service in the Abbey was one of the most beautifully simple things I have ever seen. The King and Queen, surrounded by their children, sat in the midst of their subjects of every shade of political opinion and of every rank and class, from the Prime Minister to Old Kate, the race programme seller, who is fast becoming a national institution. The roll of the drums increased to an almost deafening noise like loud thunder, and then died away to a whisper paling into silence, which the dean broke by saying in a loud, clear voice, "God Save the King," then, "God save this realm," and then, "God give us thankful hearts." By the time the Grenadier Guards' Band had pealed into the people's response of the national anthem, emotion was keyed up to such a pitch that one hardly dared to look at the King, holding himself erect, but obviously moved. It was a wonderful moment and the tension was only relieved when the last notes of William Blake's marvelous hymn died away and the pageant left the Abbey.

LONDON UNIQUE

One of the most thrilling things about London in the season for visitors from the Dominions is that, crowded into a few short weeks, they may meet and hear so many of the celebrated people from all over the world and see so many famous things and places which are world-renowned. During the last week, for example, any casual visitor might have heard Sir Jagadis Bose, the famous scientist and discoverer of life movement in plants, speak on "The Mechanism of Life" at the India Office, or, as guests of the English-Speaking Union, meet Miss Katherine Mayo, the author of "Mother India." In Bloomsbury they would have found exhibitions of the results of this year's exploration work in Egypt.

MODERN ART

In Gray's Inn, there was an opportunity to see Mr. Eddie Marsh's collection of modern British art. The Royal Horticultural Society has been showing wondrous flowers and, at Christie's there has been on view some world-famous pictures from the Yarborough collection, specimens of the work of such great masters as Rembrandt, Van Dyck, Holbein and Da Vinci. Another of the delights of London this week has been the show of Lino-cuts, pictures printed from linoleum cut like a wood block and, at the Leicester Galleries is an extremely interesting collection of contemporary French art.

GARDEN PARTY

Besides all this are the innumerable garden parties, the pleasantest form of entertainment in this belated warm weather. The Empire Garden Party at Roehampton attracted many Canadians among whom were Lt.-Col. Chisholm, commandant of the Bisley team, and his wife and daughter, Sir Benjamin and Lady Morgan, and several British Columbians, among them the British Columbia Agent-General and Captain and Mrs W. G. Colquhoun. A garden party was held by the Rhodes trustees at Rhodes House, Oxford, and yesterday afternoon Miss Virginia McLean, that talented young Canadian pianist, gave a recital in the Court House Rooms.

Canada has also been holding its own at Henley, while ... George S Lyon has been going round the Sunningdale Links in only six more strokes than his age of seventy-one.

Another thrill for the visitors has been the centenary of the first English omnibus, when you could travel to the bank in a horse bus built on the same pattern as the one used by the pioneer, George Shillibeer, a hundred years ago. The service ran for three days at the original fare of one shilling which went to the Royal Westminster Ophthalmic Hospital.

CANADIANS AT OXFORD

A Winnipeg students tells me that the first session of the English Summer School of the Overseas Education League was opened on July 10 in Lady Margaret Hall, Oxford, by Sir Henry Newbolt. Major Ney, the honorary organiser, introduced Sir Henry after outlining briefly the admirably-planned course of study. Following a visit to Corpus Christi the members of the Summer School were invited in small groups to tea in the beautiful Oxford homes, through the kindness of Mrs. Haldane and other good friends of the Overseas Education League—a privilege greatly appreciated. In the evening the honorary director of the school, Mr. Ernest Raymond, took the chair, introducing in a brief, very happy way the lecturer, Rev. H Salter, Fellow of Magdalen College, who spoke on "Oxford—Historical and Architectural," tracing its history through the "grey" (stone) to the "red" (brick) period, in the vivid yet restrained manner so typical of Oxford scholars. An address listened to with keen pleasure and followed by some interesting discussions.

THE LONDON THEATRE

Mr. St. John Ervine was certainly justified in his cheerful refusal to be worried by the alleged menace of the cinemas where the sound of the human voice is reproduced. In spite of all the Ichabods I hear that seats for his play "The First Mrs. Fraser," at The Haymarket have been booked for many weeks to come. Miss Marie Tempest's voice sounded very happy over the telephone when she told me how delighted she was to find herself playing in such a charming and successful place. It is likely to prove a worthy rival to "Journey's End" and the croakers who have been bemoaning the decadence of the English stage are being confounded by the number of English plays with English castes that, in spite of all competition at the moment, are having a marked success in the West End.

The revival of "The Bill of Divorcement" at St. Martin's Theatre is another happy instance of this success. The play is eight years old and has none of the original cast, but it shows no sign of age, since the character of the aunt was as impossibly early-Victorian eight eight years ago as it is now. The play's problem is the return after sixteen years in an insane asylum, of a husband to din his wife has divorced him and is on the eve of marriage to another man. The situation is solved by the daughter, who, realizing that hereditary insanity debars her from marriage, decides to devote herself to her father. Edna Best brings her own personal interpretation to the part created by the late Meggie Albanesi, as the daughter. Anyone who has seen her in "The Constant Nymph" will know that she was not unworthy of her brilliant predecessor. Herbert Marshall completely shattered his audience by his moving interpretation of the tragic ex-lunatic. Cathleen Nesbitt, not too well cast in a part that demanded more of the Amelia quality than so passionate an actress is prepared to give, and Dora Gregory as the aunt, acted with the technique of long training, while Mr. Athole Stewart, as the wife's lover, did an extraordinarily good bit of work in a part that gave him a better chance than he usually has to show what a very fine actor he is.

The coming excitement will be "Bitter-Sweet" at His Majesty's, the operetta in which the book, lyrics and music are all the work of that admirable Crichton of the London stage, Mr. Noel Coward.

Judge Ben B. Lindsay, who advocates changes, but not freak changes, in the marriage laws, said in a discussion of modern marriages:

"The latest freak idea is to take the honeymoon before instead of after the ceremony. A popular novelist has just done this, and a popular movie star is now doing it. But, unfortunately, the basic freak idea of modern marriage—that is, marry often—still prevails.

"A girl said to a young man:

"'No, Clarence, I can't marry you.'

"'Oh,' he pleaded 'just this once!'"

DISC and wire wheels have invaded the automobile field and have made thousands of friends, but wooden wheels are gaining in production every year. However, because Doc deals with a trouble which is likely to occur with wooden wheels, do not get the idea that they are the only type which will bear watching.

Wire wheels have many advantages over other wheels. Perhaps the biggest one is that a quantity of spokes may be torn out of them in an accident and the remaining ones will get you back to town. They make tire changes easier and absorb a lot of the road shocks, but you must not neglect the hub caps. A spring lock prevents the cap from working off. A broken lock or failure to screw the cap in far enough to lock has resulted in many serious accidents.

Disc wheels have as many, if not more, pleasing features, but like the other types have objectionable points. They, too, are demountable and you can not afford to be careless in bolting them on. If you have this type of wheel on your car, it will pay you to look over the nuts once in a while to make certain that they have not worked loose.

Getting back to the troubles with wooden wheels, the spokes are wedged-shaped on the hub end and are held together by steel discs on either side. The bolts passing through the spokes. In dry weather the wooden spokes are likely to contract and the continual strain upon them may cause enough play to enlarge bolt holes. It is important that the wheel, regardless of its type, be firm, because in rounding a corner there is terrific thrust against its centre.

It requires but a few minutes and is not a dirty job to go over the bolts, clamping the spokes with a wrench. Don't be afraid to run through a little water this Summer. If spokes are dampened once in a while they will remain solid.

DE VALLY IS GUEST TENOR ON NETWORK

Two Sunday Afternoon Concerts Billed During Broadcast Over NBC System This Afternoon

DR. SOCKMAN TO ADDRESS DEALERS

"Positive People" is the topic chosen by Dr. Ralph W Sockman for his principal address during the National Sunday Forum, which will be broadcast today through a transcontinental network of N.B.C. system stations from 12 o'clock, Pacific standard time.

Dr Sockman, eminent New York clergyman and lecturer, also will present his weekly discussion of moral and religious questions submitted by the radio audience. The Oratorio Choristers, under the direction of George Dilworth, and Hart Giddings, organist, will interpret the cathedral musicale which completes the ninety minutes service.

AFTERNOON CONCERT

In the role which he created seventeen years ago in Antwerp, Antoine de Vally will be heard by the radio audience tuned in from 1.30 to 3 30 o'clock for the Sunday afternoon concert. A second part of the programme will be presented between 3 and 4 15 o'clock, with Charles Hart conducting the orchestra and Barbara Blanchard, soprano, and Margaret O'Dea and Eva Gruninger Atkinson, contraltos, as vocalists.

De Vally, a distinguished Belgian tenor, who is making his second appearance as guest artist on an N.B.C. programme, is a native of Antwerp, where he was graduated from the Royal Athenaeum in 1903. He began his operatic career in Brussels and sang leading roles in opera houses in Belgium, France and England. In 1915-16 he sang at more than 300 concerts in England and Scotland, often with world famous artists. De Vally also sang with great symphony orchestras and in oratorio in Europe and America. He has been residing on the Pacific Coast for the last ten years.

The recitative and aria of Azael from Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue," Prix de Rome prize winner, is one of two numbers de Vally will present. He was the first to sing the role of Azael when "L'Enfant Prodigue" was given in lyric drama form under Debussy's direction in 1913. De Vally's second solo will be the "Grand Air de La Foret" from Reyer's "Sigurd." This he sang for the first time twelve years ago, with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, Walter Damrosch conducting.

In the second hour of the programme an instrumental quintette, comprising flute, oboe, clarinet, bassoon and horn, will interpret one of Charles Hart's compositions, "Alla Minuetto." Orchestral features include the Andante from Haydn's "Surprise Symphony" and Andre's suite, "Where Nile Waters Flow," suggesting the mystery and beauty of Egypt.

WHITTALL ANGLO-PERSIANS

Three Mendelssohn classics and a Chaliapin arrangement by Louis Katzman of the "Song of the Volga Boatmen" will be offered by the Whittall Anglo-Persians to their nation-wide audience during a broadcast this afternoon from 2:30 to 3 o'clock, Pacific standard time.

The initial number is Mendelssohn's inspired "Fingal's Cave" overture, written after a visit to the rocky and cavernous Hebrides Isles. Later during the programme the orchestra will present two of his "Songs Without Words."

Venice and the Orient are pictured in Nevin and Hayes compositions to be played also under Katzman's direction.

Amelia De Prato, San Francisco soprano, winner of the second prize in the Atwater Kent Foundation Audition in 1927, will be heard by a nation-wide audience during today's broadcast of the Atwater Kent programme between 5 15 and 5:45 o'clock, Pacific standard time.

The full concert orchestra under the baton of Josef Pasternak will present the musical programme for which "Bohemian Dance" and "Alabama" are among the high lights. A piccolo solo by Mr. Ellis McDiarmid will be a striking innovation.

STUDEBAKER CHAMPIONS

Playing their own arrangement of the newest syncopations, the Studebaker Champions will be heard through a transcontinental network tonight between 6 15 and 6 45 o'clock, Pacific standard time.

Selections from Broadway and motion picture successes will predominate during the programme, which will open with "Walkin' With Susie" from the Fox movietone Follies "Pagan Love Song," from "The Pagan," also is chosen from the silver screen theme-songs. Jean Goldkette will direct the champions and Buryl Retting and Dick Platt will be heard at the "twin pianos." Fred Walder, tenor, will contribute the vocal choruses.

Del Riego's "Homing" will be the first selection of the quartette and ensemble when "Enna Jettick Melodies" are heard tonight from 7 45 to 8 o'clock.

A Victor Herbert composition, "I'm in Love," interpreted by the same group, will follow, while the Sunday hymnal is "Angels, Ever Bright and Fair," by Handel.

Stations KHQ, Spokane, KOMO, Seattle; KGW, Portland; KGO, Oakland, KPO, San Francisco, and KFI, Los Angeles, will broadcast these programmes.

"When we are married
Why, what will you do?"

MODERN WOMAN has every right to ask this question of the man who wishes to marry her.

When a man marries, he gives up nothing. The woman, possibly, gives up a comfortable home, a good job and a certain economic independence. What is her compensation? Very possibly she becomes a hard working wife and mother, without pay. If death comes riding and gathers up the husband, she may be left with the care and financial worry of a young family.

It's well to give presents to a bride, but many a bridegroom might better give his bride a Life Insurance Policy for a few thousand dollars. Such a gift is the true measure of his intention to provide—until death—and beyond.

Write for pamphlet entitled "Protection at a Low Rate of Premium." It is quite interesting. Address:

Radio News

On July 16 the American Broadcasting Company added KFBK, Sacramento, Cal., to its rapidly increasing chain of stations. KFBK will carry many of the major programmes that originate in the several A.B.C. stations.

Professor Moore's orchestra is now playing at the Montmartre Cafe, every night except Sunday. KFWB as usual, broadcasts the dance programme nightly, and in addition, presents the orchestra on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday at 1 15 p.m.

Walter V Ferner, considered to be one of the four greatest living 'cellists, is to be heard over KNX every Sunday night from 9 to 10 30, both in solos and with the Luboviski Trio.

Paul Whiteman, America's triple-threat maestro of music, and his Rhythm Boys are broadcasting their futuristic rhythms over the A.B.C. system from KMTR every Tuesday evening from 5 to 6 o'clock. Harry von Zell, announcer and entertainer at KPLA, has been chosen as guest announcer for the hour.

James Madison, known as America's most versatile author, is presenting an unusually enjoyable programme every weekday from 6 to 6 30 p.m. over KPLA. The programme is called "James Madison's Dinner Club."

The Hollywood Bowl concerts are being broadcast over N.B.C. every Saturday evening at 8 30.

The popular organ concerts of Leigh Harline, formerly of KFRC, are now to be heard from KHJ over Don Lee broadcasting system daily, except Wednesday, at 12 45 p.m.

An A.B.C. network programme originating in the Seattle studios of the company was picked up by H. J. Dodgshun at John McGlashan College in Dunedin, New Zealand, according to a letter received at the Seattle studios of KJR recently. This is the longest report from DX fans on record here and the writer reported that it was the first American station he had ever picked up. Mr Dodgshun possesses a four-tube set of an unknown make.

June Pursell, the original "KNX Girl," has landed in the newest entertainment, the "talkies." Miss Pursell recently returned from a Keith Orpheum circuit tour, and has made several very successful Brunswick records.

"Henry and the Boss," favorite entertainers of KOL, are on the air every night from 7 to 7.15.

"On the air more hours per day than any other station in the world" is the claim made by the Paramount-Express station KNX, Hollywood. Broadcasting begins at 6 45 in the morning and continues without interruption until 1 a.m.

KFI, Los Angeles, includes as one of its listeners Lieutenant-Commander Delmore, at Tutuila, Samoa.

All of the plays from the pen of Helen Norris have proved to be excellent radio entertainment, but the little Oregon playwright seems to have scored her biggest hit with "An Irish Melody." This play was given over KGO recently by the KGO Players. Radio fans were enthusiastic in their praise about the rich vein of comedy that ran throughout "An Irish Melody."

A good-natured traveler asked a Pullman porter the amount of his average tip. The porter replied that the average was one dollar. The man thereupon handed him a dollar bill. The negro caressed the bill affectionately and said "Yassuh, boss, but you is the fust pusson what has come up to the average."

SEEGER ELLIS IN SPOTLIGHT

Majestic Theatre Programme Goes on Air This Evening Through the ABC Network

The imaginary portals which in the past have guarded the Majestic Roof Garden will be swung wide open to radio audiences this evening at 6 o'clock over the combined A.B.C.-C.B.S. networks.

Weodell Hall and his Majestic Music Makers have given advance assurance of copious quantities of revelry, and the young chap who will bathe in the resplendent rays of Majestic's spotlight in this radio theatre of the air is Seeger Ellis.

A native of the sunny Southland, Mr Ellis is well known as a result of numerous recordings and major vaudeville engagements. His is the story of a handsome youngster just out of college who took first the radio world, then the realm of records by storm with his individual style of song and piano presentations.

The Roof Garden show in the Majestic Theatre of the Air programme will also include the standard favorites, Muriel la France, Redferne Hollinshead, Mound City Blue Blowers and the superlative Arnold Johnson and his Majestic Orchestra.

Stations of the American Broadcasting Company's network that will receive this Sunday evening feature are KJR, KGA, KEX, KYA, KMTR, KDYL, KLZ.

WIRED RADIO SYSTEM IN NEW ZEALAND PROVES POPULAR

A system of wired wireless has been installed in New Zealand and has proved to be extremely popular, according to a report to the State Department from Charles F Kunkel, assistant trade commissioner at Wellington.

Broadcasting over the system is accomplished by impressing a carrier radio telephone wave on telephone wires. Service is now available in Auckland-Hamilton sections of New Zealand. Plans call for the expansion of the service to include a larger part of the island. Experiments are now being conducted in areas not supplied with the service.

"The Christchurch-Seddon section is now being installed," says Mr Kunkel's report, "and the work is nearing completion. Later the system is to be extended through to Invercargill. Experiments are being made with the Cook Strait telephone cable to see if it will serve the carrier system, but so far a decision has not been made public."

The carrier system is a method of using radio-telephony in conjunction with ordinary telephone or telegraph wires. The waves travel along the wires and are received by apparatus closely related to broadcast receivers. The waves used are much longer, or lower in frequency, than those now used in broadcasting. It is possible to use several frequencies, each carrying its own programme, on a single wire or so, so that the carrying capacity of the wire is greatly increased, as it can continue to be used for ordinary telephone or telegraph traffic.

SHORT PROGRAMME ON CFCT MONDAY

Two Summer School Broadcasts Go on Air—Sunset Concert Orchestra on Schedule

The Department of Education's broadcast from the Summer School for Teachers will commence at 3 CFCT, Victoria's radio station, and Mr. Robert Straight, B.A., will address radio enthusiasts on "The Theory of Educational Measurements."

At 6 o'clock in the evening the closing quotations will be announced over the local broadcasting station, and then the "Sunset" programme will be offered for the entertainment of the invisible audience at 6.15. This broadcast will feature the Sunset Concert Orchestra, and a delightful programme will be offered for the approval of radio listeners. Auto Runs 59 Miles On Gallon of Gas

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvelous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings, but are also surprised to find quicker pick-up, instant starting, smoother running motors and disappearance of carbon. E. Oliver 999—1689 E Third Street, Milwaukee, Wis., for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. They also need men everywhere to make over $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write him at once for free sample and big money-making offer. (Advt.)

BAPCO Floor Enamel

FOR WOOD OR LINOLEUM

It hardly seemed possible—yet it was true. Last night it was a dark, worn floor, sadly out of harmony with its bright cheerful surroundings. Before going to bed she gave it a coat of Bapco Floor Enamel, in one of the newer colors, and this morning it was dry. Yes! and not just just "top dry" but hard right through—tough, glossy, and ready to stand the wear expected for a floor finish. That's the beauty of Bapco Floor Enamel—it dries in 4 Hours and is so easy to keep clean. Get a can from your Paint or Hardware Store and enamel your floor—tonight.

PAPER STARTED 30 YEARS AGO

Progress Reviewed in Western Recorder by Rev. J. P. Hicks, Editor Since Inception

The Western Recorder completes with the current issue its thirtieth year of publication, the present editor, Rev. J. P Hicks, of this city having been in charge from its inception in July, 1899. The journalistic project was launched by a small group, which consisted of Revs. W. H. Barraclough, J. C Speer and J P. Hicks, together with Messrs. Noah Shakespeare, Walter Morris and Arthur Lee. The journal was devoted to the interests of the Methodist Church until the church union in 1925, since which time it has been published in the interests of the United Church of Canada.

Illustrating the progress in church affairs that has taken place during the three decades, it is stated that the Methodist Church in British Columbia reported 5,000 members in 1899, with a total raised for all purposes of almost $78,000. The United Church of today has 32,494 members, who gave last year the sum of $1,049,319 for church operations. Only eight remain of the sixty-six ministers who were in active work in the province thirty years ago.

FORMER RESIDENTS TO BE AT CITADEL

Adjutant and Mrs. Sharp to Lead Today's Salvation Army Services

Adjutant and Mrs Sharp will lead the morning and evening services today at the Salvation Army Citadel, Broad Street, commencing at 11 and 7:15 o'clock. Victoria is their home city, and they were soldiers of the local corps before becoming field officers. Many of their old friends will be pleased to meet them at the citadel today.

Two young officers who entered the training garrison at Winnipeg from Victoria have been spending a short holiday furlough at their homes, and took part in the meetings last Sunday. Captain Mary Smith now in charge of the Melfort, Sask., corps, is the eldest daughter of Mrs. (Major) Smith, and Lieutenant Stanley Mendum, assistant officer of Regina Northside corps, is the second son of Mrs. A M Mendum, of Victoria. Both were well known as active workers in the senior and junior corps here, and their friends were pleased to see them again.

TRUTH IS THEME

Sunday morning services at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Victoria, are held at 11 o'clock. Evening services are at 7:30 o'clock. Wednesday evening services, which include testimonies of healing, are held at 8 o'clock. A free reading-room for the public is maintained in the Sayward Building.

Leader of Baptist Young People

REV. J. GORDON JONES
Pastor of Parkdale Baptist Church, Toronto, was elected Vice-President of the Baptist Young People's Union of America at the annual convention in Detroit, held July 10 to 14. He was recently elected President of the B Y P U. of Ontario and Quebec.

PUT POLITICS BELOW PULPIT

The Late Keir Hardie Would Have Recast Life in Favor of Preaching Gospel

A story of the late Keir Hardie was recently retold by Professor C. Anderson Scott in a London church. Speaking at the Browning Settlement, Walworth, not long before his death, Mr Hardie said he often felt disappointed with politics and everything that concerned them. "If I had my time over again," he remarked, "with the experiences of the last thirty-five years, I would throw over my home and every personal interest, and would go out to proclaim to the people the Gospel of Christ."

That two-fifths of one hundred leading ministers of the United States are the sons of ministers was shown by a questionnaire circulated by the American Eugenics Society. Thirty-eight of the remaining fifty-six ministers were the sons of church officers, and in the case of eighty-nine of the ministers both the parents were deeply interested in the church. Only four said that neither parent cared much for it.

The Lord Mayor of London, Sir Kynaston Studd, belongs to a famous missionary family. Forty-four years, according to a recent statement made by the Lord Mayor, have elapsed since his brother, Mr. C. T. Studd, and his companions, known as the "Cambridge Seven," went to China, and all but one of that party are still engaged in missionary work. The Lord Mayor's own daughter is doing medical mission work on the Northwest frontier of India, and his brother-in-law Sir Montague Beauchamp, together with his son, recently went to China to join the staff of a medical mission station.

To the various theories of the nature of the malady which affected the Apostle Paul and which he refers to as his "thorn in the flesh," another theory has been put out by a writer in a recent number of The Church Quarterly Review. He rejects the hypotheses of epilepsy, malaria and cancer and suggests that the disease was scurvy. The writer, Rev F Montgomery-Hitchcock, thinks that the sea voyage from Cyprus without fresh vegetables would produce scurvy and a mild attack followed by hardship in traveling would aggravate the malady greatly. On the arduous journey toward the hilly country beyond which lay Antioch Paul was prostrated by an attack when he reached a village of the Galatians, and was so kindly treated by them that he stayed for a time to preach the Gospel to them.

The symptoms and after-effects of scurvy, this writer finds, are very like those of St Paul's malady, and correspond to certain expressions he used about his body, his eye trouble, the offensive appearance of the case, the stabbing pain or thorn in the flesh, the marks in his limbs, i.e., the stigmata, and the crippling effects, and the dark swellings around the eyes.

REV. E. MOSS AT ST. SAVIOUR'S

Services will be held in St. Saviour's Church today as follows: Holy Communion at 8 o'clock, matins at 11 and evensong at 7. The rector, Rev Edwin Moss, will preach at both services.

FORMER PASTOR TO VISIT HERE

Rev. A. K. McMinn Will Be Preacher at Metropolitan Church This Morning—Is Conference President

DR. ALLISON TO SPEAK IN EVENING

Rev. A. K. McMinn, B.A., B.D., president of the British Columbia Conference of the United Church and formerly associate pastor at Metropolitan, will have charge of the services, in the absence of Rev. Dr. W. J. Sipprell, today at the Metropolitan.

Rev. Mr. McMinn is well known in Victoria, coming here on his graduation in 1922 to accept the pastorate of the First Congregational Church. When union took place in 1925 this church united with Metropolitan and Rev Mr. McMinn became associate pastor and director of religious education. He soon won the affection and loyalty of the former Methodists just as he had done in the case of his own people. It was with considerable regret, then, that Metropolitan parted with him when the call came the next year to a larger field at Kelowna.

His work at the latter place has been most successful and it has been found necessary to increase their church accommodation. A fine addition has just been completed at a cost of $20,000.

Rev. Mr McMinn will have for his topic this morning "The Wisdom of Worldly Folly." This will be an exposition of Jesus' object lesson to his disciples on the wisdom and devotion that ought to characterise true discipleship. He pointed to the children of this world and said that they were wiser than the children of light.

Associated with Rev. Mr. McMinn at the evening service will be Rev. Dr. W G. Allison, professor in Occidental College at Eagle Rock, Southern California. Professor Allison is visiting in the city, the guest of the United States Consul, Mr George A Bucklin. They became acquainted when Professor Allison was stationed as a minister in Guatemala during Mr. Bucklin's tenure of the consular office there. Dr Allison has kindly consented to address the Metropolitan congregation.

UNITY CENTRE TO LEARN A LESSON FROM FAR EAST

At the Unity service this morning at 11 o'clock, Mrs. Gordon Grant will speak on "A Lesson in Patience," as taught by Omar, a wondrous soul of the Far East. The children's song and sermonette will also be given. Miss Grace Harding will sing a solo, accompanied by Mrs. Smith. At 7 30 o'clock Mrs. Grant will speak on "Health, Our Divine Inheritance." Mrs. Bonshor will preside at the piano.

On Tuesday afternoon at 2 45 o'clock there will be a class for study on "The Real and the Fictitious in Life." On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock the class in the correspondence course will be held. The subject for study is "God's Abundance for Man Covers Every Side of His Life."

SERVICE AT SAYWARD

Divine service was held on Sunday last at the Community Hall, Sayward, by Rev. W. G Knox, of the United Church Mission, who is stationed at Cape Mudge.

GREAT THEMES AT ST. ANDREW'S

Rev. Dr. Stevenson Will Deal With Some Major Aspects of Christianity

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, corner of Douglas and Broughton Streets, the pulpit will be occupied today by Rev R. M Stevenson, M.A., B.D., Ph.D., F.R. G.S., in the absence of the minister, who is on vacation. In the morning, Dr. Stevenson will preach on "God, Man, Sin, Immortality," and in the evening his subject will be "The Literary Value of the Bible." A hearty invitation is extended to everyone to attend these services, especially out-of-town visitors.

GANDHI USES ENGLISH HYMNS

Gandhi of India uses Christian hymns in his book of praise. At his chief religious seat—the ashram at Ahmedabad—there is a hymnal used containing selections for worship taken from Sanskrit, Hindi, Gujerati, and Bengali literature. But the most significant feature of that hymnal is, writes the late Dr. Robert A Hume, of India, that six hymns are in English, viz.: "Take My Life and Let It Be," "Lead, Kindly Light," "When the Mists Have Rolled in Splendor;" "Nearer, My God, to Thee;" "Rock of Ages;" "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross." This greatest of Christian hymns is followed by an original verse, which ends the hymnal with the following adoration of Christ.

"For Christ, Who won for sinners grace
By bitter grief and anguish sore,
Be praise from all the ransomed race,
Forever and for evermore."

Dr Hume considers this as a striking confirmation in India of Christ's prophetic word, "If I be lifted up, I will draw all men unto Me."

Mme. Sherry Will Speak Tonight on Number Thirteen

Mme. Sherry will speak on the 13th Chapter of Revelations, at the eighteenth verse "The number of the beast is the number of the man; here is wisdom." Is your number thirteen? is the question that will be asked First Spiritual Church, Harmony Hall, 724 Fort Street. Service at 7:30 o'clock.

Survey of South America Reveals Much Irreligion

Strong Materialistic Influences From Outside Create Widespread Unbelief—In Present Crisis, However, Are Hopeful Signs of Spirituality in Younger Generation

Heroic Efforts Being Made To Redeem Native Indians

THE arresting fact that out of some 6,000 students in Buenos Aires, barely a score admitted, in a recent inquiry, belief in a personal God, the action, also, of the progressive little republic of Uruguay in eliminating all religious associations from its calendar-making "Holy Week" into "Touring Week" and "Christmas Day" into "Family Day"—give support to the statement of an eminent South American who recently called Latin America "the most irreligious part of the Western world." To this may be added the judgment of Dr. John A. Mackay, the religious work secretary of the South American Federation of Y.M.C.A.'s, in an address given at the Jerusalem meeting of the International Missionary Council, that "the great majority of men in South America have repudiated all religion."

According to a discriminating review by Basil Matthews in the last number of The Review of the Churches, the three great forces that have been playing upon Latin America from the outside have been materialistic and destructive of the religious life of the people. These are given as the terrific tide of profit-seeking capital, the almost wholly skeptical and cultural penetration of French thought and literature, and the turbulent waves of Marxian Socialism. The real religious problem, according to Mr. Matthews, is not "Will South America become fervently Roman Catholic, or enthusiastically Protestant, or explicitly agnostic? It is whether the strangely blended races there—a dozen or more of them—will swing on the tide of secular civilization into the harbor of self-indulgence, or will discover and adopt such a spiritual basis of life as will discipline the fine qualities of its peoples to higher issues."

Protestant missionary workers, educational, medical and evangelical, hailing from North America and from Britain, have heroically carried their message to the Indians in remote and perilous places, to childhood in schools and to adults. No workers on earth are better qualified for the high title of Good Samaritans than these men and women who have gone, in face of much obloquy and derision, to pick out of the ditch Indians thrown on to the wayside by an exploiting civilization. But the intelligentsia and the younger generation growing up in universities and commerce have hitherto been hardly touched.

Encouraging features are found by the writer in the pronounced idealism among many students and the need of the higher life as urged by some university leaders. An eminent Jesuit priest has been attracting large congregations composed of a promiscuous audience of men who never enter cathedrals. Drs Mackay and Monzo of the Protestants are getting an increasingly larger hearing. Very significant also is the appearance of a strangely moving book on Jesus, called "The Invisible Christ," to which reference was made on this page at the time of its appearance. It is written by one of the front-rank intellectuals of Latin America, Dr Ricardo Rojas, the president of the great university of Buenos Aires. International camps of the Y.M.C.A. also contribute to a more spiritual atmosphere.

MEANING OF SALT AS SYMBOL TO BE MRS. DAVIS' TOPIC

"And the Word Was Made Flesh and Dwelt Among Us" is the subject of the morning service at the New Thought Temple, 842 North Park Street. The evening topic will be "The Symbol of the Salt." What is the inner meaning of salt as used in the Bible? Why did Jesus say "Ye are the salt of the earth?" What has salt to do with man's spiritual life? These questions will be discussed by Mrs. Davis, leader of the temple.

On Wednesday evening Mrs Davis will continue her instructive and interesting course of lectures on the ductless glands and their effect on youth and longevity of man.

Colonist Starts Campaign For Modernizing Homes

Improvement in Exterior Appearance and Interior Comforts Important Factor in Civic Progress—Movement Well Calculated to Stimulate Business

Modern homes for Victoria.

That's the latest civic programme of The Daily Colonist.

With our issue of Sunday, August 4, a new campaign will be inaugurated for civic progress and improvement. Each Sunday a full page will appear, featuring home modernization, and no doubt will interest every home owner, whether he lives in a modest cottage on a side street or in an ancestral home on the avenue.

The modernization of our homes, both in exterior appearance and interior comforts is an important factor in the improvement of the city. We need our homes to be up to date in every respect. We need them to be clothed in lines that are architecturally modern. We deserve the comforts and conveniences that the markets afford and should endeavor to place them in the home.

HOME MODERNIZATION

The home modernization movement which The Daily Colonist is sponsoring in Victoria is one of the dominant movements of 1929. It has grown out of an effort to make the home speak the language of today rather than of bygone years. We are living in 1929 and it is right that our lives should be living under present day conditions rather than under the rigorous discomforts of the nineties.

Home modernization is an effort to improve and modernize the home both on the outside and within. It is a community movement to beautify the residential districts as well as individual homes. It will serve to attract to the city other prospective home builders, thus increasing property values with the resultant benefits to the city generally.

WEEKLY FEATURE PAGE

With the hope of increasing the beauty and general good of this city, The Colonist has inaugurated a page on home modernizing which will focus attention on the movement.

This page on home modernizing is the first of a series of twenty-six pages which will be run at weekly intervals, commencing next Sunday. On this page will be printed each week a striking set of pictures shewing before and after modernization of an average house. These illustrations which are from actual photographs present forcefully the ease and simplicity of modernization, while in an accompanying column a story explains in detail exactly how the owner modernized his home.

From week to week all types of houses will be illustrated on this page. Some are modest cottages of one story, others are the more pretentious homes on the avenue which with a few deft touches of the builder's art were turned into stately town houses. The series shows how rambling old mansions and obsolete schools have been turned into cosy little apartment buildings with profitable results to the owner.

HOMES CAN BE MODERNIZED

It is significant that all types of homes can be modernized. The principles of home modernization can be applied with equally satisfactory results to dwellings of every size and condition. On The Colonist weekly home modernization page will be shown an abundance of illustrations to bring out this point.

Homes of brick, stucco and frame construction are treated as well as interior views showing such rooms of the house as the bathroom, kitchen, dining-room and sun parlor.

The pages also will contain instructive short articles on various phases of modernizing. Practically every part of the house that can be improved and made up to date has been covered during the series of articles which The Colonist has scheduled. Stimulating articles pointing out the benefits of this movement form an integral part of the feature service.

CIVIC LEADERS APPROVE

The home modernization movement as sponsored by The Colonist has the approval of civic leaders. The merchants of the building trades are enthusiastic endorsers of The Colonist's efforts to modernise and beautify the city. They appreciate the results which will be obtained.

WILL STIMULATE BUSINESS

That the home modernizing movement will stimulate business is the belief of civic students. The movement has been successfully tried out in other communities with most satisfactory results. Not only are the home owners directly benefited by the effort to improve and beautify the homes, but the business houses and mercantile organizations find that trade improves.

Civic leaders point out that the improvement of the residences of the city has a direct bearing on the prosperity of the city. They emphasize that the city is alive and progressive only when the homes of the city are up to date—that the city with obsolete appearing homes is invariably a worn-out city with stagnant business life.

The results of the movement, they assert, will be beneficial in promoting more business, more contented labor, in reducing labor turnover, and in building up the industrial life of the community in general.

MODERNIZING COSTS LOW

Yet the real costs of modernizing are usually low, as articles on the feature page will point out. The expenditure of money for modernizing is usually not excessive—on the other hand, for each dollar expended two or three dollars are returned in increased property values.

Modernization is a movement where everyone gains. The money spent by your neighbor has a direct result in influencing the increase in value of your property. Every citizen can with profit support the movement.

MERCHANTS OFFER ADVICE

The Colonist has made arrangements whereby citizens interested in increasing property values through modernization are invited to get in touch with the merchants of the city who are supporting the home modernizing movement. Each of these firms are experts in their various lines and each can do much to aid the home owner in increasing the desirability of the homestead.

These merchants have asked The Colonist to assure the readers that they are willing to give personal advice on home modernizing as applied to their particular lines of endeavor. There is no obligation entailed to purchase any commodity that the merchant has for sale as the information and advice is a distinctly social and civic effort to improve the community and its general prosperity.

OLD PIPES ARE STILL THE BEST

WILL BE USED AGAIN IN NEW CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL ORGAN

Contractors Expect to Have Nave Ready for Opening and Consecration on September 28

With the delivery of more stained glass for windows in the north aisle of the new Christ Church Cathedral, and the installation of glass in the clerestory, the completion of the outside framework for a temporary east end, and the finishing of the south aisle from floor to ceiling, the contractors, Messrs. Parfitt Brothers, expect to have the nave ready for the official opening and consecration on September 28.

Within a few days scaffolding in the north aisle will be removed, after which the stonework of the pillars and arches will be cleaned and pointed and the floor laid with cement. The surface of all floors, excepting the baptistry, is to be covered with the best quality of battleship linoleum.

As soon as every window in the clerestory is filled with glass, scaffolding in the centre of the nave will be taken away, leaving free space for the erection of floors, platforms and other structural work required for the sanctuary, choir organ and vestries.

The builder of the new organ, Mr. Chandos Dix, has dismantled the pipes from the instrument in the present church. These are the only materials from the old organ to be incorporated in the new instrument. They will be used again, because after careful examination it was stated that the metal was of better quality than could be obtained today.

Steady progress is also being made on the west front. Arches of doorways in the porch of the northwest tower are in course of construction, and windows have been erected to about one-half their full height.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED

Additional gifts, in response to the Bishop of Columbia's appeal for thank offerings to finish the nave free of debt, are still being received by the treasurer of the building fund at the Memorial Hall, Vancouver Street. Nearly $15,000 has been contributed towards the required amount of $40,000, exclusive of $8,000 needed for furniture and equipment.

Typical of the spirit in which many are rallying to support the Bishop's appeal is this letter, written by a woman living on an isolated island off the coast of Vancouver Island. "I am sorry my cheque did not get sent off during the Thanksgiving Week," the writer stated, "but it is a real thanksgiving all the same, and I am proud to be allowed to have a share in a really wonderful accomplishment. Enclosed please find a cheque for $100."

Contributions to the building and furnishing funds have also been received from a number of visitors, who have handed in their gifts at the Cathedral services and at the following downtown offices: Brett & Ker, Ltd., Government and View Streets; Canadian Bank of Commerce, Douglas and Johnson Streets; Litchfield's book store, 1109 Government Street; Royal Trust Company's offices, 801 Government Street.

NAVAL PARADE

The monthly naval parade will take place this morning at St. Paul's Garrison Church at 10.30 o'clock. The other services for the day are at 8 o'clock and 7 in the evening. Rev. F. C. Chapman, rector.

Power of Music

By NEILS SINCLAIR

From earliest known times in all lands the power of music has been accredited and the minstrel held in honor because of the magic of his gift, a magic which, streaming from the minstrel's gallery in old baronial halls, loosed the tongues of lords and ladies and caused bright wit to sparkle as the wine, or played in moaning strain beneath the balcony of some fair Juliet, made beauty's eyes o'er brim with tears and youth's heart beat high with hope.

David with his harp could change the sullen heart of Saul, and fired by martial music the sons and daughters of Sparta strode their land straight of limb and fearless of eye, with a spirit no invading army could quell. Throughout the long fair days of Greece the "great God Pan" played upon his pipes for the shepherd and the huntsman, the peasant and the nymph, and his music would be heard upon the land when at evening the wind went "ruffling through the grass" in weird and eerie chants, or when the hunter stood "at gaze in the crisp stillness of an Autumn morn."

No longer in these hustling days may the pipes of Pan be heard—he waits a glad re-birth—but the power of music endures to charm the heart of man.

Much has been spoken and more written in these days on behalf of folk-music, and we in Canada are witnessing a Dominion-wide revival of interest in this field of art. Counting as she does among her population, the c[illegible]ren of practically all European as well as many Asiatic nations, C[illegible]da, like the United States, has at her disposal a vast treasure house of inherited artistic wealth, a source of aesthetic talent unique for its multiple variety among the nations of the present day, incalculable in achievement and effect among the nations of the future provided the proper steps are timely taken to preserve, encourage and develop it.

In the cultural development of Canada the folk-music (which preserves so much of the folk-lore in it) of these foreign-born Canadians is destined to play a vital part. Canadians are awakening to this, not merely with a view to exploiting such aesthetic talent commercially, but as true Canadians, wishful of developing, preserving everything which pertains to the cultural life of Canada. Hence the welcome accorded throughout the Dominion to Canadian singers, to folk and sea festivals.

VALUE TO EDUCATION

To the need for including music in the educational life of her young people, not as a mere accessory or possibly even as a luxury, but as an essential, Canada is awakening slowly but nevertheless surely. The former privation of school children in country schools of the musical training accorded children in city schools is now recognized for what it is, viz., the depriving of the children of a very vitalizing and humanizing educational influence; hence the young teacher is sent forth trained to rouse and foster a love of song and the appreciation of music in the hearts of the young. Encouraged by music festivals and public interest, music in the more privileged life of city children, has come to play an increasingly important part. True, the organized character of the musical education of the children ends as yet abruptly with public school life; but this shape of things cannot long endure. Music, a subject of the highest cultural importance and influence, cannot long be denied her logical place in the high school education of Canada's young, if the cultural life of Canada is to be re-built upon sure foundations. Music, as one of the fine arts, is no longer relegated in the countries of the world, to the exclusive homes of the aristocrats and the wealthy. She has come to take her place and play her part in the beautifying, the harmonizing and the ennobling of life in the home, in the community, in the nation.

A recent musical experiment of a remarkable nature made in California marks a further step in the conscious progress of man, and may lead to a world-wide inclusion of music in the programme of reform institutions, particularly of the young. In an intensely human and interesting article, a music director tells of his unique experience in teaching music to five hundred young "criminals" in a reform institution. The results are little short of astounding. Not only did these youths respond to his teaching, but by the end of the third month they asked as a body that the weekly half hour of jazz (a concession made them by their instructor), be cut out in order that the precious time might be given to the choral music which, by virtue of its sheer power and beauty, had won the hearts of them all. Of the young criminals thus trained and taught in music, ninety per cent. for a period of sixteen years (which is as long as the writer had been able to follow them up), had led useful and decent lives. Many, if not all of them, had kept on singing after leaving the institution, while letters by innumerable boys were sent their erstwhile instructor. Could ever more profound tribute be paid the power of music—music whose magic can kindle to flaming life the divine spark lying hid in the hearts of every man? Surely no more thought-provoking proof of the power of music has been forthcoming in our day, and it may well be that the courageous experiment carried out in a California reform institution, will point the way to the elimination or transmutation of criminal instincts in the young, and to the soothing and healing of diseased minds in persons of all ages. The time is at hand when music will not only be aesthetically and consciously applied as an instrument of regenerative and re-creative force in the life of man.

Conrad McG. Merton was talking about a difficulty in the international film trade.

"We were very conciliatory," he said, "but over there they were almost offensive.

"We were like the chap who was courting. They were like the girl.

"The chap said to the girl reproachfully:

"'I believe you're out on purpose whenever I call.'

"'No,' said the girl, and she shook her head and smiled. 'No, kiddo, it's just bull luck.'"

Mrs. Bob's Smart Trick

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Some folk you'll find are full of guile,
Yet seeming innocent the while.
—Peter Rabbit

It was only a little while after Peter Rabbit had left Mrs. Bob White and her sixteen babies when he discovered Redtail the Hawk sailing over the Green Meadows. Peter at the time was close to the dear Old Briar-patch, so he felt wholly safe. He knew that Redtail couldn't get him in the dear Old Briar-patch and he wouldn't even try.

"I do hope," said Peter, talking to himself, "that Redtail will not see the Bob White family. It would be too bad if Mrs. Bob should loose any of those pretty babies. I don't know when I have seen such a pretty family."

Redtail the Hawk continued to circle about over the Green Meadows. He was high up in the air. Peter sat up and watched him. He knew just how wonderful were those eyes in that great bird up there. He knew that looking down Redtail could see every little thing. If so small a creature as a grasshopper should move, Redtail would see it.

"Oh dear!" thought Peter. "He's getting almost over the place where I left Mrs. Bob White and her babies."

Hardly had the thought passed through his mind when he saw a little black speck rise from the grass way over there and speed away toward Farmer Brown's cornfield. Almost at once Redtail the Hawk shot down after that little speck.

"That was Mrs. Bob!" exclaimed Peter. "That is just who it was! She looked like a speck, because she was so far away, but that is who it was. I know it. I know what she's doing, too."

"You know who's doing what?" demanded little Mrs. Peter, who had come out from the dear Old Briar-patch to join Peter.

Peter explained about Mrs. Bob White. "She has her whole family over there with her," said he. "Sixteen of them!"

"My Goodness!" interrupted Mrs. Peter. "What a family! When we had six children at one time I had my hands full. Sixteen. My goodness, my goodness, what does she do with them?"

"My goodness!" interrupted Mrs. Peter. "what a family!"

"Just now she's trying to save them," replied Peter dryly.

"What do you mean?" asked little Mrs. Peter.

"She's trying to lead Redtail the Hawk away," replied Peter. "I know just what is happening as well as if I'd been there. She saw Redtail up in the air. She gave a little danger signal to those sixteen babies and those sixteen babies instantly squatted flat."

"They must be obedient babies," interrupted Mrs. Peter.

"They are," declared Peter. "They are the most obedient babies I have ever seen. The instant they squatted Mrs. Bob took to her wings and flew over into Farmer Brown's cornfield. Redtail went after her. There he is circling around now above Farmer Brown's cornfield looking for her."

"Huh!" said little Mrs. Peter. "I don't see what she did that for. Why didn't she squat when when the babies did?"

"Think a little, my dear, think a little," said Peter. "She wanted to get Redtail away from the place where the babies are. And she's done it. He'll never catch her and he won't find those babies this time. She knows they'll keep still until she returns. It was a smart trick. Mrs. Bob White certainly knows her business."

Glorious Show Boat Of World-Wide Fame Comes to Dominion

Unique Combination of Screen Epic and Stage Musical Extravaganza Made by Universal, With Laura La Plante and Joseph Schildkraut, at Yates Street House All Week

Broadway's Great Show in All Its Glory Reproduced

Seldom is a theatre afforded the opportunity of presenting to the public a motion picture of such unusual merit as "Show Boat"—and accordingly, the management of the Dominion Theatre is justly proud to announce the presentation of this Universal super talking production to its patrons beginning tomorrow for a six-day run.

"Show Boat" is not merely a motion picture. Besides being an intensely dramatic picturization with dialogue of Edna Ferber's famous best-seller of the same name, the production includes, in sound, all of the famous musical hits of the Ziegfeld extravaganza, "Show Boat," presented as an integral part of the programme by the world famous stars who appeared at the Ziegfeld Theatre, New York.

Therefore, besides seeing as living characters the immortal romance which Miss Ferber gave the world in fiction, theatre-goers actually hear the equivalent of a high-priced New York show as a part of their entertainment.

In order to procure such a programme for the picture, Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, Florence Ziegfeld, producer of the New York show, Jerome Kern, publisher of the musical hits, and Oscar Hammerstein II, son of the famous impresario, combined their vast theatrical interests to reproduce in movietone the highlights of Ziegfeld's New York production to be incorporated in the picture.

Golden voiced darkies sat at the gangplank crooning the tuneful melodies over the slow-moving moonlit waters. And no less romantic than they, were the pirouetting ladies, the langorous Southern gentlemen who appeared in the melodramas aboard. The townsfolk came to the river banks and sat enraptured at the wonders they saw and the music they heard—marvelled as they gazed upon the beauty of Magnolia, played by Laura La Plante on the screen, and listened to the impassioned words of Ravenal, played by Joseph Schildkraut.

COLUMBIA SHOWS 'SOUTH SEA LOVE'

Jungle fastnesses lurking dangers, the mysterious beat of the tom-toms, the soul-searching silences and what these things do to the loves of men and women are shown in Ralph Ince's F.B.O. production, "South Sea Love," which is to open tomorrow at the Columbia Theatre. Manager Clark has succeeded in securing this special after extended negotiations.

It is one of the most remarkable pictures of the year. For many months Mr. Ince had wanted to produce the story, but was forced to wait until he could secure the services of men familiar with every detail of jungle life and could have weather hot enough to produce all the effects required.

The story begins in the "Roaring Forties" of the Big City, shifts to the jungle depths of 20 degrees latitude and ends—well, no matter how it ends. It has to be seen to appreciate the tense drama of it and the beauty of the photography.

Patsy Ruth Miller, in the principal feminine role, has scored another success comparable to her work in Mr. Ince's "Shanghaied" and in Lubitsch's memorable film, "So This Is Paris."

The events in the picture cover every phase of sport and are presented to show the strides which the Soviet Republic has made in its physical culture.

BLANCHE SWEET IN SUBTLE MYSTERY

Screen Artist Seen in Best Role in Wilkie Collins' Famous "Woman in White"

To take a novel of the calibre of Wilkie Collins' "The Woman in White" and make it into screen entertainment required both courage and skill. Herbert Wilcox, one of the foremost of English producers, had both, and he has turned out a photoplay that will please the patrons of the Coliseum Theatre.

"The Woman in White" is not a contribution to the jazzy kind of screen fare that seems to predominate this modern day. Wilkie Collins' tale is grim, and across its pages flash a series of grim events in a Scottish mansion haunted by an old crime. But one forgets the grimness in the splendid entertainment, contributed chiefly by Blanche Sweet, who plays the dual role of a young bride, wed to an imposter and a spectre from the past in the person of another young girl who has been confined in an insane asylum to further the aims of a group of high-handed society racketeers.

"The Woman in White" was written in the Victorian era, but Mr. Wilcox has garbed his characters in modern dress, which takes away some of the drab of the novel.

Matheson Lang

"The Triumph of the Scarlet Pimpernel" the British film adaptation of the novel by Baroness Orczy, is a new screen feature in New York. Matheson Lang, the British actor, plays the role of Sir Percy Blakeney, and Nelson Keys portrays Robespierre. Juliette Compton is seen in the role of Theresia.

Claimed to be the world's fastest, a new train travels seventy-seven and one-quarter miles between London and Swindon, England, in seventy minutes.

"The Informer" and "Blackmail" to Make Appearance in America Shortly

Liam O'Flaherty's much discussed novel, "The Informer," has just been put in production by British International Pictures for distribution in Canada and the United States by World Wide Pictures. This is a story of twelve hours in the life of a man who has betrayed his country, and is a remarkable narrative full of thrilling action and psychological emotion. It requires a producer well versed in this class of production to transfer it successfully to the screen. For that reason British International has engaged Dr. Arthur Robinson, the Scottish doctor.

"The Informer" will be followed by "Blackmail," which will introduce to America a new star in Anny Ondrea. This is a stage version of the Charles Bennet stage play directed by Alfred Hitchcock.

NO SHORTAGE SEEN IN BRITISH FILMS

Schedule for 1929-30 Provides for One Hundred and Twenty-Nine Silent and Sound Features

Much has been said and written as to the effect of talking and sound films on the British film industry. The Federation of British Industries, as a result of an inquiry, states that seventeen leading firms in the quota year 1928-1929 produced eighty-one films and the schedule for 1929-1930 is 129 films.

These latter are made up of fifty-five silent, fifty-five sound and nineteen with both silent and sound versions. As the quota for this year is only sixty films it is obvious that there is no shortage.

At the time of writing only 400 picture houses are wired to show talking and sound films, and this is only about one-tenth of the total cinemas in the British Isles. This number probably will be increased by the end of the year to 600, so that the market for silent films must remain for some time yet. One of the largest British film companies is already producing talking pictures, and three others are on the verge of doing so.

Wheat and Tares Are Cut Together; Farmer Must Pay

TORONTO, July 26.—Besides losing his field of grain, Victor Bleck of Brooke Township, Lambton County, Ontario, must pay the cost of the expedition headed by Township Weed Inspector Milton, which recently raided his farm and cut down a field of grain infested with sow thistles.

Under the Weed Control Act of 1927, according to officials of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, persons who have refused to remove weeds on their premises must pay the cost of removal by the township. In the event of the bill not being paid, it may be charged against the property on the tax rolls.

The raid on Bleck's farm was purely a municipal matter undertaken by the township, Queen's Park officials say. They add, however, that to their knowledge it was an extreme measure employed after every other means of discipline had been exercised without avail.

Public opinion is demanding the war-to-the-knife campaign which the Government and the townships are waging against noxious weeds, according to executives of the department.

Weeds got a good start in Ontario this Spring owing to the wetness of May, declared Mr. J. A. Carroll, who, as head of the co-operative and marketing branch, has charge of weed control. Every effort is being made to overcome this handicap, he said, in order to save this year's crop and lessen the inevitable spread of weeds next year.

In the Lambton district, where the "raid" was made, this was the first appearance of sow thistle and officials consequently were on the alert to [illegible]. Sow thistle spreads, it is computed, at the rate of twenty miles per year. According to Mr. Carroll, there are many men living in areas now badly infested who can remember clearly when the first growth appeared.

Once apathetic in regard to weeds, farmers now are becoming watchful, Mr. Carroll stated.

During the Summer he receives on an average a hundred letters a week from farmers and others complaining of bad weed beds. These prove of great assistance to the four district inspectors and to the township inspectors appointed under the Weed Control Act.

"We always make sure that no complaint is a spite case by first looking over the property of the person complaining," Mr. Carroll said. "Then we see the farm that is the subject of complaint and if action is necessary we warn the farmer. In nearly all cases we can get him to remove the weeds him-

SOUND AND TALKIE COMEDY SCREENED

Capitol Features Four Stage Veterans in "The Cohens and Kellys"

For the first time since the advent of talking pictures, four players, noted on both the stage and screen, have been brought together to appear in a single sound production.

George Sidney, Vera Gordon, Mack Swain and Kate Price, comedy stars for many years behind the footlights, and now equally prominent in films, are cast in Universal's riotous sound feature, "The Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City," which opens tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre.

Sidney and Swain were well known on Broadway before coming to Hollywood, and Miss Price was a vaudeville headliner. Miss Gordon, although devoting her talent mostly to the little theatre type of production, was an able comedienne as well with road shows, Broadway hits and vaudeville.

"The Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City" has both dialogue and sound effects, which add immeasurably to the comedy scenes. The picture is reported to be an even greater riot of laughs than its two predecessors, "The Cohens and Kellys" and "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris." Most of it was filmed in Atlantic City.

'ONE WOMAN IDEA' AT PLAYHOUSE

Rod La Rocque and Marceline Day Head Cast in Feature Opening Tomorrow

Berthold Viertel, who directed "The One Woman Idea" for Fox Films, his first directoral effort in the United States, showing this week at the Playhouse Theatre, formerly was associated with Max Reinhardt in Germany, but has become thoroughly familiar with American film methods since enlisting under the William Fox banner at the studios in Hollywood.

Viertel wrote the scenario and continuity for "4 Devils" and "City Girl," which were directed by F. W. Murnau, and his close association with Murnau during the making of those Fox Films classics gave him valuable insight into technicalities as applied to the United States.

Viertel brings to the screen a vast knowledge of European stage and screen technique which is reflected in his first opus for Fox.

To Rod La Rocque and Marceline Day are entrusted the leading roles in "The One Woman Idea," a story of idealistic love, poignant hate and flaming passion which was written by Alan Williams and adapted by Marion Orth.

Doug and Mary

Another record in talking pictures was established when the longest perambulator shot was filmed in the making of "Taming of the Shrew," in which Douglas Fairbanks cavorts as Petruchio and Mary Pickford as Katherine. The set is a street scene in Padua and is 500 yards long. The camera and microphones were mounted on a traveling platform that picked its way through the maze recording supposedly fifteenth century Italian sounds. In place of the amplifying systems employed by the director in silent pictures to direct the extras, a system of light flashes has been installed. It is estimated that seven weeks will be the time for the filming of the piece.

A Celestial Lady

Anna May Wong, the little Chinese American actress, who has made such a hit in "Piccadilly," never even visited China. She was born of Chinese parents in Los Angeles and was educated there. She first came into prominence in "The Thief of Bagdad."

Lorna Duveen

Lorna Duveen, English actress, who has been in Hollywood for several years appearing in "The Knockout," opposite Milton Sills, "The Making of O'Malley," etc., has returned to England and is working with British International Pictures, whose product is brought to America by World Wide Pictures.

Carnival of Nice

"The Carnival Crime" is a story of a beautiful young widow who tries to trace some valuable miniatures that were stolen from her, a mysterious man who ceaselessly follows her and a gang of international crooks to lend that criminal touch. The film is set against a background of carnival time at Nice. Dr. Willy Wolff directed the picture, which is an adaptation of Ernst Klein's novel, "The Lady With the Tiger Coat."

"Sunny Side Up," the Fox production in which Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell will make their debut as singers and dancers, is now in production at the Fox West Coast studios. David Butler, who directed the "Movietone Follies," will also supervise this production. Miss Gaynor's voice was heard for the first time in "Four Devils."

Britain's Hollywood Is Rapidly Coming To Front at Welwyn

Possesses Own Theatre, Own Shops and Own Factory in Undulating and Well-Wooded Part of Hertfordshire, Producing Probably Most Characteristically English Companies in Great Britain

Films Are Distinctively British in Every Way

By JOAN LITTLEFIELD
(Correspondent of the North American Newspaper Alliance)

LONDON, July 27.—One of the newest though by no means largest film studios in England is that belonging to British Instructional Films at Welwyn Garden City, nine miles northeast of Elstree, in Herts.

Welwyn is new, a pleasant community of red bungalows and grass-bordered roads. It has its own theatre, its own shops and its own factories. It is decidedly a place with a future, and it is likely that before long it will become a second Hollywood. The air is good, the atmosphere is clear and the surrounding country pretty, undulating and well-wooded.

British Instructional Films is probably the most characteristically English of all the producing companies in this country. It was created by Bruce Woolfe in 1919, and its first picture was "Jutland," the spectacular battle film.

For a time Mr. Woolfe concentrated on war pictures, and "Ypres," "Armageddon," "Mons," and "The Battles of Coronel and Falkland Islands" were all made by his company. British Instructional Films is also celebrated for its series of short pictures, now exceeding a hundred, and called "Secrets of Nature." They deal with plant, animal and microscopic life.

It is only recently the company has begun story films. The first was Anthony Asquith's "Shooting Stars," and among its recent successes are "Underground," "Shiraz," an all-Indian film telling the story of the Taj Mahal; "Bolibar" and "The Lost Patrol."

Mr. Woolfe, a big genial man with greying hair and keen, dark eyes, took me to Welwyn to see his studio. He is justly proud of the organization he has got together and of the fact that every member of its directorate and staff and every penny of its capital is British.

FILMS DISTINCTLY BRITISH

"Our policy is to produce pictures British in spirit and as far as possible in direction, cast and technique," he said. "We have no use for screen conventions. Our intention is to evolve a technique as unmistakably British as that of the pictures from Hollywood or New Babelsburg is American or German."

Mr Woolfe like every other film magnate in Wardour Street, is extremely interested in the future of the talkies. Personally he does not like them. He believes they are detrimental to the art of the cinema and that their popularity will be short lived. At present his company is not thinking of making talkies, but it has arranged to have sound synchronization for all the pictures it is making now.

"This is essential," said Mr Woolfe, "for no silent pictures are being booked. Nevertheless, our policy is to go slow and await developments."

At Welwyn I was handed over to a university man, who showed me over the studio. British Instructional Films is essentially a company in which youth predominates. It is staffed largely by young men of university type, whose enthusiasm and ideas should assure an extremely interesting future for the organization.

The production manager is Paul Madeux, a young Swiss educated in England, who had five years' experience in the Fairbanks studio at Hollywood. The most famous of the directors in Anthony Asquith, son of Lady Oxford, and the most talked of and most brilliant young man in British films. Mr Asquith is a hard worker, and pays minute attention to detail. He goes about the studio in an old tweed suit and is popular with everyone.

GERMAN LOVES ENGLAND

His latest film is "A Cottage on Dartmoor," and for this he has had a most elaborate hairdresser's shop built in the studio. The cottage is there, too, and the escape of the convict should prove one of the most thrilling incidents in this film. The stars are Norah Baring, young English actress who scored a success in "Underground"; Uno Henning, Swedish star, and Hans Schiettow, German actor, who is paying his first visit to England. Mr. Schlottow is tall, dark, handsome and muscular, and has fallen desperately in love with England.

"The British Museum, I found it so marvelous I wanted to stay there a week," he said. "And your National Gallery, what a wonderful place, and the tombs of the kings in Westminster Abbey! We have nothing like them in Berlin."

At one time it was thought Mr. Asquith would attempt to inflict highbrow ideas on the film industry, but recently he has been vigorously defending the lowbrows. He compares the cinema with the Elizabethan theatre, when "every author, whether a genius or a nonentity, was writing for the same audience," and he says that in this respect the cinema is "the only surviving popular art."

Another important member of the staff is Frank Wells, talented son of H. G. Wells, who has gained considerable position as an art director. Mr Wells is fair, with blue eyes. He wears his hair rather long, and of course affects the tweeds and pullover that seem de rigueur at Welwyn.

The studio is a steel frame building of 41,000 square feet. The floor space is 200 feet long by 100 feet wide and fifty feet high. The general layout is designed to localize the departments. On the right of the main hall are all the offices of the administrative department, on the left the process room, the projection theatre and the still rooms, all intercommunicating, but entirely separated from any other part of the building, and giving adequate admission to the studio floor.

A feature of the studio is the three mess rooms in which 200 or 300 people can be accommodated.

AIR CONDITION IMPORTANT

Sunk in the floor at the east end is a tank forty feet long, thirty feet wide and eight feet deep, which can be filled with water. Back of this is a large roller shutter door capable of giving a clear view outside. This is fifty feet wide and thirty feet high.

Air conditioning is an important feature in studio construction in this country, and the main studio at Welwyn, which has a capacity of 900,000 cubic feet, is provided with a large heating and ventilating plant of two complete units, each consisting of filter, washer, heating battery and motor-driven fan. Special attention is given the filtration and washing of the air.

Outside the studio is a permanent row of shops which form a useful background to many pictures, and nearby is the new sound studio, recently fitted with recording equipment, and which will be used for sound synchronization.

In a brief survey it is not possible to do more than give one's impressions of a few of the more important and representative British film studios, and in conclusion I can mention only a few of the other studios springing up around London.

There is the newly-formed British Lion Film Corporation, which has Edgar Wallace as one of its directors, and which intends to produce chiefly film versions of this author's novels. The company has built a studio at Beaconsfield, Buckinghamshire, a picturesque village chiefly notable for its connection with the great Victorian statesman and also the fact that G. K. Chesterton and J. L. Garvin live there.

Mr Wallace is a notable disciplinarian in the studio. He allows no noise, no shouting, no indecision and no smoking while shots are being taken.

At Hendon, near the airdrome, are the studios of Aerofilms Ltd., while at Wembley, in the exhibition grounds, British Talking Pictures have built the first sound studio to operate in England.

South of the Thames are two important studios, those of the Alliance Company at St. Margaret's-on-Thames, and the Archibald Nettlefold Productions at Walton-on-Thames. Mr Nettlefold is in close touch with the London stage, and has filmed several of the plays produced at his own theatre, the Comedy. He discovered Mabel Poulton. Mr. Nettlefold is also a co-director in Britannia Films, Ltd., a company which has the distinction of possessing the only woman director in this country, Miss Dinah Shurey.

The British film industry has become a power to be reckoned with, and though for a moment it has paused in its stride to grapple with the problem of the talkie, it already challenges comparison with the film centres of the world.

Comment on Current Events

There is an institution in Russia about which little is known, but which is unique and worthy of imitation. The Children's Theatre, run by the Department of Education, is one of the many surprises of Moscow.

It was started during the war, when actors, hungrier than the children were, provided diversion through the hard time of the famine. It was taken over three years ago by the Department of Education and is used as an experiment and for teaching.

Performances are free. They are arranged by schools, clubs, and other organizations. The theatre seats 750, and is always crowded. There are about one hundred performances a year, and it has entertained in the last six years audiences amounting to about half a million.

The director, Philippov, is a former actor and producer for adults. The object of the Children's Theatre, as explained by the director, "is to educate in a general social and artistic way, and to inspire children to want to act or to produce plays. We play for different ages. For the youngest, from seven to nine, we give marionette shows lasting only an hour. For the two older groups, from nine to fourteen and above, we give plays about two and a half hours long, taken from the classics, fables, and village life. We give 'The Wedding' by Gogol, 'Don Quixote'; 'Tom Sawyer', an old Russian fable (something like the fox and the sour grapes), and a play of modern village life, 'Chorny Yar' ('Black Cliff'), showing the struggle between the older and the younger generations with a boy hero, the pioneer 'Yegorka.'

"We also have concerts, especially quartette music. Children love animals, and we have one piece with four animal characters. Once a year we have a big show in the Circus Building, with a whole menagerie and lots of clowns, and the audience takes part. Last year three hundred children acted in the stunts.

"The children's teachers always sit with them and jot down reactions to the plays, and compare notes afterward. Some of the children who attend the concerts have never heard real music before and the blind children sometimes weep and say they never knew anything could be so lovely."

First Class Honors Won in Tests

LITTLE MARIE COSTELLO

Daughter of Mr and Mrs. A. Costello, [illegible] Broughton Street, obtained first-class honors in the elementary pianoforte examinations of the Toronto Conservatory of Music held recently.

The most remarkable thing about this theatre movement is the way in which all those connected with it work together. The actors serve as coaches in the schools, and in this way gain an intimate knowledge of the tastes and characters of their public.

The teachers accompany the children to the plays, and the children often put on plays at their own schools and invite the actors to see them.

If a country as poor as Russia can support a Children's Theatre, would it not be possible to have one like it in every country?

There will be no dearth of music in Europe this year. The list of festivals is a long one. Among the most interesting events will be the "flute concert" in the period of Frederick the Great (reviewing the costumes and settings of his period) at the Charlottenburg Castle, designed to reproduce Menzel's famous picture of a like concert.

Vienna will present the "Johann Strauss Weeks," and there will be festival plays staged by Max Reinhardt, with ballets, pageants, and a chorus of 8,000.

No less than ten major events in the British Isles are scheduled for this Summer, among them being the All-Ireland Musical Festival at Dublin, the Midland Festival at Birmingham, the Edinburgh Festival, Dolmetsch Festival of Old Music at Haslemere, Fiddler's Competitions and Folk Dances.

The Dayton Westminster Choir is winning applause and admiration in Europe and Britain. Eight cities, including London, have joined in enthusiasm over the merits of their singing. Paris, Vienna and many other cities have tributes to yield, and seven concerts were given in London by the Ohio choristers. It is a matter of great pride to the conductor, John Findlay Williamson, and the president, Mrs. E. H. Talbot, as well as to the members, that this favorite American organization is winning such high commendation on the other side of the Atlantic.

Musical Honors Won By Talented Child

FLORA CAMPBELL

Little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arch. Campbell, 1216 Montrose Avenue, who won first-class honors at the recent Toronto Conservatory of Music examinations in Grade II Elementary Piano. This little girl received honorable mention at the Victoria Musical Festival in April in under 11 years piano tests, and also won the highest marks at the studio of her teacher, Mrs. MacGovern.

The "Little Theatre" movement in the United States was inspired by Jacques Copeau in 1918, and the "Little Cinema" movement in Paris may prove to be of equal importance in its effect on the American motion picture industry. Since the first "little cinema" theatre was opened in Paris three years ago, six others have been opened, all of them showing only those films that are above the ordinary. The Film Society in London is one result of the first little cinema theatre in Paris, and the Fifth Avenue Cinema in New York is another.

When he was a small boy, Felix Salmond, the eminent 'cellist, was told by an occulist that on account of astigmatism he would have to give up piano playing and play something at which he could look directly down, or straight ahead.

Salmond made his first public appearance at the age of twenty, and as a 'cellist he is among the best. He has, however, never lost his love for the piano, and is always to be found at a recital by Hoffman, Bauer or others of his favorites when his own busy life will permit.

Salmond is a British citizen, but has lived in the United States for the past seven years. His favorite city is San Francisco, but he feels that New York has greater musical opportunities, and he makes his home in the latter except during the very warm weather, which he detests.

A new opera by Giordano, "Il Rey" (The King), was heard recently for the first time at La Scala in Milan, with Toscanini conducting. It was so successful that even the producers and author could not get the seats they wanted in the sold-out house.

Giordano, who is famed for his "Andrea Chenier" and other operas, has made a welcome contribution to operetic literature with his "Il Rey." There are three acts, connected with musical interludes of spirit and humor, and the opera is written in the style of a fairy tale, full of joy and fun.

The three acts, "Appearances," "Illusion," and "Moral," concern the infatuation of a miller's daughter for the great King. When Rosalina becomes disillusioned with the King she is content to marry her rustic lover, Colombello. The setting is of the seventeenth century and, with a splendid casting, and Toscanini to direct, the opera made an instantaneous success.

At the rate we are traveling, we may eventually run out of new things to do. Incidentally, musicians are helping in this respect. A well-known opera singer, Cyrena Van Gordon, recently engaged an aeroplane, had a small organ put in the cockpit, and then went up to sing for some of her admirers. A radio hook-up passed Miss Van Gordon's singing on to hundreds of thousands, and, from the letters received, they approved of what was done. Now the star has bought an aeroplane, with the announced intention of using it to fill her concert engagements.

As a result of the recent 10 per cent reduction in round-trip fares on airlines of eleven countries, travel by air in Europe is cheaper than by first class on international railways.

Son of Pioneer Settler on West Coast of Hudson Bay Tells of His Boyhood There

Twenty-five years before anyone else knew of it, a certain William Beech, of Manitoba, was sure that Fort Churchill must come to be a terminus of a railway and Manitoba's port on Hudson's Bay.

So sure was he that he homesteaded there. Seven months after his death the Beech homestead was expropriated as part of the townsite of the future city of Fort Churchill.

William Beech, who with his long cloven beard and far-gazing sad eyes might have sat to a painter of Henry Hudson himself, died without leaving any record of his long confident vigil. But his son, Carl Emerson Beech, has told of a Winter and Summer spent alone in the Northland, and it reads like Ballantyne.

"From the mouth of the Churchill to our property is three miles. Northeast from our cottage, it was a walk of a mile and a half to the bay.

"This cottage I lived in was twelve by twelve feet. We had built her of spruce logs about as thick as your wrist; carried them three miles. Sods on the roof, with a tarpaulin over them. I had a big box stove, an old-timer with a flat top for baking bannocks, just the thing. It would take a four-foot stick. The heat from it was a terror. I half filled it with stones and the fire in the top was plenty.

"I had good water handy. Lake Rosabelle—named after mother—a spring water lake twenty-five to thirty feet deep, the only fresh water around there, is on our homestead. Food? I had all kinds. Cranberries and appleberries grow wild up there. There were radishes and lettuce, grown in our garden. There were swans, ducks, geese, ptarmigan. There were caribou. I had to drive the caribou away with a stick when I went to draw water from Lake Rosabelle. We had brought in apples, prunes, sowbelly pork, that sort of stuff; but I could have got along without them. If the worst came to the worst, I could have got dried caribou meat from the Indians. They sell it in bundles. It looks like kindling, and is light, good for long journeys where you don't want a load. It makes good soup or you can chew it as it is.

FISH AND GAME

"No, we didn't waste ammunition on birds. Last thing in the Fall, I brought up some sand from the lake and dumped it back of the house. The ptarmigan would come and wallow in this sand like chickens. I set a fish net overhead, so that the pull of a cord would bring it down to the sand. The ptarmigan came to 'wash'; I pulled the string, and the net fell down on them. Nothing tastes better than a couple of ptarmigan boiled in a pot of beans.

"Up there they have the finest of fish, cold water fish. Hearne salmon run as high as forty pounds. Very very rich and good. Then there are caplin, a fish a little bigger than a sardine. The caplin swarm at the edge of the river just after the ice breaks up. I used to get down there and scoop them up in pailfuls. The large fish I would catch by setting the net on dry land, while the tide was out. The fish would come in with the tide, and when it went out again, there they would be in the net.

"Before my father left for the outside, I had a little bother with the dogs. One dog ran around snapping at the others, and would not let me catch him to put on the harness. I said, 'Something wrong with that dog.' But father said, 'No-o! Catch him, catch him.' I chased him and finally got him by the hair of his neck, he tried to nip me, but he didn't make it. We couldn't do anything with him, had to shoot him. A little later, two of the other dogs that he'd bitten went mad. That was what was wrong with him. No, I had no mitts on when I caught him; I couldn't have hung on to him with mitts on.

WINTER OCCUPATIONS

"I did not spend the Winter indoors. Not by any means. I was out and around most of the time. I went west into the wood country, and hunted with the Chipewyans. I did not need meat, there were caribou right close to the cottage in thousands. But I did want to get a pair of Chipewyan snowshoes. Chipewyan snowshoes are the best in the world; a spruce frame, with a web of babeese (gut). Balanced just right—that is, both exactly the same weight. You never know they are on your feet. If snowshoes are not balanced, you see, one leg gets tired quicker than the other on a long trip, and you play out.

"What are the Chipewyan Indians like? I will tell you. When you get near a camp of them, all you hear is continual spitting and coughing. They are, I think, the most poverty-stricken miserable race of people in the world. They are in all stages of consumption, shiftless, lazy. They never even patch the bullet-holes in their caribou tents. The tents are always draughty and cold. I would sooner spend the night outside than in one of these Chipewyan tents.

"The Chipewyans have difficulty at the trading posts because hardly anyone can speak their language. They haven't learned a thing from contact with the white man. They live the same today as they did one hundred years ago. It is sixty below zero sometimes when they are out hunting. I have seen them gash the newly-killed caribou and thrust their hands into the carcase to warm their freezing fingers. In fact, I have done that myself. You can't handle a gun trigger with your fingers numb.

HAPPY ESKIMOS

"Now, the Eskimos—the 'huskies' we call them up there—are just the opposite to the big glum sick Chipewyans. They are always happy, always jolly. I hunted with them and camped in an igloo. Nothing draughty about an igloo; it is absolutely airtight. The heat of the bodies alone, when a hunting party is inside, will raise the temperature two or three degrees. A soapstone blubber lamp is the only heating apparatus needed. The Eskimo women sit and chew blubber and spit the oil into the lamp and keep it full.

"The Eskimo hunters in the party I was with had on the usual Winter dress—two suits of caribou, the hair of the outside suit turned out to the weather, and the hair of the inside suit turned next the skin. They always took off the outer suits and left them in the igloo passage way. When they went to bed they took the other suit off and slept in their sealskin blankets bare naked. Their pelts were berry brown and as tough as leather.

"They are very handy at fixing things. I broke the lock of my gun, and one of the Eskimo hunters fixed it, the neatest job you ever saw. He patched it with copper. It is said that up at Chesterfield they find raw copper in chunks the size of an egg. I have seen Eskimos come into Churchill with snow knives made of pure native copper.

CARIBOO MIGRATION

"That Winter I saw the migration of the caribou. I got up on the morning of October the 14th, and said, or rather yelled to myself, as there was no one else to talk to: 'There is a deer!' Looking again I saw several, then more, then a lot more. They were coming out of the bush in droves. In the days following, they lay around like cattle and chewed their cuds. I shot two from the doorway of the cottage. All Winter and until the following April they kept passing the cottage. I could see the timber wolves running around in the herd and pulling down the fawns. The stags chased the wolves, but couldn't do anything with them; they got the fawns just the same.

"From the cottage during that Winter I saw all the wonders of the Northern Winter night, which lasted from about 3.30 in the afternoon until 10.30 the next day. Bright moonlight, great stretches of crusted snow with not a house, and the shining aurora making it like day. I wish I could tell you what the aurora is like at Churchill. It is dazzling; it is wonderful. The dancing streamers seemed to be so close that I would stick out a hand. It seemed as if I could touch them.

SPRING FLOWERS

"With the Spring came the flowers and grass. The landscape there is slightly rolling country, something like the prairie down in the southern part of the Province, but the grass is very thin. Rivers and creeks run across and in the Spring they are full of slush and water, which makes it poor traveling. West of Churchill you get into scrubby bush. Twenty miles north are the Barren Grounds—rocks and moss.

"In the Summer I often went across to the Hudson's Bay post. The Eskimo were there, thick. They come down, you see, with the last ice in the Spring, some time the latter part of June, and they stay around the post at the river mouth until September, when they start north for their Winter's hunting

"I saw some very pretty Eskimo girls, or rather half-Eskimo, half Scotch, descendants of the Dundee whalers who had taken Eskimo wives. There were also some of the fierce Ungava dogs—the brutes that have been known to pile on their drivers and eat them during long trips when the grub ran out.

"Later in the Summer the boats began to come in, a beautiful sight, the same as they have been doing up there for 250 years. The Eskimos help to unload these boats for the Hudson's Bay Company, and in return the company gives them a flying start up the Bay coast toward their hunting grounds beyond Chesterfield Inlet."

At the H.B.C. post he met young Oman, a child of the North, three-quarters Orkney and one-quarter Cree, much in demand as an interpreter because, born and brought up in the locality, he could speak any language at Churchill, including the difficult Chippewain.

Assistant Attorney-General Galloway said in a brilliant after-dinner speech on evidence:

"Then there is the witness who seems unable to open his mouth without putting his foot in it.

"'Do you understand the nature of an oath?' a lawyer once said to such a witness.

"'Yas, sah. Ah swahs an oath fo' to tell the truth, sah.'

"'And do you know what will happen if you don't tell the truth?'

"'Well, sah,' said the witness, 'Ah expecks our side would win the case, sah'."

STOCK MARKET DRIFTS LOWER; TRADING SMALL

Gloomy Credit Outlook and Hot Weather Make Trade Indolent—Depression Is Feature

FEW STOCKS STOOD AGAINST TENDENCY

NEW YORK, July 27.—The stock market drifted lower in a quiet two-hour session today. What with the rather gloomy credit outlook and the hot weather, traders were largely inclined to leave Wall Street to take care of itself for the week-end, and the normal pre-holiday liquidation depressed prices rather generally throughout the list. The day's turnover amounted to only 1,370,610 shares, the lowest since June.

There was practically nothing in the meagre business news of the day to influence the market.

A sprinkling of stocks managed to move against the downward trend. Commercial Investment Trust and Consolidated Cigar each moved up about 6 points. Baldwin Locomotive, Eastman Kodak, and Bendix Aviation were firm. Westinghouse Air Brakes moved up 2 points to a new top on reports of increasing sales. The motors were generally steady, although Auburn and Marmon sold off on realizing. Coppers also held their ground. What selling came into the steels was well absorbed, Bethlehem selling off but a fraction and U.S. Steel slipping back a point.

The chemicals were under marked pressure, Commercial Solvents dropping about 12 points, then rallying 4 from the bottom in covering. Allied Chemical lost 4 points. In the rails, Atlantic Coast Line lost 8 points. New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Nickel Plate 3. Atchison slipped back about 2 points, despite an extraordinary favorable June earnings statement. Delaware and Hudson, however, mounted a couple of points. American Telephone sold off about 4 and General Electric 7 points, although they rallied a little at the close. American Can, American and Foreign Power, Goodyear, Pacific Lighting, and Air Reduction were among issues losing 2 or 3 points. Radio sagged a point. Cluett Peabody dropped 2 points more to a new low for the year.

Foreign exchanges were also irregular, France sagging in profit-taking and sterling cables holding at $4.85 3-8.

The bond market was reactionary in today's short session as selling pressure was exerted against the recent convertible leaders. The industrials were the only issues to display group strength, while the utilities dipped sharply on profit-taking.

Whitney Letter

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

NEW YORK, July 27.—Whitney, of the Wall Street Financial Service, todays says: A selling expedition was launched in the fourth hour of yesterday's market with principal pressure centred in the rail group in an endeavor to unsettle the market. This manoeuvre was defeated before the close and brings us to an interesting point in the general market, which is the determination of the precise movement when this period of irregularity will end, and the advance be resumed on a broad scale. There is an excellent possibility that this resumption will be made today; if it is not, then I believe we have to look forward to nothing more than one or two sessions of further irregularity, during which time advantage should be taken of each and every dip to buy stocks. Since the rail group offered practically no short interest it was relatively easy to make this section of the list look bad in yesterday's market. The group cannot be kept down, however, and so without qualification advantage should be taken of this mark down for buying practically throughout the group.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul June statement shows an increase of about an even half-million dollars, or 33 1-3 per cent over the corresponding month of last year. Buy the preferred stock any place in the low 50's. Erie should be acquired while this can be done below 85, and Bangor & Aroostock within the range of 85 to 90. For some time it has been recommended that prices between 110 and 120 be used for taking profits in International Telephone & Telegraph. Desire to cancel this recommendation and make the profit-taking range 120 to 130, with not more than half of the profit to be taken below 125. Bethlehem Steel has still not reached a profit-taking level. As for United States Steel, which next week will make quite as brilliant a showing as Bethlehem, the recommendation is continued. Buy it below 210.

Credited with at least twenty-five robberies, eight youthful members of a band known as the "Shaven Heads" were recently arrested at Marseilles, France.

NO LONGER IS RAIN A FACTOR

SPRING WHEAT LOSS ESTIMATED AT 400,000,000 BUSHELS

United States Federal Farm Board Proposed Merger of Farmers' Marketing Associations

CHICAGO, July 27.—Rain is no longer a factor in our Spring wheat territory. It looks as though the loss in Spring wheat in North America is at least four hundred million bushels and, before we are through, another fifty million bushels will have to be deducted from the Winter wheat crop.

We have now had two weeks or more of deficient rainfall and excessive heat, and its effect upon the growing corn plant is just becoming apparent to close observers. The period of general tassel is approaching and the crop is now peculiarly susceptible to heat and drought damage during that period, although it is not too late for good rains to help.

A merger of all farmers' grain marketing associations into a giant sales corporation was proposed by the United States Federal Farm Board at its first session yesterday in conference with farm marketing officials designed to work out a long time programme for the development of agriculture. The proposal, which will be fully discussed today, was only talked about roughly yesterday. The Sales Corporation would be one with an ultimate paid up capital of not less than two million dollars. The corporation would operate for all grain co-operatives in the markets of the United States and foreign countries for the collective selling of such portion of the grain crops as are now or may hereafter be marketed co-operatively at county points.

Earning—Saving—Investing

What to do if—you are denied—
Insurance.
7

A monthly investment plan is vitally important to the person who is unable to buy insurance.

There are some people who, even though comparatively young, are unable to obtain life insurance because of physical defects. Yet these persons often have others dependent upon them, and they may live to an old age in spite of their physical defects.

For such a person, regular investments are most vital. With insurance denied him, his death will mean destitution to his dependents unless he has built up an estate through saving. He should combine the sum that he would ordinarily spend for insurance with the sum he would ordinarily invest, and with this fund embark upon a definite and comprehensive saving programme. By putting aside a sum each month and reinvesting the interest, he can, in a comparatively short time, create an estate which will safeguard his own future and that of his dependents.

TWO B.C. MINES MAKING INITIAL HEAVY SHIPMENT

NELSON, July 27.—Two mines, the Davy's Mill, at Retallack, and the Wodbine, at Stewart, made their initial shipments of the year to date to the Trail reduction plant of the Consolidated M. & S. Company during the perid of July 1 to July 21, inclusive. Davy's Mill, which shipped thirty-four tons, is the second mine shipping from Retallack, the other being the Whitewater, which has shipped heavily for some months. The Woodbine shipped only four tons and is the only mine shipping from Stewart.

Eight other custom mines shipped during the period, Whitewater heading the list with a total of 148 tons.

Company mines shipped a total of 10,564 tons during the week to send their total for the year to date to 15,964 tons.

Total receipts from customs and company mines during the week were 11,129 tons to send the total for the year to date to 306,028 tons.

STOCK MARKET A DULL AFFAIR

PRICES LOSE GROUND RAPIDLY AS SESSION PROGRESSES

Steel Steadies After Some Early Losses—Sentiment at Week-End Appears Mixed

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

Today's stock market was a dull and featureless affair. Prices were generally lower at the start of trading and in practically all instances lost ground rapidly as the session progressed. Some aprehension was shown regarding the money outlook over the month-end and this factor served to dampen bullish enthusiasm. The shares of Radio Corporation were under continued pressure and the stock experienced a further setback. American Telephone & Telegraph was another issue which was forced to absorb realizing and lost ground rapidly.

In the industrial section American Can, General Electric and numerous others were sharply lower. Copper stocks were heavy throughout the entire session. Demand for copper from abroad continued to show some increase with early sales estimated today at approximately 2,000,000 pounds. Domestic enquiries for the metal are said to be showing some improvement with a fairly good tonnage reported as having been sold during the last week. Automobile stocks were generally lower, while oils showed but little price variation from last night's close.

Report on the condition of business at the week-end continue to reflect the tinge of optimism and trade may be described as well balanced, with many of the usual midsummer irregularities entirely absent. In the final hour of trading a number of the rail issues, such as Chesapeake Ohio, N.Y.C. and B.O. were forced to lower ground. Steel, after some early losses, steadied somewhat and closed at or about the previous levels. Bendix Corp. in the specialties, after some early hesitancy trended upward and closed with a slight gain.

Sentiment at the week-end appears to be somewhat mixed. Just now the market is forced to contend with heavy realizing sales, especially on all price advances and an irregular affair seems to be in prospect for the present.

BAD TO WORSE IS REPORT OF SPRING WHEAT

Past Week Is Hard One Through Greater Part of Northwest and Canada—Deterioration Is Rapid

CORN SUPPORTED WELL ON SETBACKS

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

CHICAGO, July 27.—Wheat: The Spring wheat situation has gone from bad to worse in many sections, with the general opinion that the week-end reports would show a still lower condition than the sensational advances of last week showed. The week has been a hard one on wheat through the greater part of our Northwest, and most of Canada. Montana conditions have been decidedly unfavorable with high temperatures and dry weather taking a toll from the crop. Estimates made during the week indicated that Canada would not raise more than 225,000,000 bushels wheat while some estimates were as low as 175,000,000 bushels. Advices received Thursday were about the most bullish received so far from Canada. Sections which up to a week ago had fared comparatively well, were said to be deteriorating rapidly. Crop news from Australia and Argentina was bullish, dry weather menacing the crops in those countries as well as in our Northwest and Canada.

An intense heat wave has overspread Western Europe, with reports of premature ripening of wheat in Germany, while the United Kingdom has been suffering from lack of rain for some time. Washington reports indicate that countries so far reporting crop prospects in Northern Hemisphere, not including Canada, show a decrease compared to a year ago in wheat prospects of 102,000,000 bushels, this added to the enormous loss in Canada, means that total supplies will be well below the total of a year ago in spite of the big carry-over. Moreover there is a strong probability that the Southern Hemisphere crops will be smaller than last year. Argentine acreage is estimated 15 per cent less than last year, with the crop getting a poor start owing to deficient moisture. The latest reports received from Australia indicated the crop deterioration was already extensive.

CASH SITUATION UNUSUAL

The cash situation in wheat is about as unusual as the crop situation in the Northwest. The carryover in this country, Canada and Argentina will be heavy, and the current receipts are beginning to test storage capacity at various points. The exporters and domestic millers have not covered their needs, and after futures advanced too rapidly, they have both been reluctant to take hold, the erratic action of the futures market tending to restrict business.

However, with all the pressure on the cash markets, elevator men have been able to buy the grain in the Southwest and elsewhere, and have had no trouble in placing their hedges on the market so broad has been the speculative demand. The crop situation appears to dominate the situation in spite of the big stocks. Moreover, there is no evidence that anyone is dodging the ownership of wheat with the probabilities so strong that after the big run of Winter wheat is over, the pressure on the cash markets will be light. From all appearances wheat growers of this country will meet the smallest competition during the next twelve months that they have had in many years. There is a possibility that considerable Winter wheat will be shipped to Duluth where there is said to be plenty of storage room. It is believed, moreover, that clearances will soon show up larger. The past week Galveston cleared about 2,225,000 bushels of wheat. Local receipts increased materially during the past week. More differences of opinion developed in wheat recently, many longs selling out owing to the belief there would be congestion in cash grain. But on declines made by hedging sales, which were heavy, and by long liquidation, there was heavy accumulation.

CORN

Excellent support was given corn on the setbacks but there was still a good deal of reluctance in following the bulges, however, late in the week considerable strength developed. Country stocks of corn are supposedly heavy, but there is reason to believe farm consumption has been underestimated. For one thing hogs have shown a high average weight and the receipts have been much larger recently than a year ago. It is significant that receipts have dropped to much smaller volume than a year ago, while cash prices have been gradually hardening for several days, relative to the futures. The position of corn appears decidedly healthy.

Oats—Crop losses in Northwest and in Canada, with the higher prices for other grains, make oats look cheap at this level.

Rye—A small crop at the best is indicated, and while there has been no export business foreigners have been credited with buying rye futures. The situation is considered strong.

NO MOTIVE TO BUY IN A BIG WAY

Trading Narrows Down in Scope and Volume at Toronto During Week—Holiday Spirit Pervades

LARGE PROPORTION SHOWS DECLINES

Contrast Shown Between Toronto and Montreal Markets — Latter Featured in Power Shares

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

TORONTO, July 27.—A holiday spirit pervaded the market and trading narrowed down both in scope and volume. The motive to buy in any big way was lacking, because it is felt that there is no great inducement to make a market for stocks just now.

While at times moderate accumulation appeared for individual stocks, on the whole selling was better than buying. In a list of forty-five stocks traded on in the Toronto board twenty-six showed declines and eleven advanced during the week. Of the advances only three were for two points or more.

A contract between the Montreal and Toronto markets is presented by the fact that Montreal trading was featured by activity and strength in power shares which are not traded in on the Toronto board. Brazil, one of the most widely held stocks in the Canadian market, dipped below fifty-eight during the past week and at time of writing remains under sixty. This issue occupies an interesting position, because of its yield as compared with other leading utilities, at fifty-nine the stock which pays $2 per share per annum yields $3.39 per share.

WHEAT MARKET TRADE SMALLER

PRICES FALL AWAY FROM CLOSE OF DAY BEFORE

Market Closes Strong at Winnipeg With Early Settlers Reinstating—Coarse Grains Quiet

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

WINNIPEG, July 27.—Wheat: The wheat market was somewhat quieter today with a much smaller trade passing than for several days past. During the first part of the session liquidation of long wheat continued in a mild way which found a very limited demand and prices fell away two cents from yesterday's close. On this break, offerings dried up completely, which was the signal for some of the bulls to become active and prices were run up nearly four cents from the low points. This bulge brought out a little further liquidation, and while the full upturn was not held, the market held steady at fractionally higher than yesterday's close. Trade was again largely local, there being nothing doing in exports overnight.

In the cash market, there was a better inquiry from Canadian and American mills for four and five wheat. Offerings were very small and strongly held. Spreads were half to 1½ better and the advance brought out only odd cars. Seaboard reports splendid inquiry for some lower grades, with indication that it will be only a question of time before a fair volume is wanted. There were a few light thundershowers in the West the past twenty-four hours but precipitation was not sufficient to be of any material benefit, while temperatures were again decidedly higher in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, 100 being registered at several points, but it was cooler in Alberta.

The weather forecast promised light showers but no relief from the high temperatures except Manitoba, which will be a little cooler Sunday. The market closed strong and at the top with early sellers reinstating.

Coarse Grains—There was a good domestic business in feed oats this morning, but there was very little doing in the other grains, all of which firmed in sympathy with the last strength in wheat. Oats closed 1½ to 1⅝ higher.

Flax — Market was somewhat firmer, closing 2 to 4 up. Trade was light but offerings are practically nil.

Lack of Water Forbids Baths Save in Hotel

BRUSSELS, July 27 — Until further notice it is against the law for any citizen of Brussels to take a bath. City officials yesterday strictly prohibited use of water for bathing by householders in Brussels and its suburbs when a persistent drought finally brought the city's water supply dangerously low.

Foreigners and wealthy Belgians were still able to sneak a bath on the sly, for the big hotels were temporarily exempted from the "no baths" regulation but this concession provoked vehement criticism and was not expected to last.

Italy Opens 5 Schools For Foreign Students

ROME, July 27.—With the opening of courses for foreigners in Italian language, history, archeology and history of art in Rome, Italy has three Summer educational centres in operation for the benefit of visitors from abroad, especially Americans. The University of Perusia, now in its fourth year of Summer courses, and the Summer Medical School at Varese, near Milan, began their sessions July 1.

Today will see two more important centres for overseas students opened at Florence and Siena. This is the fruition of the educational propaganda policy instituted by Senator Fedele while he was Minister of Public Instruction and the Fine Arts and carried on by his successor, Deputy Giuseppe Delluzzo.

TWO MINISTERS TO PAY EUROPE VISIT

OTTAWA, July 27.—The coming week will see two cabinet ministers en route to Europe when Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of National Revenue, and Hon. J. C. Elliott, Minister of Public Works, sail from Montreal.

Strong Cantaloupe Price Checks Liberal Movement

Owing to Shortage, Quotations Advance and Therefore Favorite Fruit Is Missing From Average Family Table

Higher prices for cantaloupes on the wholesale produce market during the last few days have cut down home consumption from twenty per cent to forty per cent by Victoria operators. With jumbos remaining firm at various shipping points the Imperial Valley movement has caused the sharp declines noted in local sales.

Current values on the market compared with first-of-the-season prices, it is pointed out, are just the same and therefore places the popular fruit out of reach for the daily menu of the large family, jobbers here state. With cantaloupe receipts comparatively lighter throughout the Pacific Northwest from California, little relief is expected until the Washington crops reach the mart. While initial shipments are not expected until the latter part of this week, jobbers are making inquiries into the crop situation.

The movement of the first quality apricots is brisk, with prices stationary, but No. 2's are in little demand. Word was received from Ryan & Wilson Fruit Company yesterday that the last carlot of preserving apricots was practically cleaned up, but another shipment is expected the first of this week. The same applies to the watermelon stock, but the warehouses will have another supply either Tuesday or Wednesday.

SUPPLIES PLENTIFUL

Here is a list of late arrivals from California that Victoria housewives can choose from during the week: honeydews, casabas, ice cream melons, plums of the Burbank, Climax, Wixon and Vacaville variety, peaches of the St. John and Crawford class and celery. On the other hand, if it is local produce they want, here is another group to select from: raspberries, loganberries, blackberries, President cherries and fresh vegetables, especially yellow, green and broad beans, besides Transparent and Duchess apples.

Large size oranges continue on the upward trend, while smaller varieties are continually dropping. Owing to a decided shortage in this year's grapefruit production, quotations are somewhat higher than usual.

DAIRY PRODUCE STEADY

Butter and eggs remained steady, unchanged on the local exchange as the week closed, which indicates that the wholesale prices will remain on the same basis at the start of this week. There is a strong tone noticed on the egg mart, due to the advancement on the Eastern henneries. Butter is also firm in tone, due to lighter production, with creamerymen reporting little influence exerted on the market by the heavy storage holdings throughout the country.

Ticker Forecast

(B.C. BOND CORPORATION, LTD.)

(B.C. Bond Corporation, Ltd.)

NEW YORK, July 27.—Westinghouse Electric — The top-heaviness in the market is probably more responsible for the failure of Westinghouse to forge ahead than anything else. On the basis of its latest report, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company is conservatively priced. Considering the fact that the company has only begun to reap the benefits of its expansion programme of the last few years, the future of the stock is decidedly bright. Indeed, everything speaks for higher levels for Westinghouse. The latest available statement shows that Westinghouse sales and net profits are approximately half of the sales and net profits of General Electric. The General Electric stock sells around 370, against somewhat over 200 for Westinghouse. Whereas there are 7,211,000 shares of General Electric outstanding, there are only 2,360,000 shares of common and participating preferred of Westinghouse. This means that there are a little over three shares of General Electric for each share of Westinghouse. The market value of the three General Electric shares is well above $1,000. Whereas the difference as far as earnings and sales are concerned is about two for one, the market price is five for one. In addition to that General Electric has about $45,000,000 of preferred stock and bonds ahead of the common, whereas in the Westinghouse calculation the preferred was taken in the total of the common. Of course, General Electric has vast concealed assets which do not compare with the holdings of Westinghouse, but the latter company also has tremendous outside interests which the balance sheet does not disclose. At any rate Westinghouse is substantially undervalued when compared with General Electric and we advise utilizing all market recessions for increasing holdings.

Vogt — With buyers in constant search for issues that are selling at an attractive ratio to their earnings and prospects, attraction is called to the Vogt Manufacturing Company stock which is being traded on the curb and selling at a rather attractive price. The stock is paying $2 and has earned more than the dividend requirements for the entire year during the first six months. The net after all expenses, Federal taxes and depreciation, is equivalent to $2.44 per share for the first six months, as compared with $3.57 for the entire year of 1928. There is only one class of stock outstanding, and all gains in profits will inure to the benefit of the stockholders. The company is one of the oldest manufacturers of interior fabric trimmings for automobiles and is developing the manufacture of fittings and light-weight accessories for aeroplane bodies. The company was established in 1874 and enjoys a good reputation and the patronage of all the leading automobile manufacturers such as General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, Nash, Willys-Overland, etc. Business prospects for the balance are considered good, and further expansion in earnings is anticipated. We recommend purchases.

Week-end profit-taking yesterday was of moderate dimensions and the net result was nothing more than a slight unsettlement in the general list with unimportant changes even in the most volatile issues. A similar course is expected today and nothing startling can be looked for. Offerings should be well absorbed, and here and there a few individual issues should feature the market. An interesting sidelight is the offer of the U.S. Steel Corporation to exchange its stock for the Colombia Steel on a basis of $200 for the corporation stock. That the management considers its stock worth $200 is a vindication of those who are bullish on this particular issue. Our attitude on U.S. Steel and the entire steel group remains unchanged and we believe that these stocks are still holding out excellent prospects of appreciation in the near future. While we are not inclined toward rampant bullishness and urge caution on the basis of the prospective advance in the list, we believe that a number of issues will continue moving higher and will be instrumental in checking a broad realization wave for a little while longer. We are disposed to let the market alone today and only those in a strong cash position should enter into new commitments on the long side. This, of course, excludes the in-and-out trader who finds plenty of opportunities even in the short session today, to buy and sell with profit certain issues within the two-hour period. The trading community should continue acting with greater reserve in view of the prospective unsettlement in call rates early next week. Several large bond issues have been called, and the banks managing these operations will call in a considerable amount of loans in order to be prepared to pay off the surrendered issues. These, in addition to the regular month-end requirements, will produce another flurry in money, which never does the market well, even if everyone knows that the situation is only temporary.

American Smelting & Refining quickly responded to the buying spurt in coppers; indeed, it remained strong even as realization in this group developed. Smeltings position is particularly attractive today and it is not as dependent upon the price of copper as the producers are. Its record of earnings in the last year shows that American Smelting managed to operate at a high ratio of profit even when the copper producers were not making money. The company's position has been further improved through expansions and modernization of various plants. Earnings for 1929 should break all records, and at the current levels the stock is still selling at a very attractive ratio to its past and prospective income. It is a worthwhile purchase even if it should suffer a slight setback under pressure in the general list.

Westinghouse Airbrake—Recommended by us on July 23 in anticipation of a new movement in this stock, justified our expectations and crossed the old high on an extremely heavy turnover for this issue. The position of Westinghouse Airbrake is satisfactory and future earnings should compare favorably with those of the past. It is believed that the company is now out of the difficulties it had to contend with, when the railroads ceased ordering equipment. It has diversified its output and now is not as dependent upon this particular line as it was a few years ago. The stock usually reacts after reaching new highs and is likely to repeat past performances. Its position, however, is satisfactory enough to justify confidence, not only as regards a comeback, but also with respect to substantially higher levels. We advise holding on to the position already assumed and extending commitments on slight declines.

Missouri Pacific published yesterday its June and six months statement and as anticipated the latest month brought a further gain in gross and net. The June gross was $10,623,000 as compared with $7,796,000. The net income was $440,000 compared with $341,000 for June, 1928. The net for the half year is almost a million dollars above the net for the first six months of 1928. While the common stock is still suffering from the inability of the management to make up its mind with regard to the arrears of the preferred, there is no doubt that the question will be settled shortly and a dividend on the common will be given consideration in the not distant future. We repeatedly recommended Missouri Pacific during the last year or so, and the stock is now selling practically double the value it did twelve months ago. Rapid rise in earning power and tremendous equities behind the issue will bring Missouri Pacific to considerably higher levels. Purchases are advised.

EXPECT LITTLE BIG FINANCING

THREE MONTHS OF INTENSELY ACTIVE BUSINESS JUST ENDED

Bankers Gratified at Reception by Public of Larger Blocks of Securities Offered

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

TORONTO, July 27.—Bankers do not look for much important financing during the remainder of July and during August. Houses have had three months of intensely active business, having been called upon to finance approximately $150,000,000 bonds in that period, so a few weeks of rest will not be unwelcome.

Bankers express themselves as gratified at the manner in which the larger blocks of securities offered have been taken up by the public. Few, if any, bonds of the 60,000,000 C.N.R. financing are left in the hands of the financial houses. The absorption has been thorough. While bonds that did not have Government backing required the efforts of sales forces in a more intensive way, most industrial and municipal offerings have found their way into investors' hands evidently to stay. The bond market has entered a period of rest and is in a healthy condition. The floating supply is meagre and there appears to be real investing power behind the market.

A dispatch from Winnipeg says that treasury notes instead of bond issue for Western Provinces is what New York and Eastern bank managers advise for the present. The Premier of Manitoba states that the Government has an issue of $4,000,000 next December and $2,500,000 on February 1 next. It may be that these will be carried wholly or in part in the short-term plan. The Premier intimates that he does not want to go into the market and pay the price asked for long-term bonds just now. He prefers to wait until conditions improve from the issuer's standpoint.

The $4,250,000 6 per cent twenty-year bond issue of Federal Grains, Limited, which is being offered by Royal Securities Corporation, and Wood, Gundy & Company at 100 to yield 6 per cent is reported to have met with a good reception. The successful career of Alberta Pacific Grain Company, which in many respects is a similar organization and has the same people behind it, is mentioned as a favorable influence in making the Federal Grains organization itself.

Wall Street Gossip

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

NEW YORK, July 27.—Whitney says today:

Bangor & Aroos stock report for the first six months discloses net $916,549 equal after preferred dividends to $7.45 a share on the common stock compared with $6.51 a share in the corresponding period of last year. Since earning power makes stock prices, it is again recommended that this issue be bought while it is below ninety. In this group, practically all sound rails are now a purchase, our own preference being Erie below 85, St. Paul preferred below 60, and Canadian Pacific. In the public utilities, continue to concentrate on American & Foreign Power, International Telephone & Telegraph, National Power & Light and Electric Power & Light, as the issues are still in a buying range. The industrial section of the list will undoubtedly take its cue from United States Steel, which continues to be recommended while available below 210, in anticipation of a record earning statement which will appear Tuesday. Worthington Pump appears as a likely candidate for a substantial advance in the second half of this year as a result of radical improvement in earnings, which has already resulted in both the "A" and "B" stock being returned to a dividend basis, and prospects that close to $10 a share will be shown for the common for this year. Eisler Electric is now established in the 30's and a new record established as predicted. The advance in Pitney Bowes has been resumed, and as the stock is available between four and five points below its top of the year, it is again recommended for purchase, anticipating that, like Eisler Electric, this second phase of advance will carry the stock through to a new record. Grigsby Grunow continues its advance and continues to be recommended while available below 70 anticipating that earnings, which are running at a rate of approximately $10 a share will, at a minimum, carry the stock into the 90's. Attention is directed to Thermoid Company the common stock of which is selling in the 30's, with earnings for the year ended June 30 of about $5 a share, and expanding as a result of company operations, which have the plant running at 100 per cent capacity, twenty-four hours a day.

New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad earned $3.78 a common share in first half of 1929 against $1.42 in 1928.

Illinois Central June net operating income, $1,494,383, against $1,183,412 in June, 1928. Six months, $12,856,310, against $12,304,774.

Special stockholders' meeting of Hayes Body Corporation, scheduled for June 26, adjourned to August 15.

White Sewing Machine first half of 1929 net $181,174 after interest depreciation, Federal taxes, etc., of $1.81 a preferred share, against 704,381 in 1928, or $2.51 a common share.

The buying movement in the utility stocks on the local exchange yesterday which succeeded in giving the market in general a more robust air earlier this week appears to have halted for the time being, largely because of surrounding conditions, that is, as regards the credit situation, apprehension over the position of the market in Wall Street, and a growing nervousness over the crop situation. While the utility stocks Friday were holding fairly close to their recently established tops the list as a whole was given quite a reactionary tinge by increased selling directed against those issues likely to be affected by the short crop. Brazilian continued as active leader with a turnover of 7,128 shares, closing ¾ lower for the day. The current move in this stock apparently is a belated response to the buoyant market in utility stocks in general, and the very fine earnings shown for June.

Keeping pace with the times when general prosperity has taxed the capacity of the steel industry to meet the requirements of industry and new construction enterprises, the United States Steel Corporation is negotiating to expand its production by acquiring the Colombia Steel Corporation, a forty million dollar company, which has headquarters in San Francisco. The prospective transaction has just been discussed, it was stated yesterday by Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of United States Steel.

Realizing of a substantial nature continues to assert itself on all price bulges, and we are of the opinion that for the present the market will probably be a somewhat irregular affair.

Hornblower & Weeks—The immediate outlook is for a drifting market, marked by a high degree of irregularity furnished by the weakness in stocks having poor technical position and strength in the issues at intervals that are being bought by banking groups on a basis of special developments.

E. F. Hutton & Co.—We think prices on the whole will be lower in August. The only constructive thought is the possibility that the market will maintain itself in its trading range for a while longer.

Morrison & Townsend—All selling has been well absorbed thus far, and with brokers' loans out of the way for another week, the market seems likely to resume its upward trend.

ST. SWITHIN'S DAY SAYINGS CONTRADICTED

Old Proverb as to Weather of July 15 Being Repeated for Weeks Is Merely Pleasant Jingle of Words

METEOROLOGICAL RECORDS DISPROVE

By WILLIS P. JOHNSON

"There is nothing," said Charles Reade, "so inscrutable as a fool." There is nothing, we may add, so persistent as an error. The more baseless and foolish it is, the more persistent it seems to be. And when one flouts every known fact and affronts common sense and reason, its impregnable persistence makes the famous doctrine of the Perseverance of the Saints as futile as the snows of yesteryear.

Here, for example, is the perennial superstition about "Saint Swithin's Day." It is based upon a flagrant falsehood of comparatively recent invention, and it never once in all the centuries has been fulfilled. Yet people cherish it, even above the immeasurably less foolish legend of Groundhog Day. Every year multitudes regard it with more or less seriousness and express an expectation or apprehension that it may this time be fulfilled, unmindful of the obvious fact that it must infallibly be fulfilled every time or else be dismissed as entirely delusive.

There was, of course, a Swithin or, more properly, Swithun. A wise and good man, Bishop of Winchester, friend of King Egbert; tutor and counsellor of King Ethelwulf, and, perhaps, even of Alfred the Great in his childhood; author of the system of tithes for support of the clergy; contributor to The Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, engineer and architect, builder of notable bridges and churches, withal a man of modesty and benevolence. When he had a new church to dedicate he went thither afoot and at night to avoid the acclamations of the populace, and when a market woman stumbled on his bridge across the Itchen River and smashed all the eggs in her basket, he gave her an equal number of sound eggs, insisting that her mishap was his fault, as a clumsy bridge builder!

Saintly, no doubt; but not technically a "Saint," since canonization was not practised for a couple of centuries after his time, and he never received that rite.

When he died, on July 2, 862, according to the veracious William of Malmesbury, he left directions that he should be buried close to the wall of the church, under a path trodden by many feet and where the water from the eaves would drip upon his grave. And this was done. But he did not, like Shakespeare, leave any injunction against removal of his bones. On the contrary, he expressed a hope that his final sepulchre might be within the walls of the cathedral which would some day there be built. And so it was quite proper that more than a century later, on July 15, 971, his remains were placed in a new tomb, in the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul.

But—and now we reach the baseless fable—no storm or other token of disapproval interrupted that pious work. On the contrary, the day was uncommonly bright and fair throughout, and the gratification of the "Saint" was manifested in the working of many miraculous cures among those who visited the new tomb. At each sure cure the Bishop commanded the monks to assemble in the church for a service of thanksgiving, until the miracles became so numerous that the holy brethren murmured and almost mutinied at being so often summoned. Again, on July 15, 1093, his remains were a second time removed to a shrine within the new cathedral, where they reposed undisturbed until the shrine was demolished in the suppression of the monasteries in 1538.

In the course of seven centuries there was never a noteworthy storm on "St. Swithin's Day," nor anything remotely suggesting the later superstition about forty days of incessant rain or rainlessness. But in 1598 that superstition first appeared—736 years after his death, and 627 years after the first and 505 years after the second removal of his remains. At that time the roystering playmaker, Ben Jonson, in his comedy of "Every Man Out of His Humor," made one of his characters, consulting an almanac, observe:

"Oh here, St. Swithin, the fifteenth day! Variable weather, for the most part rain, good; for the most part rain! Why, it should rain forty days after, now, more or less, it was a rule held, afore I was able to hold a plow. And yet, here are two days no rain. Ha! it makes me muse!"

Then there began to be heard the doggerel quatrain:

"St Swithin's Day, if thou dost rain,
For forty days it will remain.
St. Swithin's Day, if thou be fair
For forty days 'twill rain na mair."

But a hundred years later, Gay in his "Trivia" ridiculed the superstition:

"Let not such vulgar tales debase thy mind;
Nor Paul nor Swithin rules the clouds and wind."

So much for the historic record of Swithin himself. Equally convincing are facts concerning his day, and some other days. For centuries there has been in France an identical legend of forty days of continuous rain or shine following St. Medard's Day, June 8; and also following the day of Sts. Gervais and Prothais, July 4; in Flanders there is one, relating to the day of St. Godelieve, July 6; and Germany has one for the day of the Seven Sleepers, June 27. Now as all saints are supposed to be of equal authority, it is obvious that embarrassing complications might arise from fulfillment of these legends. Thus if St. Medard's Day is rainy, it being the earliest in the calendar, all the other saints' days must be rainy, willy-nilly. And not merely forty days but no fewer than seventy-seven days from the beginning of Medard's forty to the end of Swithin's forty, from June 8 to August 24, must all be either rainy or rainless!

But perhaps most significant is the meteorological record. First, there has been known no such period of seventy-seven or even of forty days of uniform weather. Second, analysis of records shows that a rainy July 15 is more likely to be followed by fair weather than is a rainless day of the same date. Thus in a period of twenty years, noted at the Greenwich Observatory, there were six rainy Swithin's days, followed by an average of only 18.2 rainy days in the forty. But the fourteen rainless Swithin's days were followed in their respective forties by an average of nineteen rainy days.

All of which is respectfully submitted, quite hopelessly and in vain, to the innumerable company of those who tomorrow will observe that "Now we know what kind of weather to expect for the next forty days."

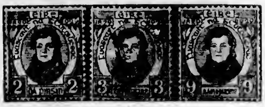
Irish Free State Stamps



THE Irish Free State recently issued a set of stamps to commemorate the centenary of "Catholic emancipation." The set is comprised of three stamps, two, three and ninepence, and is to be in use for a short period. Daniel O'Connell, whose likeness will be found on all values of this set, was born in 1775, near Cahirciveen, County Kerry, and was surnamed "The Liberator," on account of his unswerving advocacy of the cause of Irish Catholicism.

World-Famous Stories

FOR SALE

By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE

(Nathaniel Hawthorne, 1804-1864, was an American writer of romances and short stories. He is particularly famous for his novel, "The Scarlet Letter," and his collection of "Twice-Told Tales.")

Have you ever chanced upon some new scene—a landscape, a house, a room—sure that you have never been there before, and yet with an indescribable feeling that the place is familiar? You look about with a sense of being at home, with a notion that at some time in the past you have looked upon these same things before, and yet your memory can give you no time and date of such a visit. You know you have never been there, but you feel that you have—that is all there is to it.

Everyone, probably, has had such an experience. I have. Mine came one Summery day, and so startling, so poignant, was the feeling that I became, as I might say, momentarily delirious with a kind of wild—certainly it was not sane or reasonable—joy.

As I walked along a country road, and rounded a curve, I saw a white house close to the sea, built upon three terraces which descended to the beach.

Why did the sight of that house make my heart leap with joy? I cannot explain it, but I stopped to gaze, for I was seized with a sudden love for this dwelling. I should have been overjoyed to own it, and to live there always.

I came nearer, and approached the gate, and there, on one of the posts, I came face to face with a sign which said in large letters: For Sale. This gave me a shock, though a pleasant one. If it was for sale, it hardly belonged to anyone—anyone might buy it, even I might possess it, if I had the purchase money (which I did not, but I allowed myself to imagine that I did).

I entered the garden. It was charming, with estrades one above another, espaliers with long arms like crucified martyrs, tufts of golden broom, and two old fig trees standing at the end of each terrace.

I rang at the door as I might have done at my own house, had I had one. A woman admitted me, dressed in black and wearing a little cap. I even seemed to know her.

"Do you come to see the house?" she asked.

"Why—er—yes, of course," I stammered.

I entered, and, as I expected, I recognized everything. Every object seemed familiar—wall decorations, furniture, bric-a-brac. I was surprised, indeed, not to see my cane in the vestibule.

The parlor was very pretty, carpeted with mats, and a view looking out over the sea. Chinese statuettes stood on the mantel, and a large photographic portrait of a woman. This picture attracted me at once and I went to take it in my hands, with a notion that I should recognize her too.

And I did recognize her, though I knew I had never met such a woman in my life. It was she, herself—the one whom I felt as though I was expecting, whom I was desiring, whom my heart called for, who was even then haunting me in my dreams. She was the woman of my imagination, my ideal, the one for whom I would seek in all the corners of the earth.

"Who is this woman," I asked.

"It is Madame."

"Is she your mistress?"

"Oh, no, monsieur."

"She is the owner of the house, then?"

"Oh, no, monsieur."

"Then who is the owner," I asked.

"My master," she answered, "Monsieur Tournelle."

I pointed my finger at the photograph. "What is this woman, then?"

"It is Madame."

"The wife of your master?"

"Oh, no, monsieur."

"His sweetheart, then?"

There was no reply. For no reason at all, I felt jealous. She is—no one knows where."

"Ah," I said, "they are separated."

"Yes, monsieur."

I thought it wise to be diplomatic. Seriously, and sympathetically, I said: "Tell me what happened. Perhaps I can be of service to your good master."

The old servant gave me a careful scrutiny. She seemed to gain confidence from my looks, for she told me this brief story.

"She—Madame—made my master very unhappy. He met her in Italy and brought her back with him. She was an excellent singer. He loved her very much—too much, monsieur. They found this house last year, built by some fool who wanted to be far from the city. Madame wanted it at once, and so my master purchased it, to please her. They stayed here all last Summer, and almost all Winter. Then one morning at breakfast Monsieur called me, asking where was Madame. I did not know. We waited all day. She did not come back. My master looked everywhere. He never found her. She was gone—no one knows how or where she went."

I was possessed with an unreasonable joy. The woman—my ideal—had escaped, had fled this man who had brought her from Italy. She was not happy with him. How happy I was!

The old servant went on to say: "My master almost died of vexation and grief. He returned to Paris, leaving me here with my husband to stay in the house until it could be sold. The price is twenty thousand francs, monsieur."

I heard no more. I was thinking only of Her. All at once it seemed to me that I had only to go out and proceed with my journey, and I should surely find her. She would be on her way back to see her house, the house that had pleased her, my fancy told me. It was only fancy.

I gave the servant ten francs, snatched the photograph and left—kissing the portrait as I departed. Regaining the road, I began my search, my eyes returning again and again to the picture of her. How happy I was to think that she had escaped and was free! Certainly I should meet her tomorrow or the day after or the day after that.

She was alone and free somewhere in the world. The thought obsessed me. I knew her, and now I had only to find her. I went on, the sun kissing my cheeks, the breezes caressing my hair, wild with happiness, drunk with an insane hope. I thought of finding her, of bringing her back to the house marked For Sale, where we would be happy in our turn.

Work of Repair On Ocean Cables Is Arduous Job

Repairing an ocean cable is an adventurous calling for strong men who have the patience and the ability to withstand repeated rebuffs from capricious weather, says The New York Times. Although cable repairing is a highly-developed profession, experience and practical science have not been able to overcome all difficulties at all times.

Ships grapple for hours for cables sunk in the depths of ocean mud, and often when they are jockeying into position to scoop up a cable, a sudden squall forces them to abandon their search. They place a buoy about the point at which they believe the cable end to be and their ship steams around, keeping the marker in sight. Searchlights are used at night.

After a ship has grappled for and succeeded in finding the cable, raising it is still a delicate task. The slightest error in judgment will cause the cable to snap, and the work of weeks will be destroyed. The feat is much more difficult if the cable is an old one.

There is excitement on the ship when the machine which registers the pressure being exerted on the grappler indicates that the cable has been caught. Even a veteran cable repairer has a tense moment as the cable is hauled over the side. Every one is at his post on deck ready for orders, and when the captain shouts "Take her in easy," the line is pulled in slowly and passed along a big wheel on the bow. It goes in turn under and over various wheels and gears.

Some of the men meet danger in controling the line, reaching over the side and thus placing themselves in a position to be pulled overboard. Tests are made and the faulty parts of the cable are repaired. When the wire is completed the cable is again dropped into the water to resume its duty of carrying swift messages between nations.

The disappointments in cable laying are many. Today it may seem that the work will be done in a few hours, yet a heavy wind, a sudden squall or an unusual lurch of the ship may undo the efforts of weeks, and put the job back where it started.

Causes of cable trouble are many. A cable was recently pulled up with a whale caught in a twist of it. In southern waters cables have been damaged by sharks and recently off the coast of Spain a captain had to remove two tons of oysters before he could proceed with a repair job.

Anchors and trawlers also constitute a menace to cables. One company in Newfoundland agrees to reimburse coast fishermen if they cut the rope of any anchor which is caught in a cable.

Island Alpinists Meet Among Beautiful Hills

Local Section of Alpine Club of Canada Holds First Camp at Recently Acquired Shields Lake Property at Sooke—Many Hilltops Scaled

(Contributed)

In rapid succession neatly lashed bundles of exactly forty pounds each, came from the C.N.R. car, until about half a ton lay piled by the railway line. It was a new stopping place for the railway on its Vancouver Island line, a place where the recently finished trail from the Sooke River Road to the location of the property of the club in the rough hills of Sooke crosses the railway line.

Here the packer stool with his trusty and sure-footed pack horses ready to receive the loads, and convey them up the mountain trail to the site of the camp. Several members were also on hand as an advance party to set up the camp to be opened two days later.

AN "OLD-TIMER"

Our packer was S. W. Batten, now of Sooke. It was he who packed the first piano into Dawson City in the Yukon—with two mules—in those good old days of romance. Bristling with tales of the early days when he packed into the Yukon in '97 and '98, and later in the Cariboo country he was indeed interesting. Still bright, alert, and ever ready with his well-earned skill, he set about his task and before long his pack train moved eastward on the trail with the first load of the club's equipment.

UP THE TRAIL

Up over rolling country the pack train went, now over open ridges, now through beautiful avenues of fir, now up through alder groves to the base of Long Mountain.

On the Southerly Summit of Ragged Mountain, One of the Mountains Which Fits Into the Skyline Group Visible From Victoria.

Here the route led up the steep sides of the mountain, following every natural foothold of advantage until the top was gained at what is now known as the First Pass.

From this point a last look was taken of the Sooke River Valley, for from now on the valley would no longer be visible.

What a splendid view lay before us. The valley of the Sooke stretched for miles with its wealth of green. Brown patches in every direction on the higher reaches clearly indicated the general rough, rocky nature of the valley sides. To the south Wiffin Spit and the outer harbor of Sooke were plainly visible, also Port Angeles across the strait, with the majestic Olympic Mountains with their snow tops in the background.

From the First Pass the trail pressed further eastward, soon sinking into a valley of giant firs and cedar, where a dried creek left still enough moisture to retain a cool grove of alder. Rising again from the little valley the route followed close to the foot of a high vertical wall of rock, covered with lichens and moss, and thence up a couple of steep grades to the top of Second Pass. Here the general nature of the country seemed to change a little. The large cedar and fir changed into the jack pine, and here and there the white pine, with its long cone and shapely contour made us realize we were surely reaching further into the hills. Here and there a glimpse of Ragged Mountain could be seen—a mountain to be climbed later by the present camp—while Mount Shepherd, lying further to the south and west of Ragged Mountain, could be seen at almost every point of vantage.

The Third Pass was reached with an easy grade after following a stretch of more broken type of country, with clumps of jack pine and small alder groves. Here the trail again descended among giant firs and cedars once more, thence to the lake's edge.

Following the westerly end of the lake the pack train came to a stop at the camp site. Here the advance party, which had reached the place ahead of the packer, were already at work clearing and laying out the plan of the camp.

OPENING DAY, JULY 1

Monday, July 1, saw the main party arriving, reinforced from time to time during the week with further groups of mountaineers, members of the club, anxious to explore the rough mountains surrounding their recently-acquired lake and future hut site.

The advance guard's hard work of the three preceding days had perfected a camp complete in every detail, and it was with admiration that the arrivals inspected the rendezvous and its site, after the cook had served the noonday meal.

Facing the lake stood the huge dining fly, with its two long tables, to the right and rear stood the cookhouse with two stoves, one the large built-in type lined with stone, and the other the collapsible kind. Behind the cookhouse was the store house, with provisions lining the "shake" shelves.

To the rear and toward the left of the dining fly was an open space, around which stood the manager's tent, with ladies', gentlemen's and visitors' tents tucked in the shade of the pines. To one side of the open space stood a stone fireplace with cans of hot water above the slow-burning fire for general use of the camp, with the wash racks close by. In the centre and close to the camp signboard, the Union Jack floated from a tall flagstaff.

Proceeding toward the lake the members followed a neatly-made path bearing the words "Hadow Trail," in acknowledgement of the hours spent by Mrs. Hadow in making it. This trail leads out and around the point, which had been cleared of its underbrush, with only the most picturesque trees remaining.

From the point a clear view of almost the entire lake was visible. To the west, two islands in front of a considerable area of green reeds, through which the waters of the lake flow westward to Grass Lake; to the east, for a distance of about one-half a mile, a larger island surrounded by waterlilies, to the north and close to the shore, a range of seven hilltops clearly outlined against the sky; and the south terminating in a long and deep arm one-third of a mile or better. The rest of the day was spent in adjusting bough beds and personal equipment.

THE rubber boat, one of the most popular bits of equipment carried in to the Shields Lake camp of the Alpine Club. The lake, recently stocked with fish, is almost entirely enclosed by the camp park and rimmed with a beautiful group of seven hills.

SECOND DAY

The second day opened with a heavy downpour of rain and high wind that had persisted from late the previous night. No inconvenience was caused from the sudden change, and it left a beautiful clear day. A full day's rest (with bathing off the rocks across the main arm of the lake made more enjoyable by the rubber boat which proved so popular and useful at last year's camp at the Forbidden Plateau) was generally observed.

THIRD DAY—MOUNT EMPRESS

The camp was aroused early by Mr. Claude Harrison, the guide and leader of the expedition organized for Mount Empress. This mountain is very prominent on the skyline of the Sooke Hills as seen from Victoria. From Victoria it is easily recognized as the highest summit in the Sooke Range with a bald top.

The party of fourteen was soon under way.

Taking a course back over the trail to the top of the First Pass, a compass bearing was taken for Grass Lake. This lake was soon reached, and the stream at its outlet crossed. The lake is a fine stretch of water with several acres of marsh and weeds at its southerly end, and incidentally devoid of fish.

From Grass Lake a northerly route was followed for some distance until Bert's Lake was reached at an elevation of about seventeen hundred feet. Bert's Lake is a beautiful little sheet of quiet water, the highest in the Sooke Range. At each end there are many lilies, and on this date were bright with flower.

Still following a northerly course from this lake, the party proceeded through quantities of jack pine on up until Mount Empress suddenly came to view. It did not take long to cross the ravine and wind up the hot sides of Empress Mountain to the top.

The party now stood on the highest point in the rough hills of Sooke, with a wonderful view at their feet. For miles in every direction stood vast areas of virgin timber. To the north, miles away, were Sooke Lake, Goldstream Lake, Loon Lake, and then Victoria.

Well-known places were readily visible, and some time was spent picking out familiar landmarks. Perhaps the most striking thing about the view of Victoria was the wealth of trees visible. It presented a very pleasing appearance.

To the south appeared the tops of Ragged Mountain and Mount Shepherd, and far in the distance the outer part of Sooke Harbor, with the shining Straits and the magnificent snow range of the Olympics as a picturesque background. On the west lay the valley of the Leech stretching for miles toward the West Coast with Surrey Mountain, and far beyond on the skyline what appeared to be Mount Hoops at the headwaters of Shaw Creek on Cowichan Lake, a mountain of 5,100 feet.

Lunch was eaten on the summit, water for tea being found in a pond on the very crest. This small pond, although shallow, generally holds water throughout the entire year, and the water from it is quite good.

After lunch bearings were taken for the range lying to the north of the lake, in order that new country might be explored.

A last look at the splendor of the surroundings, after a cairn had been erected and a record placed in the base, and the party struck off on the new route. Across the ravine at the foot of Empress Mountain, over an intervening hill and thence up through quantities of jack pine, the party reached the summit of a hill which they named Hill Five at 2,000 feet. From the top a fine view of the lake was obtained, with the smoke lazily curling up from the camp. A cairn was erected, as before, and after signaling the camp, the party struck off to the west. Traversing the other two tops, named Hill Six and Hill Seven, a chimney was descended, which was an easy and short route to the camp, where the party arrived at 4.30 p.m., after covering a commendable area of new ground.

As evening fell and the bonfire was lighted, a clear reflection of the seven hills appeared in the glassy surface of the lake, and by common accord the name, "Lake of the Seven Hills," was created. The usual bonfire entertainment brought to a close a day thoroughly enjoyed by all.

FOURTH DAY

The fourth day, Thursday, saw further arrivals to the camp. A trip into the Seven Hills, under Mr. Dougan—that veteran and enthusiastic mountaineer—engaged a large body of the camp. Three more of the Seven Hills were traversed and cairns erected.

FIFTH DAY

An early start under Mr. Harrison as guide was made to Ragged Mountain. That mountain, with its two tops, is also a prominent feature in the skyline from Victoria. It appears a few miles south of Mount Empress on the skyline, although in reality it lies in a southeasterly direction from it. The southerly summit appears to have a cut-off end. This is more or less the case. The route from the lake was a long one, through a heavily-timbered valley of considerable width to the thick, rough sides as it rises from the valley. The ascent was made up the northwesterly end of the southerly top. The day was hot and the climb consequently warm. From this summit a good view of Victoria was obtained. Race Rocks with its lighthouse was plainly visible, as was also Sooke Harbor. Below shone the waters of Olinta Lake; to the west and north the wide valley with the Seven Hills and Mount Empress shut off all further view in that direction; to the northeast and about three-quarters of a mile away showed the second top of Ragged Mountain. In the dip there was a small pond, but the water was not at all inviting.

At the top the names were placed in the cairn, and after lunch and a rest, a new bearing was taken, and the party returned across the valley and up again into the hills to the lake, arriving about 4 p.m.

A second party (under Dr. Irene Hudson) of almost the entire remainder of the camp went into the Seven Hills and returned shortly after midday.

A late bonfire, with the usual songs, recitations and stories, brought a long and strenuous day to a close.

A STRANGE FIND

Starting later than usual, a party under Mr. Harrison made a trip on the sixth day into the surrounding hills for the purpose of making certain observations for future reference. While on this trip an unusual variation of the compass was discovered, so pronounced that the needle of the compass completely reversed itself. A note of the location was made, and a very interested party returned to camp in time for dinner.

At the close of the bonfire that night—the last night of the camp—Captain Everall addressed the gathering. He eulogized at length the arrangements and the enjoyable time the whole camp had had. He expressed the hope that the hut would soon be an accomplished fact, in order that the members might be able at all times to come and enjoy the delightful place now owned by the club. Mrs. MacKenzie in apt words seconded the vote of thanks proposed by Captain Everall. The evening closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

CLOSE OF CAMP

Sunday was spent in several short trips in the vicinity of the lake and in bathing. After lunch the main body of the camp moved out, leaving a party of nine to pack the equipment on the following day. Before noon the following day, Monday, the entire camp was again reduced to bundles. The packer arrived toward 2 o'clock, and once more the packing began.

By 2 o'clock the remaining party took to the trail and by 4 o'clock were all waiting for the C.N.R. at the crossing. Thus the second annual camp of the club ended, unanimously voted a camp long to be remembered.

Island Alpinists Find Vantage Point

SOME of the members of the Vancouver Island section of the Alpine Club of Canada at the top of Hill Six, one of the mountains in the Sooke Range explored during the week's camp held recently at Shields Lake (subsequently renamed Lake of the Seven Hills). The group here seen comprises Mr. W. H. Dougan, Captain Everall, Miss Nancy Wollaston and Mr. Jones.

TYPICAL camp scene showing the unloading of the pack train at the first annual camp at Shields Lake of the Vancouver Island section of the Alpine Club of Canada. About thirty members attended this camp, and over two tons of supplies, equipment, etc., were carried in by the pack train.

Dear Editor—What should I take when I am run down?—Anxious.

Dear Anxious—Take the licence number.—Oregon Motorist.

A BAD GUESS

Into the doctor's surgery walked the two small boys, each wearing a rather nervous expression on his face.

"Ah," began the doctor, "let me see. Vaccination for you two, isn't it? Left arm, sonnie, please."

A look of extreme dismay stole over the lads' faces at this.

"I knew it, Alf," one said, turning to his chum. "Just our luck, an' we've both been and washed the right 'uns!"

SEEMED LIKE IT

The line was unusually crowded, and an inoffensive-looking little man accidently stepped upon another's toe.

"You clumsy fool!" roared the injured man, clasping his foot and massaging it very gently. "You might have broken my instep."

An abject apology failed to appease him in the slightest.

"Do you think my feet were made for an idiot to walk on?" he demanded.

"It almost seems as if they were," was the quiet rejoiner.

Everybody just now seems to be thinking of holidays.

The chief may go
And all below
Would gladly fill his place.
His work be done
So well that none
The slightest loss could trace.
The second, too,
And so on, through
The juniors on the list,
They all might play
Till Judgment Day
And none of them be missed.
But there is one
Whose work is done
As though it were but play;
And Super-men
Are worried when
The Office Boy's away.

—Daily Chronicle.

Charles Levine of flying fame was talking about an aged millionaire's marriage to a beautiful stenographer of nineteen Summers.

"The old boy should be happy enough in his marriage," Mr. Levine said, "for his bride is a sensible, level-headed girl, and she'll cling to him for all he is worth."

PUBLIC OPINION

Nowadays is bitterly hostile to any form of foolishness which endangers life and property. The Reckless Driver, the Man Who Rocks the Boat, the Man Who Didn't Know It was Loaded, are gradually disappearing under pressure of public opinion. The Man Who is Careless with Fire is the greatest menace of them all. Let public opinion focus upon him.
